A King's Economy.

An example of George III.'s economies is so curious as almost to suggest that it must have betokened approaching insanity. He actually let out the cream colored horses used for his state coach to a jobmaster, who "thinks from the great receipt of custom that they will draw him into an easy fortune."

Augustin Daly's Wit.

An actor who knew Augustin Daly well told this story of the great theatrical manager's ready wit:

"We both chanced to be depositors in and victims of a bank which suspended payment. Like others, when the news of the disaster became known we hurried off to the bank to pick up what information we could, and coming down the steps from the offices into the street Mr. Daly's foot caught in the mat, and, with some difficulty, he managed to save himself from falling. I was entering the building, and, seeing the mishap, I ran up, saying:

"'I hope you have not hurt yourself.'

"'Oh, no; thank you,' he replied. 'I only lost my balance.'"

The Skin of My Teeth.

In the book of Job appears the sentence, "I am escaped with the skin of my teeth," which is modernized "by the skin of my teeth" and gives the idea of a narrow escape, one so close as to be just by the thickness of the skin on the teeth, which is so thin that no microscopist has yet been able to find it. "To cast in the teeth" means to throw defiant reproaches or insults spitefully, as one would cast a stone at the exposed teeth of a snarling dog. "Tooth and nail" denotes the manner of an action full of frenzied fury, typified by biting and scratching, as when two belligerent cats make the fur fly.

A Diligent Police Official.

A man who was "wanted" in Russia had been photographed in six different positions, and the pictures were duly circulated among the police departments. The chief of one of these wrote to headquarters a few days after the issue of the set of portraits and stated: "Sir, I have duly received the portrait of the six miscreants whose capture is desired. I have arrested five of them, and the sixth is under observation and will be secured shortly."

According to Gunter.

The phrase "according to Gunter" remains in our language as a perpetual memory of Gunter, the English mathematician, who was born in 1581 and died in 1626. Almost to the present time the works of Gunter were considered standard. He was the inventor of the surveyor's chain, of the logarithmic line, of the quadrant, of the scale bearing his name, and anything in mathematics to be right must be "according to Gunter."

His Dyspepsia.

"You say you take half an hour for luncheon every day?"

"Yes."

"Well, you ought not to have dyspepsia."

"But, you see, I spend twenty-five of those minutes deciding what I want to eat."—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

A Windfall.

"You say his money fell to him?"

"No. He fell to it—tumbled through a coal hole and sued the city."—Chicago Herald.

The Life of a Coal Miner.

First, the boy of eight or ten is sent to the breaker to pick the slate and other impurities from the coal which has been brought up from the mine. From there he is promoted and becomes a door boy, working in the mine. As he grows older and stronger he is advanced to the position and given the pay of a laborer. There he gains the experience which secures him a place as a miner's helper, and as he acquires skill and strength he becomes, when in the height of his manhood and vigor, a full fledged miner.

If he is fortunate enough to escape the falls of rock and coal, he may retain this position as a miner for a number of years. But as age creeps on and he is attacked by some of the many diseases incident to work in the mines he makes way for those younger and more vigorous following him up the ladder whose summit he has reached. He then starts on the descent, going back to become a miner's helper, then a mine laborer, now a door boy, and when old and decrepit he finally returns to the breaker where he started as a child, earning the same wages as are received by the little urchins who work at his side. There is no incentive for ambition in the average miner's life. He cannot rise to places of eminence and wealth. Only 1 in 500 can even be given place as a foreman or superintendent, and these are positions which few miners care to hold.—John Mitchell in Cosmopolitan.

For His Reputation, $500.

The proprietor of a large dry goods store had decided to tear down the old building and erect a new one in its stead. In furtherance of this plan he was removing his goods to temporary quarters in another building.

The goods were nearly all out of the old structure when from some unknown cause it caught fire. The department was promptly on hand and soon had a stream playing on the flames, but the merchant was wild with excitement. Running up to the chief, he urged him to greater haste.

"Never mind the goods!" he shouted. "Save the building! I'll give the boys a check for $500 for their pension fund if they don't let the fire spread beyond that floor!"

"Why, you're going to tear the old building down anyway, aren't you?" asked the chief.

"Yes," he said, "but do you suppose I want the insurance companies or anybody on earth to think that's the reason why it caught fire?"

By great exertion the fire was extinguished with little loss so far as the building was concerned, and the merchant was as good as his word.—Youth's Companion.

FROM FOREIGN FIELDS.

The Berlin police authorities intend to take severe measures to suppress the practice of playing poker in public places.

Wildcats are on the increase in Scotland. One measuring four feet long was captured in a trap in Poolewe a few weeks ago.

The Liverpool police have stopped the practice—common there—of canvassing for the sale of coffins at houses where a death has taken place.

It is expected that the expenses of Germany's colony in Southwest Africa will reach over $70,000,000 before the present insurrection is put down.

"This is a gross case," said a Manchester magistrate to a prisoner, who was making his one hundred and forty-fourth appearence before him for drunkenness.

The French army administration is organizing an extensive automobile train service, to be used as convoys. The trains are built after the designs of Col. Renard, a well-known writer on military topics.

The British Army and Navy Gazette asks: "Is it not a sign of racial degeneration when our soldiers feel pride in wearing upon their breasts in the recognized place for war decorations, medals gained through attending processions?"

While the foundations for the Londonderry new municipal technical schools were being made recently a large number of human skeletons were unearthed. The place is near the Royal Bastion, where there was heavy fighting during the siege in 1688.

The British war department is alarmed at the horse outlook. The development of the auto is diminishing the horse breeding business, the class of horses demanded for war purposes is deteriorating, and foreign purchasers are draining the available supply.

SCIENTIFIC SPECIALS.

A cigarette smoker sends into the air about 4,000,000,000 particles of dust at every puff, according to Dr. Atkins' investigations.

Experiments justify the conclusion that increasing the intensity of light 100,000 times does not alter its velocity by as much as two feet a second.

The degree of humidity of the atmosphere, says M. Jaubert, a Paris meteorologist, is shown by the state of the pavements. When these remain covered with mud there will be no immediate change in the weather.

The famous French chemist, Berthelot, has made experiments which show that a gramme of iodoform exposed to the air will lose only a billionth part of a gramme in an hour, and a gramme of musk only a thousandth part of that.

Studies at the Yerkes observatory have determined the varying periods of the solar rotation, in zones five degrees wide, from the equator to latitude 35 degrees. Within five degrees of the equator, on either side, the period of rotation is a trifle more than 24½ days. The length of the period gradually increases toward the poles, becoming about 25¼ days between latitude 15 degrees and latitude 20 degrees, and nearly 25 1-3 days between latitude 30 degrees and latitude 35 degrees.
