The Forest Reserve

"The forests of this coast section may look exhausted to us now, but wipe them out and the years will not be many until we have barren hills and debris covered valleys."

The above text is taken from the Crescent City News of May 21, wherein the Editor dissents from our views as to the necessity of a Forest Reserve on the west slope of the Coast Range mountains.

It will be noticed that the News ignores our contention that forests here cannot be "wiped-out," and that "barren hills and debris covered valleys" cannot exist in this equable climate, where Nature regularly sprinkles six feet of water yearly on our forests. Here new forests spring up spontaneously with a certainty as fixed as the laws of nature. We have lived in this coast section 43 years, and have crossed the paths of every great forest fire that ever swept through this region, and we know not of a single instance where a new forest has not succeeded the burned ones. We have observed this in the oldest logging camps of both Coos and Curry. Go where you will in the pathway of the great forest fire of 1888 which destroyed more timber in this section than all other fires combined, and everywhere new forests cover the burned area. Not all the men in Oregon working for ten years could plant one hundred parts of the trees in this burned area that nature planted and nurtured to sure and rapid growth. We know of young forests in Curry that have grown since 1870 on logged-off ground that is more valuable in places than the original timber.

The spontaneous growth of forests along the coast has ever been an interesting—not problem, but process to us and to all observing men. The first forest growth after our fires comprises small brush and alders. The latter towers above the brush, and spreading out their tops shades the brush which dies. Then the various conifers shoot their tall heads above the alders—which die as the brush did for want of sunshine. This method of forest growth is so uniform as scarcely to have an exception and we are surprised that a man of such fine perception as the News Editor had not observed it, but it is never too late for the wisest to learn.

Pinchot is excusable for not knowing conditions here, but this can hardly be said of the News writer. And if we are correct, then no individual should lend his influence to perpetuate a policy that is unprofitable and unnecessary—a policy that robs our county of more than half its domain, and dooms her to everlasting poverty and inconvenience by depriving her of her share of assessable wealth.

When the Hair Falls

Then it's time to act! No time to study, to read, to experiment! You want to save your hair, and save it quickly, too! So make up your mind this very minute that if your hair ever comes out you will use Ayer's Hair Vigor. It makes the scalp healthy. The hair stays in. It cannot do anything else. It's nature's way.

U'Ren's letter telling why Chamberlain should not, and will not, be United States Senator, is the masterpiece of the Oregon campaign, but it came too late for most of our voters to read.

There are some strong objections to the Speed Program for the District Fair to be held in Marshfield, as it elevates the trotters and pacers which are popular bred, over the thoroughbreds. It is a mistake, which will be condemned by well-informed stockmen. The thoroughbred stands supreme at the head of all equine flesh, and any effort to lower his standard is not in harmony with an age of progress.

There is but little doubt that the Gault railroad now in S. E. Oregon is aiming to reach Port Orford by the most direct route. Here on the most western rim of the United States lies the deepest and most convenient harbor on the Pacific coast. It can be made secure at small cost, and our railroad leaders know it. The largest ships possible to make could arrive and depart without having to cross shallow bars or travel into the interior to load or unload. The great "Pacific Question" will force the proper recognition of Port Orford before long, and the proposed breakwater will be built as recommended by our most competent gray-haired engineers.

A Delightful Summer Dish.

"A chaffroid of salmon is suitable for the piece de resistance of a warm dinner or luncheon during the warm season," says Fannie Merritt Farmer in WOMAN'S HOME COMPANION for June. "Take the contents of one can of salmon or equal weight in cold boiled fish, remove skin and bones, and separate in flakes. If the canned product is used, first rinse very thoroughly with hot water. Mix one table-spoonful of flour, one half table-spoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of mustard and a few grains of cayenne. Add one egg slightly beaten, one and one half table-spoonfuls of melted butter, three table-spoonfuls of vinegar and three fourths of a cupful of milk. Cook over hot water until the mixture thickens like a soft custard, stirring constantly at first and afterward occasionally. Remove from the range and add three fourths of a table-spoonful of granulated gelatine soaked in two table-spoonfuls of cold water. Strain the mixture, add to the fish, and turn into individual molds or a brick mold. Chill thoroughly and remove from the mold or molds to a serving dish. If I mold the mixture for individual service I usually surround the portions with cucumber sauce and garnish each with a slice of cucumber. If I have a large mold I arrange it on a bed of lettuce and serve with frozen horseradish sauce."

Exposition Notes.

The Missouri building at the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition will be started about July 1st and rushed to completion.

A salmon cannery in operation will be one of the many interesting moving exhibits at the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition.

Another large permanent building, the Fine Arts Palace, has been started at the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition. It will be of buff brick.

An electric tower similar to the famous one at the Buffalo exposition but with many new effects, will be one of the decorative features of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition.

California's building at the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition will be a handsome structure. It will be one of the largest state buildings on the grounds and will be old Mission in design.

Pierce county, Washington, in which the city of Tacoma is located will spend $75,000 for its participation in the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition. This amount is as much as some of the States have appropriated.

The largest scenic railway ever erected will be an attraction on the Bay Street, the amusement boulevard of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition. It will depict scenes in Alaska, Yukon and in the countries bordering upon the Pacific Ocean.

More than 7,500 persons visit the grounds of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition every fine Sunday to witness the progress made in building. The management takes this as a good sign that the attendance during the exposition will be large.

A medical and surgical building costing $20,000 will be one of the structures of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition. It will contain exhibits of the progress, standing and advancement of the medical and surgical science in America and the rest of the world.

A large motor boat exhibit will have a place on the shore of Lake Washington at the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition. Lake Washington borders the exposition grounds for more than a mile and is the largest fresh water body in the Pacific Northwest. Demonstrations of the different makes of motor boats will be made starting from an ornate boat house.

Oregon's building is about completed. New York has appropriated $75,000 for the Fair and other states are following.

How Is Your Blood?

If you lack strength, are nervous, have no appetite, don't sleep well, get tired easily, your blood is in bad condition. You cannot be strong without pure, rich blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla makes good, rich blood and keeps it good.

SOME RICH ARE SLOW PAY

Notorious Fact Declares Writer That Many in Society Haggle Over Their Bills.

It is notorious that the rich are often scandalously slow in paying their bills. I recall one instance where the wife of a multi-millionaire (she was afterward divorced), took no notice, month after month, of a bill amounting to over $20,000 for her daughter's wedding trossseau, and this bill was not paid for more than a year after the ceremony, and only then because a resourceful collector "held up" the multimillionaire himself in the street one day, and finally got his check, declares Cleveland Moffett, in Success.

I have been told of several rich women in the smart set, two of them very rich, who are wont to haggle over prices in the shops as if they were in genteel poverty. One of these ladies, whose showy Newport fetes are widely proclaimed, tried on a certain occasion, to "beat down" an estimate for candle shades, favors, etc., that she wanted in a hurry for a dinner dance, and, having failed in her effort, she finally exclaimed: "Why, you oughtn't to charge me a cent for these things! Think of the advertising you can get out of it! If you treat me right I'll see that your place is mentioned by all the reporters!"

And another, whose husband is one of the richest men in the world, actually wept before a Fifth avenue dressmaker in her pleadings for a reduction of $150 on the price of a certain garment that she simply had to have but could not afford, she declared, out of the small allowance made her by her husband.

When I was in Newport last summer people were laughing at the latest petty economy of this same husband, who is certainly one of the "closest" of our idle millionaires. He had heard of a new aluminum paint, warranted to keep shiny without much rubbing, and he had forth with given orders that the brasses on his beautiful yacht be smeared over with this paint so that it might reduce his pay roll by the wages of two sailors previously needed to clean these brasses! This gentleman's income must be at least $4,000,000!

WASP BECOMES A HUNTER.

Intelligent Insect Proves a Veritable Octopus in Preying on Its Fellows.

When summer warmth has awakened the maternal instincts of the insect world, the mud-dauber wasp may be seen gathering mortar at the margin of stream, pool or puddle, writes C. H. McCook, in Harper's Magazine. Filling her mandibles, which serve as both spade and hod, she bears the load of mud to some rough surface, rock or wall, or board or beam. She spreads and shapes her mortar, until, after many visits to the mud-bed, she has built a tubular cell about an inch long and three-eighths of an inch wide. Then her huntress instinct awakens and her raids upon the spider realm begin. For within this cylinder the mother mason will put a single egg. In the course of time this will hatch into a ravenous larva, whose natural food is living spiders; and these the mother proceeds to capture and entomb within the mud-daub nursery. On this errand she may be seen hawking over the near cobwebs of various sorts, venturing within the meshed and beaded snares that prove fatal to most in-comers, and sometimes even to herself. If the occupant, expectant of prey, sallies forth to seize the intruder, it finds itself a captive, not a captor. The wasp shakes the silken filament from wings and feet, turns upon the spider, seizes and stings it, bears it to her cell, and thrusts it therein.

It cures you who suffer from indigestion, nervousness, headache, dizziness, and all the ailments that result from impure blood. It is a sure cure for all these troubles, and it is sold everywhere. Price 50 cents per bottle. Sold by all druggists.
