Town and County.

The Jamieson saw mill on Sixes started up again last week and we understand will run all winter.

Walton Miller completed the job of teaming to his homestead and drove the team back to his father's.

Walter Sutton moved his family into town the first of the week for the winter, in order to school the children.

Messrs. Lindberg, Storer Pearce and Marion Zumwalt, will start in soon to repair the Sixes and Crystal creek bridges.

Wm. Sellmer of Bandon, installed a couple of gas lights in Johnston's store last week, and the terrors of darkness will trouble Mr. J. no longer.

John Fromm Sr., his daughter Katie and Miss Magnolia White went up to Bandon last Friday, where Miss Fromm had some dental work done.

The Fish dropped into our harbor Saturday and landed some freight and Chas. Long, the latter having spent a few weeks rambling around in Coos.

The school at Port Orford is progressing nicely with an enrollment of 23 scholars, and one or two additional families will move in from the country in the near future.

We regret that we are compelled to lay over till next week some interesting items from the Wireless Station that were received a little too late in the day for this issue.

F. A. Stewart went down with Walton Miller Friday, and will spend some time visiting at his sister's home on Rogue river. He says he can't stand "backing" at home.

Last Saturday and Sunday were unusually warm for fall days, being as hot in fact as midsummer days, and following the recent rains they did their part towards insuring excellent winter pasturage.

W. E. Burrow and daughter, Mrs. Walter Miller, returned to Ophir last week from a visit to Tennessee. Although having had an enjoyable time they are nevertheless glad to get back to Oregon.

Wm. J. McLain, son of Rev. McLain a former resident of this county, was married a few days ago at Coquille to a Miss Barnum of Roseburg. The young couple will make their home in the latter city.

Mr. and Mrs. Ludwig came in from the Wireless Station at Cape Blanco last Thursday on business, also to enjoy a buggy ride in the bracing breeze, and soothing sunshine that adorned the lovely day.

J. A. Snyder of Harbor, Oregon, would be pleased to receive information about a sorrel horse traveling north which answers the following description: Weight 950 lbs., two white hind feet, foretop cut and ring bone marks on both front feet.

In crossing the Rogue river bar a few days ago the Coast was struck by several heavy seas and came near being wrecked. The windows to the pilot house were broken and the man at the wheel quite severely cut about the face and hands.

The run of salmon in Rogue river continues to increase and we are informed that the seine caught 2000 in one haul a few days ago. The Union Fishery Company, which is shipping the salmon on ice to Coos bay, run short of the cold stuff the other day and some 500 fish spoiled on their hands and were dumped back into the river—an example of the extravagance of greed.

Emery Whitworth, Stephen Spoerl and Nat Perkins, who have homestead locations back of the Carey place near Corbin, were passengers on yesterday's stage for Seattle where they will spend the winter. They are all bright, capable young men, and the kind of citizens our country needs. Mr. Baker, another homesteader in that section drove them up as far as Port Orford.

With the closing of fishing on Rogue river and nothing but small gasoline boats to depend on Port Orford will probably hibernate for a few months during the coming winter, and unless our merchants lay in a good supply of food stuffs there bids fair to be much wailing and gnashing of teeth. A railroad along the coast will alleviate this trouble until such a time as our harbor shall be improved and regular steamer communication with San Francisco resumed.

Dr. David T. Day, a prominent mining man from Portland, will be in Port Orford about the 25th inst.

Dr. Glanville has been confined to his home for the past two weeks with an affliction resembling erysipelas.

E. O. Carter, J. O. Stemmler and Mrs. Dr. Stemmler, all of Myrtle Point, were registered at the Knapp hotel the first of the week.

The Elizabeth called in and took aboard some trucks Sunday, that she had left here during the summer to be used in handling lumber on the wharf.

Saturday was a perfect day on the ocean as well as on land, and O. A. Smith's big lumber carrier, the Nann Smith, took advantage of it by passing up the coast very close in to shore.

The Circuit Court Docket for Douglas county at the pending term has 17 divorce cases, and a long list of other cases. The lawyers are getting in their work, or the people are litigious.

The fruit crop in this section has been one of the heaviest in years and much of it will go to waste for want of a market. The completion of even the Bandon-Port Orford railroad will be a God send to the farmers down this way, for with a market for the produce many a family would support several.

We are glad to give our readers this week our first installment of Cape Blanco Wireless News, which reached us a day too late for last week's issue. Our thanks are due to Chief Ludwig, who will hereafter send us the interesting news as they catch it—a feature that will make the TRIBUNE more to be desired by all who wish to get the latest news.

Sheriff Tyler came up from Gold Beach the first of the week, and up on a complaint sworn to by Ike Cox placed Jas. Curry under arrest and took him to Langlois where in a hearing before Justice Cox yesterday afternoon the defendant was bound over in the sum of $2000 on a charge of manslaughter. This action meets with general approval for a crime has been committed punishment should be meted out, and under the circumstances it is the only means by which Mr. Curry can secure a clear vindication.

Captain Howard Emery, R. C. S. Assistant Inspector, United States Life Saving Service, expects to visit Port Orford before long to look over the ground selected for a Station here, and to resurvey the same. It is promised that the station will be built here during the next year, but it has taken long years of patient waiting, and many lives have been lost since the agitation started, that might have been saved, had our government acted promptly.

H. J. Blakesley, who formerly owned a nursery on Elk river and was for many years a resident of this county, has been spending a couple of weeks visiting his old friends in this neighborhood. Mr. Blakesley is now a resident of California, and is just returning from a visit to the Seattle fair. He speaks highly of the Seattle "get there" spirit, and says that he was informed that the fair has paid for itself and that the receipts from now on will be profit for the energetic promoters.

A Distressing Homicide.

Editor TRIBUNE—The announcement of the killing of Joel Bond, one of the oldest settlers of the county cast a gloom over this end of Curry county, and I, who have known the deceased intimately for more than thirty years, was inexpressibly saddened upon the announcement by telephone that an old citizen had been shot down like a dog. The defense, as I learn will be self defense, with no witness save the defendant to tell the tale, the victim's voice being hushed forever. It is a case which demands a most thorough probing, since if a murderer may be committed, and a murderer acquitted on his own story of the affair, no person's life is safe. The trouble grew out of a disputed division line between Bond's and Curry's land, and person's long familiarity with the premises, say that Bond's contention was correct. Under a new law it is a misdemeanor to point a loaded firearm at another, while it is made manslaughter for one hunter to kill another mistaking him for a varmint. By all means the people will demand a thorough investigation of this latest homicide.
J. H. Upton.

Joel Bond Shot and Killed.

In a dispute of long standing over a line fence between their places at the mouth of Elk river, Joel Bond was shot and killed by Jas. W. Curry at about 4:30 o'clock last Thursday afternoon. The killing came as no surprise to the people of this vicinity as the controversy had reached such a stage that each of the participants was carrying a rifle with him wherever he went in readiness for instant trouble, and it was common neighborhood talk that one or the other would eventually meet a violent death.

There were no witnesses to the tragedy, but Mr. Curry's story, corroborated by more or less circumstantial evidence, is in substance as follows: That he was building a fence on a line established by County Surveyor Wilson, and that on returning to his work in the afternoon armed with a 30-30 rifle, he found Mr. Bond tearing the fence down with a crow bar. When he was about 40 yards from the latter he called to him and asked him what he was doing that for, and was answered by "take that you"—followed by a pistol shot, that went wide of its mark. Curry then got his rifle into action and simultaneously with his shot Bond fired his pistol again and then turned and walked about 90 feet in an opposite direction, falling dead where a clump of bushes hid him from his adversary, the bullet from the rifle having entered the left breast above the heart on a diagonal course through the body, striking the breast bone and deflecting downward where it lodged. Mr. Curry not knowing the result of his shot immediately came to Port Orford with news of the shooting. A party was quickly organized and left for the scene, and found the deceased lying on his face where he had fallen with his pistol, a .32 calibre six-shooter—in which there were two empty shells, lying near his right hand. Justice Cox and Dr. Mann were summoned from Langlois, and after a long delay, during which the corpse lay uncared for in the field for 24 hours or more, a coroner's jury was impaneled, consisting of Wm. Nordberg, M. T. Wright, N. C. Nielsen, A. A. Jamieson, Frank Cook and S. P. Felice, which returned an imperfect or "split" verdict, four of the members signing a simple statement that Joel Bond came to his death from a gun shot wound inflicted by Jas. Curry, while the two remaining members refusing to sign until a foot note had been added saying that the shooting was justifiable, there being practically no evidence to the contrary, while an examination disclosed Mr. Bond's rifle sitting against a post where he commenced tearing down the fence (having torn down six panels he was some little distance from it at the time of the shooting) and extra cartridges were found in his pockets. But one witness heard the shooting and while there seems to be some discrepancy between his and Mr. Curry's story as to the time that elapsed between the first shot and the two subsequent ones, it is probably only the difference between a calm and excited mind and has no real significance.

Serious trouble between the two combatants had been brewing for the past year. Several months ago Mr. Curry secured the services of the County Surveyor to establish the lines under controversy, but Mr. Bond held the party up with his rifle and put a stop to the work. It is the belief of many that had this act been dealt with by the proper authorities as its seriousness warranted that the fatal climax might have been avoided. About this time Mr. Bond fired upon Mr. Curry and Johnny Hurst while they were at work, and was put under $500 bonds to keep the peace. At the last meeting of the grand jury Bond was indicted and placed under $500 bond, to appear at the next Circuit court but the peace bond was dropped it being said that it was faulty and therefore void from the beginning.

Joel Bond was born in Linn Co., Oregon, Feb. 21, 1851, and came to Curry county in July 1867, where he settled near Crystal creek, moving to his farm near the mouth of Elk river in the fall of 1873, at which place he since resided. The deceased was never married, but leaves several brothers and other relatives to mourn his unfortunate death. He was laid to rest in the Port Orford cemetery last Saturday. In many ways Mr. Bond was a useful and upright citizen, and numerous old-time friends will learn with regrets of his violent end. He leaves an estate valued at from $10,000 to $15,000.

Portraits of the prominent land-lords of England are being published in connection with the proposals to tax them on their land values exclusive of improvements. Oregon has a few landlords whose pictures would look well alongside their English prototypes. By the time the English parliament gets its land taxing measures to going we will have something of the sort proposed to the people of Oregon.

Tickling in the Throat

"Just a little tickling in the throat!" Is that what troubles you? But it hangs on! Can't get rid of it! Home remedies don't take hold. You need something stronger—a regular medicine, a doctor's medicine. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral contains healing, quieting, and soothing properties of the highest order. Ask your doctor about this. No alcohol in this cough medicine. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

Constipation positively prevents good health. Then why allow it to continue? An active liver is a great preventive of disease. Ayer's Pills are liver pills. What does your doctor say?

"From 'Northward Over the Great Ice,' a book written by Commander Peary, written before 'Nearest the Pole,' appears this statement: "To Dr. Cook's care may be attributed the almost complete exemption of the party from even the mildest indisposition, and personally I owe much to his professional skill, unruffled patience and coolness in emergencies. He was always helpful and an indefatigable worker." "That shows what Peary thought of Dr. Cook's ability and personality at one time, and that time is not so long ago."

Manufacturing enterprises are being attracted to the southern states by exemptions from taxation afforded their plants. Sometimes it is by a bond of leading citizens to pay the taxes for a given term of years, and sometimes by laws passed by councils or legislatures.

(COOS BAY NEWS)

Geo. Herron's horse, Dr. Rowell, won two races at Helena, Montana, last week.

In its market report, the Portland Journal says that chittim bark is very quiet. Rather unusual for chittim bark, which has the reputation of being very active.

Good crops of cranberries are reported on the North slough marshes. The season for picking the late varieties will soon be on hand. Cranberry culture is a profitable enterprise, as a good marsh, properly cared for, will average $200 per acre each year. It takes money and labor to prepare and plant a bog properly, and the income for the first few years is nominal, but it pays well in the long run.

(COQUILLE HERALD.)

Tracy Quigley, Wm. Coy and Messrs. Cook and Stone, of Curry county, were taking in different points in Coos several days lately.

N. Plyer, H. L. Cooper, Lex and Ralph Cope, returned last week from a hunting trip in Curry county. They had good luck, getting about as many fine large bucks as the law allows.

L. C. Paull was down from Arago Monday. He informs us that he has purchased a place near Langlois, to which he expects to move in the spring. He also tells us that his parents are now located at Crawfordville, this state, and were well when last heard from.

The Creswell Chronicle is the name of the new paper just founded at Creswell, Oregon, by our former townsman, Geo. H. Baxter, the first issue of which made its appearance Thursday, the last day of September. Mr. Baxter has been connected with newspapers and printing establishments of different kinds for the past 15 years, and is fully capable of giving the people of that place a good, live and readable paper.

BANDON RECORDER.

T. T. Allen has sold 160 acres of his ranch on the Sixes to Mr. Kennedy of this city. Mr. Allen takes Bandon property in partial exchange for the same. This is a very fine ranch and Mr. Kennedy is to be congratulated upon his good fortune in getting hold of such a good one.

A. Haberly was quite badly hurt Monday, by falling from his wagon in the woods, at his ranch east of town. Just how the accident happened, or how seriously he is hurt, we have been unable to learn, but the hope of his friends is that he may soon recover.

T. T. Allen brought some apples in from his ranch on the Sixes last week that were the equal of any apples we have seen any place. There were a number of different varieties of these apples and all were exceptionally fine. There are tons of them on his ranch, going to waste for want of a market. This is another evidence of what could be produced in this country if we only had a proper means of transportation.
