The people of Bandon have just levied a 17 mill school tax for the ensuing year. That some people never know when they are well off is evident, as there are those in Curry who complain about high taxes when the total annual levy in the county usually runs from 12 to 15 mills—less than the taxpayer of Bandon pays for school purposes alone.

Has The Courage Of Its Convictions.

The Portland Evening Telegram is one of the very few big daily papers of the country that has the temerity to come out and take a bold stand for prohibition. Not that many of the big papers do not believe in prohibition, for unquestionably they do, but the liquor trust is an immense one with unlimited wealth at its command, and the paper that is taboed by it loses a fat and juicy patronage. Much credit is due the Telegram for having put morality and principle above dollars and cents. The friends of prohibition should patronize this paper as a reward for the good work it is doing for the cause.

In an editorial in its issue of October 14th, last, the Telegram says: "There can be no justification for the saloon for any point of view. Economically it is a dreadful investment for which no sane man has ever been able to offer an adequate excuse. Morally its influence is so baneful and demoralizing it is a matter of amazement that civilized people have stood for so long. Why then should the people of Oregon continue to stand for it? Why should they not, like courageous American men and women, stand forward and deal it the deadly blow that will eliminate it as a menace to our civilization and as a tireless agent of destruction to our sons and daughters?"

"Without apologies to anyone and with pleasure and satisfaction to itself the Telegram will do what it can to bring about that much desired result."

By J. H. UFFORD.

Editor TRIBUNE: A Republican rooster about of Port land, who signs himself against several good measures in the election pamphlet as "Secretary of the Non-partisan League," one of the fake leagues doing business at Port land during the campaign. Judging from the amount of space this press agent has used in the pamphlet and using in the public press, it is very evident that he has large money backing.

This Non-partisan League—all Portland politicians—seems much worried lest if the bill passes Multnomah county will, by trick and device, send to Salem enough members to control the State, as witness what Geo. C. Mason says in a long article in the Globe as follows: "I contend that an increase in the representation of the County of Multnomah would be to such an extent that it would absolutely dominate the Legislature."

Again, Geo. C. Mason aforesaid actually believes that "proportional representation" as per a paragraph or two in said long article in said Globe is to be based on taxation as follows.

"I have further indicated, that we now have representation proportional to county population and proportional to county taxation. It must then follow, that the advocates of these bills must want representation proportional to something else—other than population or taxation."

"I find that with the exception of Multnomah county, all the other counties are well represented in proportion to the amount of taxes each county pays, as well as in proportion to the population of the several counties."

Yes, my Dear Geo. C. Mason,

Manager, etc., the advocates of these bills want proportional representation of votes and votes only. The word taxation or taxes or population no where appears in the bill to be voted on. How absurd to mention or even think of taxes or population in such connection.

And Geo. C. Mason, Manager, if he will read the bill in the pamphlet, page 79, will see that no candidate name can be printed on the ballot who does not reside in the county or district he proposes to represent, and only so many may be so printed as the county or district is entitled to.

No. The "Non-partisan League" has no fears of Multnomah being able to govern the State under proportion representation, but said League foresees the end of a solid Republican delegation from that county. Under proportional representation at the last general election that county would have sent up three Democrats, two Socialists, one Prohibitionist and seven Republicans, and that's what's the matter with Geo. C. Mason, "Manager" aforesaid.

A system under which every vote counts and each political party is entitled to representation in the Legislature proportioned to the number of votes cast by such party is just what the bosses don't want.

It happened a couple of sessions back that only one lone Democratic sat in the Lower House, while four sat in the Senate, and that by reason of three "holdovers." At that session it was proposed that proportional representation had been the rule—that is, if the minority party had been accorded members in proportion to the whole number of votes cast for Democratic candidates in the State—the party would have been represented on the floor by 17 members instead by the one solitary "lone soul." Such a system is a fraud on representative government, and operates to disfranchise everyone of the thousands of people who have voted for a party that is denied representation in the popular branch of our law-making body.

Everyone of the 9,800 Socialist votes in the State is an "disfranchised" vote, and nearly all of the Democrats that voted for members of the Lower House two years ago might just as well stand at home as their votes had no representative value whatever, whereas, under the rule of proportional representation, each and every party will have representatives proportioned to the whole number of party votes cast. This would bring into the Legislature several Democrats; not so many Socialists, and a few Prohibitionists at every session to participate in the business of the State. Could there be anything wrong in this? And is it not a fact that a practically solid Republican delegation in our Legislature may and often does, consciously or unconsciously, act upon the theory that its proportioning numbers give it some sort of license to do its worst?

There can be no gainsaying the fact that proportional representation presents an altogether workable system, and, in operation after the Senate has been abolished, will give Oregon an ideal standing as a forward looking Commonwealth. And the character of the people foremost in opposition to the above two measures ought to admonish the Common Man that such are moved by selfish interest in their frantic efforts to keep "things as they are."

The Tribune is inclined to the opinion that the proposed $1800 exemption would be more popular if it provided for a somewhat smaller sum, which conclusion, upon analysis, will be found not borne out by the facts. In the first place the exemption of all investments in household goods operates as was intended by its promoters, to relieve rich people, some of whom escape taxes on the thousand dollars of value, the whole aggregating nearly 14 million dollars, will be repealed by the new law, thus equalizing benefits and burdens, since the ten thousand dollar man will have to meet the rest of us half way and be content with $1800 only. In the second place, not all nor half of us possess fifteen hundred dollars worth of the property singled out by the proposed law for exemption hence the sum will not loom up to the total alleged by Big Business opponents. Rich people will get the full benefit, while others will be credited with lesser sums according to value of personality and improvements, and all will be taxed on real estate holdings.

They are the speculative holders of broad acres out of use who are shouting loudest against the change.

It was Lieutenant Governor Lee not "Lieutenant Lee" who returned to Multnomah from Canada to confess in the Baking Powders scandal.

COOS BAY NEWS

James Tracy was caught among the logs, after breaking a jam at the log dump at the Smith mill, Friday afternoon, and was killed instantly. He had been with A. H. Powers, of the Smith Bowers logging company for over 20 years.

Sixty years ago last Thursday, the old pioneer A. G. Aiken, then a youth of 18, arrived at Coos Bay. The only ones now living who were on the bay when he came are L. M. Noble and Mrs. Lockhart. There was quite a number of settlers at Empire then, but there were only two cabins on the present townsite of Marshfield.

The steamer Mayfair arrived Wednesday, intending to load lumber which was to be brought from Siuslaw on the barge Lawrence, but the Lawrence didn't show up, probably being detained in the river by rough bar. The Mayfair took on a portion of a cargo at North Bend, and was to call at Port Orford on her way south to load railroad ties.

On account of the low prices offered by the cannery for silver-sided fish, but few boats are fishing in the lower bay, where long nets are needed. The cannery has been getting between 1200 and 2000 salmon per day, most of which are caught by local fishermen on Coos river. The Tallant cannery at Marshfield has packed about 3,000 coos up to date this season.

During the quarter ending September 30, 1913, State Engineer John H. Lewis, issued 178 permits for the appropriation of water. These permits give the cost of proposed works as approximately $3,600,000 and involve the construction of 230 miles of canal line, the development of 30,480 horsepower, and the irrigation of 13,100 acres of land.

The issuance of permits by the State Engineer's office may be taken as an index to the general development throughout the State along irrigation and power lines.

The fees collected by this department during the past quarter exceed those collected in the same period last year by 25 per cent and the money deposited with the State Treasurer during the first three quarters of 1914, amounting to $10,175, exceeds the appropriation for the administrative expenses of the office for an entire year. The following permits were issued in Curry County during the past quarter:

W. W. Caldwell of Ashland, for the development of 100 theoretical horsepower, including domestic supply, diverting water from Little Creek in Sec. 4 T. 41 S. R. 13 W.

G. W. Billings of Marial for the irrigation of 2 acres, development of 2 theoretical horsepower, including domestic supply, diverting water from Price Creek in Sec. 9 T. 33 S. R. 10 W.
