Local Happenings

One month from today will be the shortest day in the year.

It is reported that the new owners of the Gold Beach Reporter will install a linotype.

The big warehouse, recently completed, and the power house on Fort Point are being painted.

Wm. Hunter, of Gold Beach, was in town over night last week while on his way to Coos bay and other outside points.

Ford, the Marshfield butcher, passed up the coast last week with a small band of beef cattle bought in the Rogue river country.

After visiting some six weeks with her daughter, Mrs. T. L. Carey at Wedderburn, Mrs. L. E. Stewart returned to her home at Port Orford last Wednesday.

The hot air heating system for the Port Orford school house, authorized to be purchased at the annual meeting last June, arrived last week and will shortly be installed.

Mr. and Mrs. Perry Dodson and two children, of Gold Beach, passed up the coast last week. They have been stopping a few days at Marshfield where Mrs. Dodson has been receiving medical treatment. Mr. Dodson is manager of the Macleay store at Gold Beach.

Getchel Bros. big auto truck came down from Bandon and commenced Monday hauling ties from the wharf onto Fort Point where they will be in reach of the loading crane for the wire cable, as one of the Fyfe-Wilson steamers is expected here soon after a load of ties and poles.

After coming out over a rough bar at Rogue river the Tramp laid over here several days last week waiting for the Coos bay bar to smoothe so that she could cross in there. Moorings have been fixed at Nellies Cove so that boats like the Tramp and Rustler can lie snugly there during the worst storm that blows.

Henry Axtell sailed from Bandon on the Elizabeth the first of the week for San Francisco. He has gone to the city to close the deal for some second hand machinery which he has secured at an exceptional bargain. Those who are in the market for donkey engines, cables, etc., will do well to consult him upon his return.

D. M. and Ash Moore, of Gold Beach, both made trips in their cars with passengers to Bandon during the past week. The former is making preparations to have a cheese factory at Pistol river ready for operation when the dairy season opens next spring. Several of the farmers of that section have been hauling their milk 12 or 14 miles to the Wedderburn factory.

Rev. J. S. VanWinkle came down from Bandon and filled his appointments in the church here Sunday morning and evening. At the latter service N. F. Woodcock helped out the regular music with his violin and Messrs. Marsh and Johnston augmented the choir, the result being that Rev. VanWinkle expressed much surprise at finding so much musical talent in a town the size of Port Orford.

Thos. C. Clark entertained the Ladies Aid at his home on Arizona street last Friday, and from the reports of the affair he played the part of host royally. But for the fact that the most of the lunch he served came from the garden, and for the further fact that his visitors could eat nothing further that day, he might have been accused of breaking his Hoover pledge. Anyway he served an ample repast, all cooked by himself, and his fair visitors said it was "real good."

According to reports there will be a match at Marshfield in the near future between M. G. Lutsey, formerly of Langlois and Sixes and known as the wrestling cheesemaker from Curry, and Nels Carlson. The latter has been throwing everything around Coos bay where he has a big following. He is said to have held championship honors at 158 lbs., which is also Lutsey's weight. Mr. Lutsey has signified his willingness to meet Carlson and to cover any reasonable side bet the latter cares to make, and the cheesemaker has many followers in this section who believe he can finish most anything that he undertakes in the wrestling line.

Don't forget the Thanksgiving dance at Port Orford.

Mrs. O. Leneve and Mrs. Alice Zumwalt visited friends in Coos county last week.

Robt. McPhillamey and wife, from their Sixes home, spent Sunday in town as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Gillings.

Geo. Divelbiss, from Elk river, spent a day or two in town the first of the week, and was a passenger by auto stage yesterday for Bandon.

There was a dance at Langlois last Saturday night which a number of the young people from this place attended and reported a very enjoyable time.

Mrs. Alice Zumwalt, who recently bought from W. T. White the J. D. Loucks bungalow on south Oregon street, moved into her new home yesterday.

The outer end of the Port Orford wharf, where the small gasoline boats have been landing their freight is in a bad way and will go down during the first heavy storm.

While the weather has been calm during the past week yet a heavy swell has been rolling in from the ocean, indicating that somewhere at sea the weather man was not behaving as nicely as he has been at Port Orford.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Forty received a fine photograph yesterday showing their son, Bernal, playing in the crack Goat Island band during one of the late big parades in San Francisco.

H. J. Darling was in town one day recently from the W. R. Hurst place on Elk river and remembered the TRIBUNE force with a box of grapes grown on that place. Mr. Darling has brought in some of the nicest apples seen in town this year. Besides growing good fruit he has experimented in several things, such as the bottling of loganberry juice, with more or less success. To the energetic small farmer in Curry, such as Mr. Darling, the building of the coast railroad will open up many possibilities.

Jack Guyton returned to Marshfield the latter part of last week, having been to Gold Beach to take over the Reporter. It is stated that the paper is now owned by a company in which Mr. Guyton holds the controlling interest, John Juza, its new publisher, also being one of the stockholders. E. M. Bogardus, who has ably edited the Reporter in the past, announces that as soon as he has helped the present management get a good start he will retire from the newspaper game and take a well-earned vacation.

Harry G. Huntley for a number of years in the employ of the North Bend Lumber Co., will leave the first of December. He and Mrs. Huntley will go to Portland, where Mrs. Huntley has relatives while Mr. Huntley will go to American Lake to visit his brother Floyd, who is in the military band and in the army foot ball team. Later they will go to San Francisco, where Mr. Huntley will accept a position offered him in the lumber business, but further than this he is not at liberty to disclose.—Coos Bay Harbor.

Will Join Navy as Volunteer.

John R. Marsh, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Marsh of Elk river, started the first of the week for Portland where he goes to take examination for enlistment in the navy. John volunteered several months ago when his younger brother, Louie, went into the army, but failed to pass the physical examination. Believing, however, that he can pass at this time he has gone to Portland for another try at it.

Diver Coming.

A diver is expected at Port Orford any day from San Francisco. He is coming here to blow some rocks out of the bay, one of which was discovered recently.

When the steamer Bandon was loading at the cable a month or so ago she went ahead a little further than usual and struck an unknown rock that tore some large splinters from her bottom. Examination disclosed that the rock was in the form of a sharp pinnacle, which had caused it to be missed when soundings were taken. While he will probably do some other work, yet it is this rock in particular that the diver is coming to get rid of.

According to Sunday's paper the Italians are holding their line on the Piave river; Kerensky has lost control in Russia, and the allies continue to gain on the western front.

F. F. Friant Writes From Arizona.

The TRIBUNE is in receipt of a letter from F. F. Friant at Red Rock, Arizona, asking that a copy of the paper be sent to him at that address. For several years Mr. and Mrs. Friant conducted the half way house at Corbin, which they named the "Arizona Inn", and which they still own. Last fall, on account of Mr. Friant's health, they leased this popular stopping place and returned to Arizona. In his letter Mr. Friant says in part:

"I am located here at Red Rock for the present. It is near where I was when I was here before. Am getting a 60 Horse-power tractor in shape, and am going to put in 350 acres of wheat. Will probably get in about 50 acres each of corn, barley and sorgum. I have power headers, threshing machines, bailers, etc, and expect to make a clean-up if the season is at all favorable.

"I am feeling much better since I hit the hot country. I was under the doctors care in Los Angeles for a month before I came here. Mrs. Friant is well, but still would like to be back in Oregon.

"Please remember us to our many friends in and around Port Orford."

Nelson and Baker Sentenced.

Christ Nelson and Charles Baker, who were indicted by the Federal grand jury in Portland recently for importing liquor into a dry state, pleaded guilty to the charge and were given jail sentences by Judge Bean. Nelson drew thirty days and Baker was given three months in the Multnomah county jail.

Nelson and Baker will be remembered as the two men who run the little sloop, Santa Clara, on the beach about a mile south of town last spring. They were enroute from Crescent City to Coos bay with a cargo of 28 cases of bootlegging whisky—bottles that had been opened and filled with inferior booze. When the boat run onto the beach the men were lost in the fog and had also been sampling their goods too generously for successful navigation. A small amount of the booze they carried was destroyed, but the most of it was cached and it is doubtful if some of these caches have run dry as yet.

Nelson and Baker were brought before the local authorities and fined $100 each, the former serving time in jail and the latter paying his fine. Here they were charged with having liquor in their possession, and now the Federal court punishes them for importing it into dry territory.

Local Board Did Not Protest Exemption of Louis Knapp.

The following letter is self-explanatory, only we wish to state that the TRIBUNE's authority for its statement last week came from a reliable source from one who had gained his information first hand, and from this it would seem that there is a tendency on the part of the district board to shift the burden of some of its unpleasant duties upon the shoulders of the local board:

Gold Beach, Or., Nov. 16, 1917.

Editor TRIBUNE:

In your last issue you state that a protest was sent in from this Local Board in the case of Louis L. Knapp exemption. We do not know where you got your information, but wish to state that this board never sent in any protest in the matter in any manner. Exemptions for agricultural or industrial pursuits are filed direcly with the board at Eugene, and the local board has nothing whatever to do with it. In this case Louis filed his claim with this board, and as a matter of accommodation we forwarded it to the District Board, but without comment.

We have enough to answer for without taking any of the burdens of the District Board, but when their judgment is questioned they seem inclined to try and shift the burden to this board—this case is not the first one. Our records are open at any time for any citizen interested. We, no doubt have made mistakes, but we are not trying to shift the blame to someone else.

LOCAL BOARD, Curry County,
WM. TOLMAN, Chairman,
W. A. WOOD, Clerk.

A Letter From Honolulu.

U. S. Naval Station,
Pearl Harbor, T. H.,
Oct. 30th, 1917.

Dear Folks:

I haven't received a letter from you since last Tuesday, but expect to get one on the next boat. I intended to write you Sunday, but I had to be in town and so didn't get to.

The band was ordered into town to play for a dance which was given by the Navy boys last Saturday night. We only played from 9 o'clock until 11:30, and it seemed like old times to me. The Army and Navy basketball teams played a game before the dance, which took up an hour of time, and the Army won the game by a close margin. We had to stay in town Saturday night so as to be there to play for a concert at the Army and Navy Y. M. C. A. Sunday afternoon where they were holding a meeting to pray for the success of our arms in this was and also to pay tribute to the boys who have already given up their lives in the conflict.

There were several good speakers at the meeting, one in particular making a fine address. They had a big choir on hand that sang several fine numbers. We only had to play about an hour, but by the time we caught a train and got back to the Barracks it was dark.

I stayed at the Y. M. C. A, Saturday night, and it is sure going to be some fine place when it is finished. It is nearly ready now, and I guess that we will have to go in and play for them again when they have their grand opening. The building used to be the Royal Hawaiian hotel, and it has very pretty grounds and shrubbery around it. They have remodelled the building inside, and I don't think the soldiers and sailors in the States will have any nicer Y. M. C. A. than we will have here when it is finished.

One of the boys has just come back from the postoffice without any mail and the postman told him that there wouldn't be any more mail until next Monday. I guess they must have taken the Mateon steamers off this line and put them on somewhere else, probably on the Atlantic. I saw by the paper where they are going to take all the boats over 2500 tons and put them on the Atlantic and I guess they must have taken these boats that run over here. If they have we will not be able to get our mail as often as we have been getting it, but the Japanese steamers are still running here.

I see by the papers that the Italians are losing heavily and I suppose it will make the war last just that much longer, but I hope not.

Well, I will have to close for this time,

With love to all

LYNN.

We publish the above letter from Lynn Woodcock to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. F. Woodcock of this place, largely because of its reference to the work of the Y. M. C. A, editorial mention of which will be noticed in this issue.
