Number 51

CITATION.

In the County Court of the State of Oregon, for the County of Curry.

In the matter of the Estate of Joseph Hare, deceased.

To sisters, E. England, names and ages unknown, and to all heirs known and unknown of Joseph Hare, deceased, greeting:

In the name of the State of Oregon, You are hereby cited and required to appear in the County Court of the State of Oregon, for the County of Curry in the Courtroom thereof, at Gold Beach, Curry County, Ore., on Monday, the 6th day of January, 1908, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day then and there to show cause, if any you have, or if any exist, why said Court should not make an order directing the administrator of the above named Estate, to sell the real property belonging to said Estate, to-wit:

The W 1/2 of SW 1/4 of Sec. 28 & N 1/2 of NW 1/4 of Sec. 33, Tp. 30 S., R. 14 West, containing 100 acres and situated in Curry County, State of Oregon, to pay the claims and charges now outstanding against said Estate.

This citation is served by publication thereof, by virtue of an order of Hon. E. A. Bailey, County Judge of Curry County, Oregon.

The date of the first publication of this Citation is December 11th, 1908.

H. B. SMITH, Administrator of the Estate of Joseph Hare, deceased.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Don't Know It.

How To Find Out. Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys. If it stains your linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

What to Do. There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects the ability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists at 50c. and $1. sizes. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful discovery and a book that tells more about it, both sent absolutely free by mail, address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper.

HOUSEWORK. Too much housework wrecks women's nerves. And the constant care of children, day and night, is often too trying for even a strong woman. A haggard face tells the story of the overworked housewife and mother. Deregulated menses, leucorrhoea and falling of the womb result from overwork. Every housewife needs a remedy to regulate her menses and to keep her sensitive female organs in perfect condition.

WINE OF CARDUI. It is doing this for thousands of American women to-day. It cured Mrs. Jones and that is why she writes this frank letter:

Glendens, Ky., Feb. 13, 1901. I am so glad that your Wine of Cardui is helping me. I am feeling better than I have felt for years. I am doing my own work without any help, and I washed last week and was not tired. That shows that the Wine is doing me good. I am getting fatter than I ever was before, and sleep good and eat heartily. Before I began taking Wine of Cardui, I used to have to lay down five or six times every day, but now I do not think of lying down through the day.

GREAT SALES prove the great merit of Hood's Sarsaparilla. Hood's Sarsaparilla sells because it accomplishes GREAT CURES.

THE NEW NEIGHBORS

When the "To Rent" sign was removed from the windows of the flat below them the Lightbodies felt that the situation was critical. The Chicago indifference to neighbors can hardly extend to the occupants of the adjoining flat, who share your front door and stairway, and whose domestic jars are likely to affect the peace of the building as a whole. The Lightbodies did not go so far as to expect the newcomers would be congenial, but they cherished the hope that they might be inoffensive.

Mrs. Lightbody was favored with the first glimpse of her future neighbors, and her impressions were distinctly favorable. Even in a gingham apron and with disheveled hair, the girlish wife looked pretty and attractive, while the young husband was so courteously helpful as to suggest that the honeymoon days were not far distant. Mrs. Lightbody does not need any more time to make up her mind than most women require, and she told Lightbody when he came home that night that the new people were acquisitions.

Lightbody admitted to a superior fashion and smiled her "go slow." Yet though he was obliged to take the stand to uphold the judicial quality of the masculine mind, in his heart he was quite inclined to agree with her. He had met Mr. Bruce in the hall as he came upstairs, and had allowed himself to indulge in the hope that he played whist. To have a congenial whist left little to be desired, in Lightbody's estimation. And when the next afternoon he caught a glimpse of Mrs. Bruce in a pretty home gown, looking as fresh and sweet as if moving day were six months distant, Lightbody capitulated.

"Well call upon them, my dear," he remarked to Mrs. Lightbody. "We won't be in a hurry about it, as if we had just been waiting for them to arrive, but after a suitable time we'll call upon them."

The Bruce had a house-warming before the acquaintance between the families had progressed any further than the point of saying good morning on the stairs. They had been in their new quarters just a week. "They're the hospitable sort, and I like that," said Lightbody. "Haven't any use for the people who can't make friends. You'd better arrange it so that we can call next week, my dear. This postponement is hardly neighborly."

Lightbody checked himself to listen to a note in the flat below. It was the sort of note which does not call for strained attention, an aggressive, penetrating, whole-souled uproar, which swelled to the proportions of a Comanche warwhoop and died away in a succession of little shrieks in feminine voices with a rumbling undertone of bass. The Lightbodies looked at each other, and Mrs. Lightbody exclaimed: "Wonder what can have happened."

Before they had wasted any time in conjectures the uproar began again. It continued for some moments, while the expression of surprised disapproval on Lightbody's face became more and more pronounced. Mrs. Lightbody took advantage of the first lull to remark timidly that they seemed to be having a good time.

"A good time!" repeated Lightbody in withering tones. "They are having a drunken carousal, if you call that a good time. It's an outrage that such people should gain admission to a respectable building. There's one thing about it, either they go or I do."

Lightbody's indignation did not cool during the evening. To be frank it had no chance. The noise was practically continuous. Periods of unorthodox shouting were interspersed by intervals of inane laughter. Had he not feared to leave his wife alone, Lightbody would have interviewed the landlord that very evening.

Shortly before 11 o'clock the noise ceased abruptly. Mrs. Lightbody thought this strange, but Lightbody had no time to think of it beyond the noisy stage. When the company broke up it was a matter of surprise to him that so many of them were able to go home, and he hinted darkly that they might find several of them in the hall in the morning, sleeping off the effects of their potations. Mrs. Lightbody shuddered and agreed with him that it would be advisable to look for a house in the suburbs.

Lightbody did not find any human footman and jettison in the hall next morning, but he did meet Mr. Bruce. That gentleman bore no trace of the carousal with which he had been connected. Freshly shaved and with clear, bright eyes, he was distinctly good to look upon.

"Hope we didn't disturb you last night," said Mr. Bruce, addressing Lightbody. "My wife and I aren't used to fats. When we started in to play 'Pit' we forgot that perhaps our neighbors were getting the worst of it. It's a noisy little game, but there's lots of fun in it."

Lightbody's face had undergone several changes, but he made a quick recovery. "I prefer what myself," he said. "Do you play? Then we'll have to try a game some evening. Have a cigar? My wife and I have been planning to call, but we thought we'd wait and give you folks a chance to get settled. This evening, you say? Very well, if you're sure Mrs. Bruce won't be too tired you may expect us." Chicago Record-Herald.
