DON'T GAMBLE.

The path of rectitude is constantly being destroyed through the insidious habit of gambling.

The press tells a tale almost daily of men who, through suicide, came to the end and left a note saying that their downfall was due to this pernicious habit, started in a small way but which became an obsession and all was lost.

Don't gamble, young man. Because— Every game should be played for the sake of the game. Good sport should not be lowered to the plane of betting.

Clean sport demands that the game should be played for the love of the game itself and not for the money there is in it. Do not spoil good sport by bad practice.

Because— It is a cheap and mean way to make money. Each time you win the other fellow loses. You get his money for nothing. How do you know he can afford to lose? How often it may make him commit a crime?

Where does that lead to? Be a man. Pay your way. Earn your own. Don't try to beat your way.

Because— Gambling will lead you away from good company into bad. Gamblers do not belong to good society. They and their kind herd together. If you herd with them, you must be set down to their level. You can't keep clean and live in the mud.

Because— It unfits you for business, for your daily tasks. The fellow who sits up half the night to play poker is in poor shape to solve business problems the next day or to carry on his work as it should be carried on. He who keeps his eye on the race track or the board of trade "must take his eye off his business." He who neglects his work is unreliable and cannot serve two masters.

Because— The fever of gambling will soon get into your blood and mar your life.

Instead of giving every man a square deal, you will come to look for the advantage you may take of every man, and shortly you will come to the place where the fine flush of honest endeavor and the fine edge of honor will disappear.

And because— This is the last thing that will restrain you, so we put it last, because it is wrong.

A GOOD CODE.

Edward W. Stitt, associate superintendent of schools of New York city, broadcasted not long ago an excellent code of 10 suggestions to parents who want to be good ones. The 10 points follow:

- 1. Set proper standards for your children to follow. 2. Be friends with your children, walk and play with them occasionally. We must not live above our children but with them. 3. Do not scold too much. Encourage them to do their best. Let us remember what Phillips Brooks said: "Children are white, spotted black; not black, spotted white." 4. See that they select proper friends and associates. 5. Make "home" as comfortable and happy as your means permit. 6. Give your children at least a high school education. 7. Train them in the habit of regular attendance at church and Sunday school. 8. See that they avoid all games of chance. A gambler never can be a success in life. 9. See that your children take plenty of physical training in the open air. It is better exercise to walk than to ride in a limousine. 10. Let your children feel that any honor which they win in school, or any act of courage, or unselfishness they may perform, will bring great happiness to father and mother and put the family name on a higher plane of honor. Do not forget that the future of America depends upon how your boys and girls are trained today, not on how you were trained when you were children.

Forest Ranger Transferred.

P. N. Stephenson, who has been ranger on the Siuslaw national forest for five years, located at Florence, has been transferred to the Siskiyou national forest and will be located at the ranger station on Rogue river, according to announcement at the office of the Siuslaw forest here. His successor has not yet been selected.

The reason why a good many reforms go astray is that the reformers are such funny looking people that they make everybody laugh.

Port Orford School.

PORT ORFORD HIGH SCHOOL (By Anna Lowman)

Outdoor basketball is now taking up a considerable amount of attention. It has been arranged so that at every recess and noon different teams are to play unless there is a tie. The girls are taking an active part in every game although the playing is all boys' rules.

No one is kicking about the good weather, but the sunburnt necks and arms prove that sunshine and water are not pleasant mixers.

The attendance is nearly perfect; all students excepting one, are present. We are glad that everyone is feeling well now, for the flu, and other sicknesses surely did "run wild."

Subjects already completed for the year are: Geology and General Science. The Classics is now being studied are: Payne's Literary Readings, Ninth grade; "The Alhambra," Tenth grade; "Vicar of Wakefield," eleventh grade.

The poster contest between the boys and girls of high school will be ended this week. It has been agreed that the loser entertains. We girls feel confident of having a fine time when the good looking hosts serve.

Last week was a little over-laden as it had to serve two purposes, that of "Boy's Week," and "Forest Week." "Forest Week" we held appropriate exercises. For the "Boy's Week," we had ice cream and cookies Friday afternoon. There being no "Girl's Week" that we know of and not wanting to take up a week's precious time we have decided to make the last day of school "Girl's Day."

Choosing One's Work

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK, Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

YEARS ago, when Mr. W. E. Curtis was writing his remarkable and interesting series of articles for the Chicago Record-Herald, our hired man whose training in the gentle art of composition consisted of six months in the country school and whose travels had taken him at one time as far afield as Feedersburg, Ind., came to father and announced that he was going to give up agricultural pursuits.

"What are you intending to do?" father asked.

"I think I'll take up newspaper writin'," he answered, "like this man Curtis. It looks easy, it's good pay, I guess, and it'd give a fellow a chance to see the world."

"No doubt," was my father's reply. A boy should begin early to think about how he is to earn his living, even if the chances are that he may never have to.

Every one ought to do the work he likes. Every profession and occupation involves about so many unpleasant and distasteful duties, and if one cannot go at his work with eagerness and enthusiasm, if he must drag himself to it with regret and reluctance, if he were always wishing that he were through with it, these unpleasant things are magnified a hundred fold. If a man likes his work it is half done; if he does it because he must or simply to earn a living he has a sad outlook.

Whatever a young fellow takes up, it should be his own choice. Fathers and mothers and teachers may advise and suggest, but they should not dominate the choice. It is natural that the proud father, trundling his young heir ahead of him in a perambulator, should plan a definite and successful future for him, but it is the boy himself who must live the life, and do the work, and in the end succeed or fail, and it is he who should make the choice.

Every one should choose the work for which he is best fitted. The accurate and honest analysis of one's own talents is not an easy matter, but it should at least be attempted.

Lowell, in one of his essays, says: "We are designed in the cradle, perhaps earlier, and it is in finding out this design and shaping ourselves to it that our years are spent wisely. It is the vain endeavor to make ourselves what we are not that has strewn history with so many broken purposes and lives left in the rough." If possible, before we begin to build, we should study the design.

No young person should take up any life work for purely commercial reasons. It is justifiable to look after one's self, but every one who enters upon a life work, no matter how humble or how distinguished, should do so with some idea, at least, to be of service to the community or commonwealth in which he lives. Only that profession is honorable which contributes to the betterment of the individual and to the advancement of the state.

Your Conversation "SET BACK"

Persons who experience a relapse on the road to recovery of their health or fortune are said to have experienced a "set-back." Set-back originally was a term used in reference to computing the score of games in which the loser was penalized by adding to his opponent's score.

"Say it with flowers" if you can't do it with deeds.

Wheeler Acquitted

Senator B. K. Wheeler of Montana photographed in Great Falls, Mont., where his trial on charges of improperly using his influence as a senator was held last week. With him are counsel, C. S. Foy (left) and W. F. P'Leary (right).

FORMER DEMOCRATIC FOR VICE-PRESIDENT QUICKLY VINDICATED

GREAT FALLS, Mont., April 25.—Vindicated of charges that he had misused his senatorial office, Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana today issued a statement charging "the Daugherty gang" with producing false testimony for his trial here.

Wheeler was found not guilty on the first ballot of the jury which sat through the eight-day trial. Just before the jury brought in its verdict Wheeler got word from Washington that a baby girl had been born to Mrs. Wheeler.

"I shall not be satisfied until one of the principal witnesses in the case is prosecuted for his basely false testimony," Wheeler said. "The department of justice, while protesting its fairness in the trial, brought a notorious witness here without giving us an opportunity to check up on his character. Since he testified, however, an abundance of evidence has come into our possession connecting him with the old Daugherty regime. This acquittal proves my charge of a frame-up by the department of justice. Had it not been for this prejudiced testimony the case would never have come to the jury. I charge that this trial was a persecution and it has been amply proven, not only by the Borah committee but by a clear cut decisive victory in a court of justice. I hope for an early trial in Washington on the conspiracy charge in order that my activities in the senate may not be hampered by the Daugherty gang, which apparently still has a commanding voice in the department of justice."

Wheeler will stay here for several days before leaving on a vacation.

Perfected Time Keeping

The basis of reckoning standard time at the United States naval observatory is transit observation of the stars. The observatory has three standard clocks running in a constant temperature vault, electrically wound and sealed to keep the air pressure constant. Meridian circle observations of selected stars are taken regularly on clear nights and from these observations the errors of the standard clocks are determined and corrected.

HOME POINTER SUGGESTIONS (From O. A. C. School of Home Economics, Corvallis, Ore.)

Croquettes dipped in beaten egg before frying will not be greasy. The egg forms a coat on the outside and prevents fat from entering.

Women report that a power washer cuts down the time required to do the washing, from six hours to two hours. A pressure cooker reduces the time of watching food from two-thirds, besides cutting the gas bill down one-half.

Much will be gained if a child's mind can be kept on what he is to do rather than what he is not to do.

Paint may be removed from silk by use of benzine or turpentine. The article is then washed in lukewarm water containing a small amount of soap.
