Hears's Mistake.

Late reports state that Mr. Hearst is jealous of Bryan, and desiring the Presidential nomination, has barred Mr. Bryan's name from appearing in all of his papers. This is an act so silly as to be pitiable, and indicates the weakness of jealousy. It means the death knell to Mr. Hearst's aspirations, and reveals a weakness in his character that many of his friends always feared might exist. It means the fall of Hearst as a national figure, and in proportion as he falls, so will Bryan rise all the higher.

Amende Honorable.

While the Tribune has its preferences for candidates in common with others, it has no desire to treat anyone unfairly, and will not knowingly do so. In a "colloquy" that appeared in the Tribune a short time ago, Mr. Toole was designated as a "Saloon Keeper" on information gathered from an exchange. We have since received emphatic assurances that the information was not true, and we make this issue of doing the "Amende honorable," and hope that Mr. Toole, and all candidates, will lose no votes because of accusations and insinuations that are false.

Senatorial Scribble.

There are now five Republican candidates for U. S. Senator. Three of them are able men—the fourth, E. L. Smith is an admirable, while the fifth H. M. Cate of Portland is but little known except as a politician, a not very commendable profession as practiced in recent years. Jonathan Bourne is perhaps the ablest man of the lot. No man in Oregon has stood up more manfully than Mr. Bourne for the rights of the people, and but for him the politicians would now be over-riding the Direct Primary. The people owe him something for the great efforts he has put forth, to enlighten the people and beat down the tricksters that have sought to defy this law. Jonathan Bourne is the People's friend, and the People would be ungrateful to forget him at the Primary Election.

Paper Money(?)

"Did you ever see any paper money?" asked a fellow of another the other day. "Certainly I have." "I'll bet you five dollars to one that you have never seen paper money in your life!" "I will not bet, but what are greenbacks, bank notes, and certificates etc if not money?" "They are notes—mere promises to pay." "Well! well! I hadn't thought of that." "Does a twenty dollar piece promise to pay? No, it is pay. When gold gets too plentiful as it surely will, the nations will have to adopt a uniform system of paper money. It will not be promises to pay, but it will be pay, just as our twenty dollar piece is. We will then have scientific, civilized money, and the great waste of human energy thrown away in the mad hunt for gold, will be employed in creating something useful to mankind."

The Machine Dies Hard.

Editor TRIBUNE:—The Bosses would be Bosses in both the old parties have not been happy since the people have undertaken party management under their primary election law, and have been vigorously seeking places to butt in. Some time ago chairman Baker called the Republican clubs together at Portland. This convention produced barren results except that it gave W. D. Fenton the opportunity to roast the primary election law. He insists that the people are incapable of managing political affairs, and hence require "intelligent direction." He fails to state that the source of his "intelligent direction" is the Southern Pacific Octopus.

There quite recently about seventy five self-appointed Democrats congregated at Portland and proceeded to formulate a platform. This piece of impertinence was quite eclipsed by another one which involved the "inviting" of certain gentlemen already in the field, to stand for office under the primary law. Such exhibitions, promoted by the old political rounders are quite harmless, yet they prove that the gang dies hard.

My prediction is that the people will never surrender the advantage promised, and that the Direct Primary Law with a few possible amendments will grow in popularity with the years to come.

Nearly all the Southern states have adopted a sort of voluntary primary system and adhere to its workings with something akin to religious fidelity. In fact they cast a larger vote at their primaries in many states than they do at their general elections. After this machine was put in motion, the "plain common people" made short work of the pretensions of the ultra-spectable aristocrats who had been in the middle for so long a period that the memory of man ran not to the contrary. Without recourse to their primary machinery the people had never been able to dislodge such "superior" beings as Wade Hampton and his pal, Butler of South Carolina; the Hayards of Delaware, Jones of Arkansas, Mills of Texas and many others from seats in the United States Senate.

Many Democratic and Republican candidates for the Legislature in this state staid pledged to support for the United States Senate the candidate who received the largest number of votes at the April primary, be he Republican or Democrat. Such action will be in accordance with the letter and spirit of the primary law, and I regret to see a disposition on the part of the Oregonian to encourage boistering on the puerile plea that probably none of the candidates for Senator will have a majority over all, and we will therefore have a "plurality" candidate. That paper seems to forget, if it ever knew, that we have even had plurality Presidents. Judge Lord was a minority Governor. It is not unusual, where more than two candidates run for the same office for the successful one to lack a majority of the votes cast.

Communication. We are informed on the most reliable authority that Col. I. N. Munroy is about to announce himself as candidate for the nomination of Joint Representative on the Republican ticket. If such be the case we are glad to hear it; as the Col. I am sure would be the choice of a large majority of the voters of both parties of this Col. Now, we know of no more forceful character than the Col.; his high literary and scholarly attainments easily place him in the front rank of "Newspaper" Editors. The Col. being a graduate of Yale, and post-graduate of Harvard, peculiarly fit him for a seat beside Oregon's greatest Jurors, Statesmen and Poets. He is a close student, and finds time from his many cares as Editor to inform himself on every conceivable subject that will have the least interest for the reading public. As an orator, there can not be the least doubt of his ability. His telling speeches in behalf of the Hon. J. G. Blaine, all over the east, won for him the title of the "Silver Tongued Orator"; and later, his efforts in the interest of the late Wm. McKinley prompted our marveled President to offer him the portfolio of Minister plenipotentiary to Austria, which the Col. refused, for reasons only known to himself. The Col. is now studying the art of mind reading and palmistry, preparatory to entering public life, so as he can more readily cope with the intricacies of the Legislative minds with which he will come in contact when he enters the arena at Oregon's capital as the acknowledged champion of Coos and Curry. In any case, the Col's presence as a minister of the Gospel, in the halls of the Legislature, will have a moralizing effect on the minds of those who would otherwise stray from the path of virtue, and give him a standing for honesty, ability and integrity far above his fellows.

As a poet, the Col. is the peer of many who have gained fame and honor all over America. Such brilliancy of imagination and copiousness of metaphor, is only to be found in such great minds as Shakespeare, Byron, Scott and Long fellow. He is a voluminous writer and is found continually in his office at Gold Beach, pen in hand, recording those great thoughts, that have made him famous, for the readers of the "Gold Beach Globe." Witness his great work on "Curry Co. and her Mineral Resources" which I believe will soon be published in book form, to meet a growing demand from Eastern readers who wish to know more about this Co. than can be found in a less comprehensive form. The wit and humor of the Col., with which he is abnormally endowed is unbounded, and when a joke is to be practiced, he will not hesitate at a mild variation from the truth. The following story, for which I will not vouch as to its originality, is a fair illustration of his capacity at gentle prevarication: "A private in the Col's regiment by the name of Patrick O'Doyle, asked the Col. for a two week's leave of absence. The Col. being a severe disciplinarian did not believe in extending too many privileges, and did not hesitate at a subterfuge in evading the granting of one. "Well," said the Col., "what do you want a furlough for?" Patrick answered: "Me wife is very sick and the children are not well, and if ye didn't mind she would like to have me at home for a few weeks to give her a bit of assistance." The Col. eyed him for a few minutes and said: "Patrick I might grant your request, but I got a letter from your wife this morning, saying that she did not want you home and that you were a nuisance, and raised the devil when you were there. She hopes I won't let you have any more furloughs." "That settles it, I suppose I can't get the furlough then," said Pat. "No, I'm afraid not Patrick, it wouldn't be well for me to do so under the circumstances." It was Patrick's turn now to eye the Col. as he started for the door, stopping suddenly. He said: "Col. can I say something to ye?" "Certainly Patrick, what is it?" "You won't get mad Col. if I say so?" "Certainly not Patrick, what is it?" "Col. there are two of the biggest liars in this room as stands in the Regiment, and o'm wan of them, for upon my soul I never was married in me life."

Too much can not be said in favor of such a man as I. N. Munroy. As is well known, the Col. is an ardent advocate of Woman's Rights and is about to organize a society of ladies at Gold Beach, for the abolition of dish washing; and who knows, but that like Senator Clark of Missouri, with a judicial expenditure of his millions, he may yet do the Toga and be O'Regan's brightest star at the seat of government.

H. O'NEIL, Gold Beach, Ore.

For State Treasurer.

Of the six candidates there are three bankers, one quasi banker or warrant broker, and one farmer, Mr. George Steele, of Clackamas county. Mr. Steele was formerly connected with the street railway systems of Portland, having built the lines to Oregon City, Mt. Scott etc., but for the last ten years has devoted his time and energies to the improvement and cultivation of his farm in Clackamas county.

He is a well known and respected citizen of this state, and has held positions of trust that have especially fitted him for the position of state treasurer. He has promoted a number of enterprises of great benefit to the community and the state, and has employed many men. They all have a good word for "Uncle" George as they called him, and say that he was more like a father to them than an employer. Mr. Steele will make a good run for the nomination.—Portland Labor Press.

U. S. Senate, Mar. 10, '06. Mr Frank A. Stewart Port Orford, Oregon.

My Dear Mr Stewart: I have received your letter enclosing remonstrance and clipping in the matter of the Rogue River forest reserve. I am glad to receive the remonstrance, as I have been holding the matter up hoping to secure some representation on the subject from the people interested. The chief of the forestry bureau, Mr. Pinchot, seems determined to have this reserve established. I have taken the matter up with the President, and he has promised to refrain from making any further move in the matter until the people interested can be fully heard.

In regard to the report on the feasibility and necessity of establishing a life-saving station at Port Orford, I will take the matter up with the department at once, and endeavor to secure you a report.

Very Respectfully Yours, C. W. FULFON.

Chicago, March 12.—A sweeping traction victory was won by Chicago today when the Supreme Court of the United States decided that the act of the State of Illinois extending the lives of the street-car companies to 99 years is constitutional, but that it does not operate to extend contracts for occupation of the streets, which contracts had been expressly limited in time by ordinances permitting the corporations to occupy public highways. The 99 year act, therefore, though valid, is valueless and the municipal party is master of the situation. All of the companies, with the exception of some unimportant feeders, are now occupying the streets solely through sufferance. The city may terminate their existence at any moment. This clears the way for municipal ownership and gives the city a tremendous bludgeon to swing over the heads of the companies in effecting a settlement or purchase of existing properties. Briefly, all trunk lines in Chicago are left without a leg to stand upon.—Oregonian.
