U. S. GRANT

U. S. Grant, the centenary of whose birth occurs today, was thirty-nine years old when the outbreak of the Civil War gave him an opportunity to show what he was made of. In spite of his West Point training he was pretty much of a failure up to that time; his father, having the problem of providing for the son and his family, had given him a job as clerk in his country store. Young people who feel that they are getting a late start in life might well take courage from the example of Grant.

During the recent war we heard a great deal about one side or the other having the "initiative." From the beginning of his Civil War experience Grant understood the value of retaining the initiative. He had a saying which has often been repeated: "Don't be over-anxious about what your enemy is going to do to you; but make him anxious about what you are going to do to him." In his report of his capture of Fort Donelson, his first great success, he told of his discouragement at finding his ammunition exhausted and his men confused by the rough handling they had received from the enemy. The thought of giving up the attempt came to him but, "noticing that the enemy did not take advantage of my situation I concluded he probably was in a worse condition than I and so at once ordered an advance." A few weeks later his lack of anxiety about what the enemy was going to do nearly lost him his army at Shiloh; the Confederate attack was so unexpected that Grant had to leave his breakfast coffee half finished.

General Sheridan said of McClellan that "he never went out to lick anybody but always thought first of keeping from getting licked." Grant's view was the reverse of this and was justified by events. The immense superiority of the North in men and resources warranted aggressive tactics.

After his retirement from the presidency Grant composed his Personal Memoirs, volumes not only of rare historical importance but of high literary interest.

If you are asking, "What's the use?" it means that you are in danger of allowing your life to become useless. The world is largely a reflection of ourselves.—Forbes Magazine.

BIRD TALES

Kingfishers make their nests of fish-bones.

Guinea hens are hunted as game birds in Japan.

The largest snipe in the world are found in Brazil.

The osprey, or fishhawk, the largest hawk, is almost as impressive on the wing as the eagle.

The canvasback duck was known to the ancient long before it was described by the naturalists.

POSTAL IMPROVEMENT WEEK IS OBSERVED

May 1 Sees Inaugurated First General Campaign of Kind in Service.

Without the Postal Service, business would languish in a day, and be at a standstill in a week. Public opinion would die of dry rot. Sectional hatred or prejudice only would flourish, and narrow-mindedness thrive.

It is the biggest distinctive business in the world and it comes nearer to the innermost interests of a greater number of men and women than any other institution on earth. No private business, however widespread, touches so many lives so often or sharply; no church reaches into so many souls, flutters so many pulses, has so many human beings dependent on its ministrations.

"Postal Improvement Week" has been set for May 1, by the Postmaster General. This is the first general campaign of its kind in the Postal Service for several decades. Business men and their organizations, large users of the mail, newspapers, motion pictures, advertisers, and the entire organization of 320,000 postal workers are to be enlisted in this country-wide campaign of interest in postal improvement. Your help is vital. Address your letters plainly with pen or typewriter. Give street address. Spell out name of State, don't abbreviate. Put your return address in the upper left hand corner of envelope (not on the back) and always look at your letter before dropping in the mail to see if it is properly addressed. This care in the use of the mails is for your benefit and speeds up the dispatch and delivery of mail matter.

If you have any complaints of poor service make them to your postmaster. He has instructions to investigate them and report to the department.

COURTESY

It sticks in human relations like postage stamps on letters. The POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT expects it to be used by its postmasters and employees in dealing with the public.

Help them in its use beginning with POSTAL IMPROVEMENT WEEK, May 1-6, 1922.

THANK YOU

WITHOUT STREET ADDRESS YOUR MAIL IS DELAYED AT OFFICE OF DELIVERY

The Dead Letter Office has been in existence ever since Ben Franklin started our postal service. Even then people addressed mail to Mr. Ezekiel Smithers, "Atlantic Coast," and expected Ben to know just where Zeke lived.

Perhaps they had Zeke's address in letters up in the garret, maybe a chest full of 'em, but then it was easier to let Ben hunt Zeke. Today people are addressing letters to John Smith, New York, N. Y., or Chicago, Ill., thinking Uncle Sam can locate him, which is just as incomplete as was Zeke's address of yore. The Postoffice Department asks you to put the number and street in the address. It helps you.

Trinidad Col.

How do you expect the Postal Clerk to know whether you mean Trinidad, California, or Trinidad, Colorado? ALWAYS SPELL OUT THE NAME OF THE STATE IN FULL IN THE ADDRESS.

"MORE BUSINESS IN GOVERNMENT"

This apt phrase was used in President Harding's first message to Congress and applies particularly in postal management where postmasters are being impressed with the fact that they are managers of local branches of the biggest business in the world.

HERE COMES A STRANGER!

Let's make our post office look neat. Mr. Postmaster, straighten up that letter box, Mr. Farmer. Your impressions are lasting. Maybe the stranger, taking notice of these improvements, will come back bringing you benefits. Start these with "POSTAL IMPROVEMENT WEEK" May 1-6.

ODD FACTS

Plants, by means of their greenness, are able to collect and store the heat of the sun.

Krupp's works, at Essen, have 40,000 laborers and 8,000 officials fully employed on peace work.

A famous hymn, "The Day Is Past and Over," is believed to be a translation from the Greek and written by St. Anatholus.

GRAVEYARD FOR ARISTOCRATIC AUTOS

Have you ever wondered what has happened to that good old bus of yours with which you parted when you got the shiny new one? The photograph shows a graveyard for old aristocratic horseless carriages. Many of them have served faithfully in the best of families, yet now in their old age are left unprotected to the ravages of the elements.

COUNTESS MARKIEWICZ

The Countess Markiewicz, who took an active part in the 1916 Irish rebellion and later was minister of labor in the Dail cabinet, is an orator of note. She was the first woman to be elected a member of the British House of Commons, but refused to take her seat.

SPRING GREENS COST NOTHING

Weeds which cost nothing but the gathering may be found in all sections of our country. Many of them have higher value as food than the cultivated vegetables which we prize.

Mustard, the farmer's pest, is one of the most wholesome and common of our weeds. Mixed with lettuce, for a green salad it is tasty and cooked with pork as greens it cannot be equalled for a blood purifier.

Take the tender green leaves, wash and drain as one does lettuce and serve with chopped onion and a salad dressing. It makes a most appetizing salad.

Yellow dock, another pestiferous weed, makes delicious eating as greens, and, of course, we all know dandelion which is found in plenty in almost all parts of our country. Blanched leaves of the tender dandelion cut up with tender green onions and dressed with salad dressing are especially good; then cooked as greens they make another satisfying dish.

Milkweed is a very delicious green which can be used from the middle of May all through the summer, but it is best in early summer. The young leaves are boiled as greens and served with hard-cooked eggs sliced and a butter sauce. The stems may be cooked and served as one does asparagus.

Plantain leaves, using the tender inside leaves, may be used as lettuce. Purslane, commonly called pusley, is another weed full of good mineral salts. Wash and boil it in as little water as possible, just as spinach is cooked, and serve it in the same manner.

HUMANIZING THE POSTAL SERVICE

"There is no unimportant person or part of our service. It is a total of human units and their co-operation is the key to its success. In its last analysis, postal duties are accommodations performed for our neighbors and friends and should be so regarded, rather than as a hired service performed for an absentee employer."—Postmaster General Hubert Work.
