HEADACHE

Both my wife and myself have been using CASCARETS and they are the best medicine we have ever had in the house. Last week my wife was frantic with headache for two days, she tried some of your CASCARETS and they relieved the pain in her head almost immediately. We both recommend Cascares to our friends and neighbors.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Don't Know It.

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or softening indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains your linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in 50c and $1. sizes. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful discovery and a book that tells more about it, both sent absolutely free by mail, address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper.

Everybody Says So. Cascares Candy Cathartic, the most wonderful medicinal discovery of the age, pleasant and refreshing to the taste, acts gently and positively on kidneys, liver and bowels, cleansing the entire system, dispelling colic, cure headache, fever, habitual constipation and biliousness. Please buy and try a box of C. C. today! It costs ten cents. Sold and guaranteed to cure by all druggists.

BLACK-DRAUGHT STOCK and POULTRY MEDICINE

Stock and poultry have few troubles which are not bowel and liver irregularities. Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine is a bowel and liver remedy for stock. It puts the organs of digestion in a perfect condition. Prominent American breeders and farmers keep their herds and flocks healthy by giving them an occasional dose of Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine in their food. Any stock raiser may buy a 25-cent half-pound airtight can of this medicine from his dealer and keep his stock in vigorous health for weeks. Dealers generally keep Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine. If yours does not, send 25 cents for a sample can to the manufacturers, The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

ROSWELL, Ga., Jan. 20, 1909. Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine is the best I ever tried. Our stock was looking bad when you sent me the medicine and now they are getting so fat. They are looking so per coat. B. BROOKINGTON.

FRUIT AS A DIGESTIVE AID.

Pineapples Are Especially Beneficial for Persons Afflicted with Dyspepsia.
The partaking of a slice of pineapple after a meal is quite in accordance with physiological indications, since, though it may not be generally known, fresh pineapple juice contains a remarkably active digestive principle similar to pepsin. This principle has been termed "bromelin," and so powerful is its action upon proteids that it will digest as much as 1,000 times its weight within a few hours. Its digestive activity varies in accordance with the kind of proteid to which it is subjected. Fibrin disappears entirely after a time, says a medical authority.
With the coagulated albumin of eggs the digestive process is slow, while the albumin of meat its action seems first to produce a pulpy gelatinous mass which, however, completely dissolves after a short time. When a slice of fresh pineapple is placed upon a raw beefsteak the surface of the steak becomes gradually gelatinous owing to the digestive action of the enzyme of the juice. Of course, it is well known that digestive agencies exist also in other fruits, but as it is considered that an average-sized pineapple will yield nearly two pints of juice it will be seen that the digestive action of the whole fruit must be enormous. The activity of this peculiar digestive agent is destroyed in the cooked pineapple, but unless the pineapple is preserved by heat there is no reason why the tinned fruit should not retain the digestive power.
The active digestive principle may be obtained from the juice by dissolving a large quantity of common salt in it, when a precipitate is obtained possessing the remarkable digestive powers just described. Unlike pepsin, the digestive principle of the pineapple will operate in an acid, neutral, or even alkaline medium, according to the kind of proteid to which it is presented. It may, therefore, be assumed that the pineapple enzyme would not only aid the work of digestion in the stomach, but would continue that action in the intestinal tract. Pineapple, it may be added, contains much indigestible matter of the nature of woody fiber, but it is quite possible that the decidedly digestive properties of the juice compensate for this fact.

TALE OF A "STUFFER"

"Yodel" stuffed papers for a living. In case the reader does not understand what this is, it will be explained that the "stuffer" of newspapers is one of the most laborious branches of work connected with the great Sunday issues. The magazine, comic, and all other sections of the Sunday paper are printed earlier in the week, and from Thursday until Sunday morning dozens of hands are kept busy inserting these parts into one harmonious whole.
Even the latest type of presses cannot perform this class of work, which offers employment to many newboys and inhabitants of "Newsboys' alley," who earn as much as $18 in four days time. Of this class was "Yodel."
Down in the subterranean depths of a paper office, with the roar of the giant presses reverberating in his ears worked this representative type of "alley." At the surrounding tables three other "stuffers" labored and while they labored they sang. One day "Yodel" chimed in the chorus, and then started to yodel after the fashion of the Swiss singers whom he had heard from the gallery seat of a vaudeville theater.
High above the noises of the presses his voice rang out and every one of the 50 "stuffers" stopped their work and stared at him in astonishment. Then every one seemed to simultaneously start their hands to clapping. "Yodel" was the boy's name thereafter.
"Big" Bill, the foreman of the "stuffers," was the only one who disliked "Yodel." Something about the lad's delicate face acted on his coarse nature like a red rag waved in the face of a bull. In that room, where every inmate had an interesting story of his former life to tell, "Yodel" was instinctively recognized as having fallen from a higher estate.
"Big" Bill knew this, and the boy always irritated him. On a busy Saturday afternoon "Yodel" had just finished warbling with his birdlike voice when "Big" Bill stepped up to him.
"You want to get out of here," he cried. "I've stood it six weeks an' I ain't goin' to stand it any longer. The boys can't do their work while they're listening to you. If you ever make that noise, you call yodeling, again—I'll thrash you, see!"
"Yodel" did not reply to this tirade, for he did not want to lose his position. But when the foreman had walked away "Yodel" was surrounded by a group of sympathizers.
"That fellow don't like me," he said. "Why, my old man used to order around dozens of fellows like him."
"What did you run away from home for, 'Yodel'?" asked a sympathetic listener.
"I don't know. Just got tired of it, I guess," answered the wail. "Had a swell home up on Diversey street, but I got the 'bumming habit an' drifted to the alley."
"That's where Big Bill goes," said another "stuffer." "Up on Diversey street to see his girl. I heard him talking Johnson about it."
"Diversey street is a long thoroughfare," replied "Yodel," and the whole room laughed.
Saturday night a press broke down and delayed the "stuffers." Finally the papers again began to appear on the table the boys were kept busy working like demons to get the mail edition out. Nobody sang or whistled, every one was laboring like a Trojan, and no one noticed that "Big" Bill was showing a group of friends the sights of the "stuffer" room. "Yodel" glanced at the party, and his face paled, while his eyes glittered with excitement, as he looked at the face of a girl in the group.
"Now, watch the fun," he whispered to his right-hand fellow worker. "Yodel" threw back his head and caroled, up, up—high above the noises of the malling room rose his silvery voice, and every one looked around in astonishment.
"Big" Bill's face turned red as fire, and he hastened over to the boy, followed by the rest of his friends.
"I'll thrash you!" he shouted. "I told you not to holler any more, didn't I? For two cents I'd throw you out the door!"
But the newboy was not listening to "Big" Bill. Neither was the rest of the group. The girl was staring at "Yodel" and "Yodel" was smiling back at her.
"Henry!" she screamed. "Why, Henry!"
"Hello, sister," said "Yodel." "Say, do you go with this big 'dub'?" he snickered defiantly. "I'll come back home if you'll promise to sign him down!"
"You ought to have seen Big Bill," said "Yodel" the next day, when, resplendent in a new suit of clothes, he strolled back to the "alley." "Say, he tried to square himself out, but I passed him up. It was no go after what I told her. Me? Oh, I'm going back to school. No more stufferin' for mine."—Chicago Record-Herald.

GREAT MAN'S SENTIMENTS

As Expressed by His Secretary Under His Signature, They Were "Do Wondered At."

"I have been requested," said the great captain of industry, addressing his third assistant secretary, according to the Chicago Record-Herald, "to write a magazine article on how to become a magnate. I want you to get up something that will reflect credit on me and make my friends wonder at my literary style."
Three days later the great man read the article to which his name was signed, and again addressing his third assistant secretary said: "This is excellent. My reasoning is perfectly clear. The young man who can't read this article of mine start right out and become a captain of industry is a hopeless case, and don't deserve success. My logic can't be beat, my literary style is beautiful; I have free and easy command of a whole lot of fine, big-sounding words that I don't know the meaning of, and, taking it altogether, I'm mighty proud of my ability as a writer.
"In fact, I've never read a better article than this one of mine on how to get to the front. The qualifications needed; how to secure the best returns for the efforts expended; where, when and how to beg; all these things are so clearly set forth that I don't see how anyone who can read them without understanding why I have clum to the top.
"That's a mighty good point you make there about the importance of asking for what's wanted, too. That's always been one of my principles. Things don't come to people in this world. You've got to reach for them, and if you can't see what you want, you've got to ask somebody to pass it along. I'd be mighty sorry if you'd forgot to put that in. Everybody who knows me will at once recognize them as my sentiments.
"What! Raise your salary? Young man, do you know $18 a week is a whole lot more than you're worth? You ought to get down on your knees to me every day and thank me for keeping you here. But I'm a liberal-minded man, and I'll tell you what I'll do. I'm to get $350 for this article, and I'll give you $20 of it as a present, just to convince you that I'm generous to a fault.
"I'm glad you put in that passage about honesty being needed by a man who's trying to succeed. There's no use of anybody trying to win without it."
