TALE OF A "STUFFER"

"Yodel" "stuffed" papers for a living. In case the reader does not understand what this art is, it will be explained that the "stuffing" of newspapers is one of the most laborious branches of work connected with the great Sunday issues. The magazine, comic, want ad and other sections of the Sunday paper are printed earlier in the week, and from Thursday until Sunday morning dozens of hands are kept busy inserting these parts into one harmonious whole.

Even the latest type of presses cannot perform this class of work, which offers employment to many newsboys and inhabitants of "Newsboys' alley," who earn as much as $18 in four days' time. Of this class was "Yodel."

Down in the subterranean depths of a paper office, with the roar of the giant presses reverberating in his ears worked this representative type of the "alley." At the surrounding tables three other "sleepouts" labored, and while they labored they sang. One day "Yodel" chimed in the choruses and then started to yodel after the fashion of the Swiss singers whom he had heard from the gallery seat of a vaudeville theater.

High above the noises of the presses his voice rang out and every one of the 50 "stuffers" stopped their work and stared at him in astonishment. Then every one seemed to simultaneously start their hands to clapping. "Yodel" was the boy's name thereafter.

"Big" Bill, the foreman of the "stuffers," was the only one who disliked "Yodel." Something about the lad's delicate face acted on his coarse nature like a red rag waved in the face of a bull. In that room, where every inmate had an interesting story of his former life to tell, "Yodel" was instinctively recognized as having fallen from a higher estate.

"Big" Bill knew this, and the boy always irritated him. On a busy Saturday afternoon "Yodel" had just finished warbling with his birdlike voice when "Big" Bill stepped up to him.

"You want to cut that out!" he cried. "I've stood it six weeks an' I ain't goin' to stand it any longer. The boys can't do their work while they're listening to you. If you ever make that noise, you call yodeling, again—I'll fire you, see!"

"Yodel" did not reply to this tirade, for he did not want to lose his position. But when the foreman had walked away "Yodel" was surrounded by a group of sympathizers.

"That fellow don't like me," he said. "Why, my old man used to order around dozens of fellows like him."

What did you run away from home for, 'Yodel?'" asked a sympathetic listener.

"I don't know. Just got tired of it, I guess," answered the waif. "Had a swell home up on Diversey street, but I got the 'humming' habit an' drifted to the alley."

"That's where Big Bill goes," said another "stuffer," "up on Diversey street to see his girl. I heard him telling Johnson about it."

"Diversey street is a long thoroughfare," replied "Yodel," and the whole crowd laughed.

Saturday night a press broke down and delayed the "stuffers." Finally when papers again began to appear on the table the boys were kept busy working like fiends to get the mail edition out. Nobody sang or whistled; every one was laboring like a Trojan, and no one noticed that "Big" Bill was showing a group of friends the sights of the "stuffing" room. "Yodel" glanced at the party, and his face paled, while his eyes glittered with excitement, as he looked at the face of a girl in the group.

"Now, watch the fun," he whispered to his right-hand fellow worker. "Yodel" threw back his head and caroled. Up, up—high above the noises of the mailing room rose his silvery voice, and every one looked around in astonishment.

"Big" Bill's face turned red as fire, and he hastened over to the boy, followed by the rest of his friends.

"I'll fire you!" he shouted. "I told you not to holler any more, didn't I? For two cents I'd throw you out the door—"

But the newsboy was not listening to "Big" Bill. Neither was the rest of the group. The girl was staring at "Yodel" and "Yodel" was smiling back at her.

"Henry!" she screamed. "Why, Henry!"

"Hello, sister," said "Yodel." "Say, do you go with this big dub?" he snorted defiantly. "I'll come back home if you'll promise to turn him down!"

"You ought to have seen Big Bill," said "Yodel" the next day, when, resplendent in a new suit of clothes, he strolled back to the "alley." "Say, he tried to square himself, but sis' passed him up. It was no go after what I told her. Me? Oh, I'm going back to school. No more stuffin' for mine."—Chicago Record-Herald.

"Well, if we go down," said the corset drummer, "I can keep right on selling straight fronts to the mermaids."

"No chance for business for me, however," declared the corpulent drummer. "Why not?"

"I sell slippers."—Chicago Sun.

LARGEST MILL IN WORLD.

Big Device Located Near San Francisco—Pumps 200,000 Gallons of Water Every 24 Hours.

The largest windmill in the United States, if, indeed, not the largest in the whole world, has recently been constructed near San Francisco, says the American Inventor. This gigantic mill is located directly on the ocean beach, near the famous Seal Rocks. It is used for pumping water up into Golden Gate park.

The huge, strong wooden tower supporting the wind arms rises 150 feet. It is 40 feet square at the base, very securely anchored and gradually tapers upward, assuming a round shape. There are four immense wooden arms or vanes. Each arm measures 80 feet from the center or hub—thus making a diameter of 160 feet in the describing circle. The wind vanes are six feet wide and extend nearly the entire length of the huge arm, thus affording the greatest possible amount of wing space for catching the air.

The windmill is located upon a prominent elevation, so that it may catch every available wind arising in that section.

This colossal windmill is capable of developing about 50-horse-power—its maximum capacity. Its pumping capacity is 200,000 gallons of water every 24 hours. The water is taken from the wells and forced through a large iron main, 16 inches in diameter, for nearly four miles up into an immense reservoir several hundred feet higher than the ocean beach. From this reservoir the water is distributed in all directions through the park.

During the dry, hot season the arms of this giant windmill are kept whirling day and night to supply the thirsty demand. As the mill stands on the wide, open beach, there is rarely, if ever, any lack of wind; in fact, the wind occasionally blows with such violence that the mill is compelled to be shut down, as it would be risky to attempt to run it during a fierce gale.

REAL BARGAIN TO INDIAN.

White Man's Method of Securing Wife a Source of Much Amusement to Red Man.

The author of "Canadian Savage Folk" has much to tell of Indian life and character before the savage had come in contact with civilization. This information is of the greatest interest because so few of the tribes are left who have not come under the influence of white teaching and example.

Anxious to learn all I could about the marriage customs of the people, says the author, I asked one of my friends: "How many wives have you?"

"Three," said he.

"How did you get them?"

"Well, I gave a horse for the first one. She was not very good looking, so I got her for one horse. The second one was good looking and a good cook, so I paid two horses for her. The third was a beauty. She was a good cook and she had a fine disposition; I gave three horses and a gun and a saddle for her. She was a beauty!"

After narrating this in a businesslike fashion he turned to me and said: "Apawakas, how many horses did you pay for her?"

"Apawakas" is the Indian name of my wife. It means White Antelope. I was rather taken aback to have the fables turned upon me so quickly, but determined to make the best of the situation, so I proceeded to tell the Indian the white man's method of obtaining a wife.

Afterward the explanation was given of setting up housekeeping, and I told him that the mother-in-law provided pillows, blankets, and many of the necessary things for the house.

When this point was reached the red men could not restrain their laughter any longer. They shook with amusement at the strange customs of the white men. After they were able to control themselves, one of them said: "They paid you for taking her!"
