THE AUTO PARK

Lents has an auto park, beautifully located, easily accessible and with all the conveniences of the larger parks. It is a credit to the people of the community who have given of their time and money towards its establishment and maintenance. But we must not stop there, we want the park full. We want every tourist to know he is welcome to use and enjoy the park.

Our attention has been called to the fact that machines from the south, coming in on Eighty-second street, see our signs, but cross Foster Road and follow the municipal signs direct to the municipal auto park. The signs used to advertise both parks are the same color and design and there is nothing at Eighty-second and Foster Road telling the tourist to turn to the right. He keeps on going and we go on keeping the many things he would buy here if he were staying at our park.

A good big sign at Eighty-second and Foster Road—the bigger the better—would be a splendid investment, and more signs of an individual character along the highways would be a fine thing too.

AUTO ACCIDENTS

A mangled form, with its lifeblood ebbing away, lying in the dust by the roadside, with perhaps little chance of recovery or perhaps the possibility of being a helpless cripple, even if the life is saved, is almost a daily occurrence in and near the city. Someone who has left home in the morning is brought back in the evening torn in body, or perhaps dead—the victim of our craze for speed.

The automobile driver is not always to blame, quite frequently a pedestrian does not exercise the necessary care, but, nevertheless, it does not alter the result, and it is time we stopped valuing human lives on a par with a few minutes of time.

Last Monday while driving from the Morrison-street bridge to Lents we saw three automobile accidents. All might have been serious, but luckily in two the participating machines only were damaged. The third, at about Thirty-ninth and Division, inflicted bodily harm. A small girl was picked up bleeding badly, how seriously she was hurt we do not know, but it was a terrible reminder and we crossed streets thereafter with a great deal more care.

Let's all think occasionally of a lifeless form, lying in the dust by the roadside, the victim of carelessness or speed, and automobile accidents will decrease correspondingly.

ENCOURAGING

The Ku Kluxers who have charge of the anti-private school bill announced a month ago that in a whirlwind campaign of one day they had secured 50,000 signatures for their petitions. It appears that their whole campaign has netted them fewer than 19,000 signatures. That is about as near as they get to the truth in the usual run of their pronouncements.

In view of the fact that there are over 300,000 registered voters in the state this failure of the Kluxers to live up to their advance notices is distinctly encouraging to those who still believe that the constitutional guarantees of civic freedom are worth preserving.

There are many forces at work in this state to prevent the threatened invasion of parental rights. The independent colleges, though not directly imperiled by the proposed legislation, apparently are coming to see that the principle of a state monopoly in elementary education if once established could readily be extended to secondary and higher education.

Mr. Hill, in a letter to the public press, points out the valuable service rendered to the community by the Hill Military academy and similar private schools. In addition to their service to their patrons they constitute an important business asset to Oregon and it is not likely that the same business community will lightly vote their destruction.

We like to believe, also, that the average Oregonian has not forgotten the traditions of America as a land of freedom. If this measure is presented to the voters for what it is, an attempted invasion of rights which have been proclaimed as essentially American for a hundred and fifty years of our national history, we believe it will be defeated.

A LITTLE AFFAIR WITH FIGURES

Tell a friend to write down all the figures from one to nine in their right order, omitting eight, thus: 12,235,679. Then ask him which figure he considers he has written the worst. Suppose he says four. Multiply this by nine, giving 36, and ask your friend order, omitting eight, thus: 12,345,679, by 36. The result will be a row of fours, and you can mildly suggest that this was arranged so that he might have practice in writing the figure which he wrote badly before.

If he selects three, multiply this by nine, giving 27, and set him to multiply the whole row of figures by 27. The result will be a row of threes, and so on.
