REJECT FRENCH GOWNS

Germany Forbids Importation Since Occupation of the Ruhr.

Berlin.-Frieda and Gretchen are to have no more Paris gowns. There are to be no more smart little hats brought to Germany from the fashionable millinery shops on the Place Vendome and the Rue de la Paix.

These articles are not permitted to cross the German boundary since the French occupation of the Ruhr, and the leaders of the German fashion in dustry have instructed their buyers that French models are not to be bought either directly or indirectly.

High prices in France had prevented German firms from buying many models. Consequently the imports tions of such finery from France had been inconsiderable as compared to prewar times. But Berlin modistes were slowly resuming their Paris trips and buying limited quantities of late creations, when the Ruhr trouble came along and brought the general boycott against articles made in France.

Baron Drecoll, managing director of one of Berlin's greatest fashion shops, said that this latest prohibition will make little difference to Berlin designers, as they have not relied directly on Paris for their styles since the beginning of the war and have, to a great extent, become creators of their own models,

"Of course, many of our ideas come from Paris. It is foolish to deny that Paris leads in the creation of modes,' declared the baron. "But Germany has learned to develop Parisian suggestions and adapt them. In many cases they are greatly modified, as Parisian designs are often too extreme for our trade. The prohibition against the importation of French goods will affect modistes and milliners only in two lines, silk and flowers. It is difficult to replace certain French silks and

Vienna and Bertin have been working together in the development of odes since the beginning of the World war. Because of the low exchange they have been successful in developing a considerable trade for model gowns in the Scandinavian countries, the Balkans and central Europe American and French fashlon magazines have been the source of many ideas for the German and Austrian fashion creators. They also send their representatives to the great watering places on the Riviera and have little difficulty in keeping up with the latest French ideas.

YOUR TELEPHONE-

THE business world today demands three things which are essential in order to enable men to meet the keen competition in the world's markets. They are promptness, accuracy and reliability. The pace of modern business does not permit the use of methods which a few years ago were considered sufficient.

To meet this demand the telephone is more and more being used in transaction of business near and far. It provides a means for speedy handling of business, it permits of accuracy equal to the written communication and it is at your service any time, any where. A few years ago the use of the telephone was confined to local conversations. Today there is demand for communication throughout the state and nation. The modern way is the long distance way. You will find it prompt, efficient and satisfactory.
