Hudson's Bay Company. The Hudson's Bay company, incorporated in 1670, connects, by uninterrupted lineage, the North American wilds of the moving picture set with the stern realties of an earlier day. The first records of this stanch example of British emprise contain the following notation of a shipment made to the company's posts shortly after

According to an English antiquary, the oldest manufactured articles in the world are probably some chipped stones found on the Kentish Weald, in England.

Far back, countless centuries before any attempt at civilization, men were hipping stones into tools and weapons. Knives, axes, hammers, scrapers, spearheads, arrowheads, even awls for plercing skins, and roughly notched hard enough to stand wear.

Some are clumsy things, some beautiful in design and finish, and their ferocity, the beast turned to attack. varying workmanship indicates far an Egyptian king of 1400 B. over 20,000 years ago. Earlier still, Mousterian implements from the cave of Le Moustier, varying in shape and size, all have the businesslike wavy cutting edge distinctive of their period. Centuries before these the ruder Chellean and Strepyan implements were made, their unworked butts still showing the natural surface of the stone. And away back beyond them, thousands and thousands of years ago, in the very dawn of human life, were made the "Eoliths" of the Kentish Weald.

"CANNON" PROVED A FAILURE

One of the most peculiar pieces of ordnance ever invented was that which was tried for its sole occasion at the storming of Fort Henry, in what is now West Virginia, by Simon Girty, the famous renegade, and his severa hundred Indian followers, on Septem ber 1, 1777. All day long, without success and with considerable loss, the savages and their still more savage leader had been attempting to carry the little stockade with its handful of defenders. Night had settled down and their patience was short, when some inventive genius amongst them suggested the making of artillery with which to batter down the stubborn walls.

A maple log, already hollowed by the process of time, was bound with chains, plugged at the breech with wood, filled to the muzzle with stones, pieces of iron and other missiles. It was then conveyed to within 60 yards of the gate and discharged. The log burst into a thousand pleces, its fragments scattering in all directions and killing several of the attackers. And not a picket of the fort was injured.

toric Indian at the base of the bluffs on the Cow Skin river, near here, added zest to the work of archeologists who have unearthed here many souvenirs of a race long dead. The party conducting the excavations is directed by M. R. Harrington, and represents the museum of the American Indian Heye foundation, New York city.

The skeleton was wrapped in ragged deerskin robes and covered by a plece of grass matting. The deerskins were belted with a girdle of fur believed to be that of an otter.

The "Ozark bluff dwellers," as his race has been designated by Mr. Harrington, were beneath a breechclout of twisted grass attached to a belt made of strings made of wild hemp. A grass basket, believed once to have contained food, was found buried near a shoulder of the skeleton.

The skeleton was entire, excepting the skull, which apparently had been gnawed by rats which were found to have nested in the tomb.

Dreams of Peril and Falls to Death. Drakesboro, Ky .- Roy Schultz, thirty-five years old, a miner, is dead, the victim of a dream. Schultz was sleeping on the top of a loaded coal car and dreamed that he was in front of a locomotive. He rolled from the top of the car and fell into a mine pit 76 feet deep. Injuries caused by the fall resulted in his death.

Antidote for Boredom.

While prime minister of England Lloyd George devised an antidote for oredom. When he was entertaining or being entertained he arranged to have himself called on the telephone at certain intervals. If the company was dull he discovered at the first ring that affairs of state demanded his attention.

If the company was passable he waited for the second ring. If he found himself among kindred spirits, the calls were in regard to matters that his secretary could bring to a happy conclu-

England, famous not only for its relics of primative man, but also for its remains of extinct animals, is known as Kent's Hole. Although the existence of this cave had been known from time immemorial, it did not attract the attention of scientists until 1825. Excavations were carried on by Pengelly from 1865 to 1880, at a cost of nearly £2,000 and yielded results of the highest importance to the science of anthropology. There were found flint tools of the Paleolithic age and implements of bone, such as needles, awls and harpoons. The animal remains discovered comprised those of the lion, hyena, bear, wolf, fox, rhinoceros, mammoth, Irish elk and reindeer, showing that those animals once lived in Britain and were co-temporaneous with men of the Stone age.

Battle for Fruit of Durlan Tree. Desperate fights over the ownership of durian trees are of yearly occurrence in the Malay peninsula. Sometimes, when a tree has been found near a borderline, entire villages have been wiped out in the struggle to possess 1t.

It is impossible to compare the fruit of the durian tree with its extraordinary odor and flavor, to any other. The fruit is creamlike in substance. If the meat of a banana were squashed and mixed with an equal quantity of rich cream, a small quantity of chocolate and enough garlic to lend a strong taste to the whole, the result would be about the nearest possible approach to the flavor and consistency of the durian. At the same time, the flavor is extremely delicate and, of course, indescribably rich.

Origin of the Ring.

In the course of a lecture on "Predous Stones," Professor Gordon said that early jewelry did not seem to have been set in rings. One of the earliest examples of the use of rings in statuary was in the statues of Prometheus, who, when released from bondage on the intercession of Venus, wore a ring with a small piece of the Caucasus in it to show that he was still chained to the Caucasus. The idea of a ring being a sign of bondage has continued since those days.

Bishops and doctors wore rings by right because they had signed away their independence in order to benefit
