WHERE LINE WAS DRAWN.

Such a Thing as a Bed on a Public Platform Could Not Be Tolerated.

The dramatic company was stranded in a small New England town, hopelessly stranded. The manager had gone with the insignificant receipts of the last performance. The costumes and accessories were in the hands of creditors. It fell on the leading man to get the company out of the hole by arranging some sort of a benefit, relates the New York Tribune.

He finally found a ladies' aid society of one of the churches to take the management of a percentage performance. All went well until they asked the name of the play. Now "Camille" was the only play the company could give without costumes, and "Camille" was the leading man's answer. There was much grave shaking of heads and the ladies' aid was racked with doubts. Finally they gave their consent, and a rehearsal was ordered.

"We will have to have a bed for the lady to die on," the leading man explained to the women who were helping him at the opera house.

"A bed?" they cried. "A bed on the public platform?" Though he explained that a bed was needed for the death scene, they insisted on substituting a couch. A bed, they said, was not proper in a public play.

"Just think of it," said the leading man, when he told the story the other day on Broadway. "They swallowed 'Camille,' but they would not stand for a bed."

LARGER SHIPS ARE MADE.

Immense Carrying Capacity and Great Stability of New Ocean Steamers.

Although some scientists say the oceans are slowly shrinking, the ships which man makes to float on them are steadily increasing in size. Measurement of every new marine monster, is made by comparison with the old Great Eastern, so long the wonder of the world, says Youth's Companion. The new ship, B-Tic, which lately entered New York harbor on her maiden voyage, presents some interesting figures when so measured. The Great Eastern was built to carry 20,000 tons of freight and 1,000 passengers. The Baltic can carry 28,000 tons of freight and nearly 3,000 passengers. She is not an "ocean greyhound." If one wanted a canine metaphor she would be an "ocean drafthorse;" but "ocean drafthorse" hits the mark nearer the center. The Baltic is one of that practical and useful class of steamers, which because of their great size and comparatively low horsepower are not fast, but have great stability. Their immense carrying capacity makes them profitable boats to run.

NEIGHBORS TO A PIANO.

When the Instrument Ceased Its Backet They All Became Lonesome.

Pushing the spokesman before them, the neighbors pressed into the musician's house, says the Newark News.

"What means this intrusion?" demanded the artist, furious. "We have called," said the chairman, "to ask you to please start up your piano again. It has been still for two days, and the silence is unbearable."

"It is not that we enjoy your playing," added another neighbor, "but through long experience we have gotten so used to it that we don't hear it any more. And now, when you stop playing, the cessation of sound is most distressing. The stillness fairly roars in our ears."

"Gentlemen, I cannot comply with your wishes for some time to come," he said. "I have a bad case of cramps in the hand, and my doctor forbids me touching the piano for a week at least."

Their hopes dashed to the ground, the tortured neighbors went out looking for a street organ to hire by the day.

Mean as They Make.
Blobs—Cloggett is rather mean, isn't he?
Blobs—Mean? Why, that fellow would kick beanie he could not get an encore out of a penny in the slot music box.—Philadelphia Record.
