

TALE OF A "STUFFER"

"Yodel" "stuffed" papers for a living. In case the reader does not understand what this is, it will be explained that the "stuffer" of newspapers is one of the most laborious branches of work connected with the great Sunday paper. The magazines, comic, want ad and other sections of the Sunday paper are printed earlier in the week, and from Thursday until Sunday morning dozens of hands are kept busy inserting these parts into one harmonious whole.

Even the latest type of process cannot perform this class of work, which offers employment to many newboys and inhabitants of "Newsboy" alley, who earn as much as $18 in four days' time. Of this class was "Yodel."

Down in the subterranean depths of a paper office, with the roar of the giant presses reverberating in his ears worked this representative type of the "stuffer." At the surrounding tables three other "sleepers" labored, and while they labored they sang. One day "Yodel" chimed in the chorus and then started to yodel after the fashion of the Swiss singers whom he had heard from the gallery seat of a vaudeville theater.

High above the noise of the presses his voice rang out and every one of the 50 "stuffers" stopped their work and stared at him in astonishment. Then every one seemed to simultaneously start their hands to clapping. "Yodel" was the boy's name thereafter.

"Big" Bill, the foreman of the "stuffers," was the only one who did not "Yodel." Something about the lad's delicate face and his coarse nature like a red rag waved in the face of a bull. In that room, where every inmate had an interesting story of his former life to tell, "Yodel" was instinctively recognized as having fallen from a higher estate.

"Big" Bill knew this, and the boy always irritated him. On a busy Saturday afternoon "Yodel" had just finished warbling with his birdlike voice when "Big" Bill stepped up to him.

"You want to cut that out!" he cried. "I've stood it six weeks and I ain't got to stand it any longer. The boys can't do their work while they're listening to you. If you ever make that noise, you call yodeling, again—I'll fire you, see!"

"Yodel" did not reply to this tirade, for he did not want to lose his position. But when the foreman had walked away "Yodel" was surrounded by a group of sympathizers.

"That fellow don't like me," he said. "Why, my old man used to order around dozens of fellows like him."

"What did you run away from home for, Yodel?" asked a sympathetic listener.

"I don't know. Just got tired of it, I guess," answered the wail. "Had a swell home up on Diversey street, but I got the 'bumming' habit and drifted to the alley."

"That's where Big Bill goes," said another "stuffer," "up on Diversey street to see his girl. I heard him telling Johnson about it."

"Diversity street is a long thoroughfare," replied "Yodel," and the whole crowd laughed.

Saturday night a press broke down and delayed the "stuffers." Finally when papers again began to appear on the table the boys were kept busy working like hounds to get the mail edition out. Nobody sang or whistled; every one was laboring like a Trojan, and no one noticed that "Big" Bill was showing a group of friends the sights of the "retelling" room.

"Yodel" glanced at the party, and his face paled, while his eyes glittered with excitement, as he looked at the face of a girl in the group.

"Now, watch the fun," he whispered to his right-hand fellow worker. "Yodel" threw back his head and caroled. Up, up—high above the noise of the mailing room rose his silvery voice, and every one looked around in astonishment.

"Big" Bill's face turned red as fire, and he hastened over to the boy, followed by the rest of his friends.

"I'll fire you!" he shouted. "I told you not to holler any more, didn't I? For two cents I'd throw you out the door."

But the newboy was not listening to "Big" Bill. Neither was the rest of the group. The girl was staring at "Yodel" and "Yodel" was smiling back at her.

"Henry!" she screamed. "Why, Henry!"

"Hello, sister," said "Yodel." "Say, do you go with this big dub?" he asked defiantly. "I'll come back home if you'll promise to turn him down!"

"You ought to have seen Big Bill," said "Yodel" the next day, when, resplendent in a new suit of clothes, he strode back to the "alley." "Say, he tried to square himself, but she passed him up. It was no go after what I told her. Ma? Oh, I'm going back to school. No more stuffing for mine."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Handicapped.

There was a slight gas and some talk of shoving back and forth, but the drummer, "I can keep right on selling straight fronts to the merchants."

"No chance for business for me, however," declared the corpulent drummer. "Why not?"

"I sell slippers."—Chicago Sun.
