A Publicity Man

What Redmond needs now is a good publicity man—a man who understands the publicity business of properly advertising the city. A man who will meet new comers as they arrive, give them the glad hand and show them around the city, and give them all the information they desire. Such a man cannot be obtained for nothing, nor for a small salary. It takes a man of peculiar fitness for such a position and he would have to devote a large part of his time to the duties of his position.

Other cities have found that it pays to have a good publicity man, and Redmond would find that they could make no better investment than to do likewise. What is wanted is a man who would keep at the publicity business all the time. Not do a little spasmodic work, lay off for a month or two, and then try to begin where he left off. The secret of successful publicity is to keep everlastingly at it.

The conditions the coming spring and summer will be different than they have been before in Redmond and this section, and different methods should be used to attract attention to this country. This can be done if the project is taken up in the right way.

By united effort on the part of the business men and others of the city, enough money could be raised to pay a sufficient salary to secure a competent publicity man.

It would be a good paying investment, and now is the time to take the matter up and get busy for the coming season.

What to Take

Take this paper.
Take comfort—if you can.
Take things easy—within reason.

Take the girl you love to be your wife.

Take care of your health. It is the most valuable thing you have.

Take a hint when it is intended for you. Don't wait to be knocked down.

Take flattery as an insult, and an honest compliment as something to be grateful for.

Take offence only at things to be offended at. It is a sure evidence of a small mind to notice trifles.

Take the sunshine into your life as something to be grateful for; don't darken it with shadows of your own making. Trouble will come soon enough without coining it.

Take hold of any kind of work that comes to your hand rather than be idle. Luck always waits upon the busy man.

Take trouble like a man. Don't go whining about when it comes but shut your mouth and stand up under it resolutely.

Take pains to hear both sides of a story before you come to a decision. Jumping at conclusions one time and another, has filled the world with enemies and deluged it with blood. Wait to hear both sides of a story before you speak.

The average American newspaper reader is a queer creature. He is the most critical fellow imaginable. He picks up his local paper and scans it carefully to see if there is any personal mention of himself. If there is not he denounces "personals" in a newspaper, and yet all he reads it for is mostly for the personal items. Everything an enterprising editor can make an item of is legitimate booty for him. There is nothing in the papers of the present day so greedily devoured as the little personal, family and society items. It is therefore a matter of policy and business to the proprietor of a newspaper to furnish for his readers as far as lies in his power, that which will best satisfy the tastes of the majority of newspaper readers.

Did you ever notice how nice, pleasant and courteous some people can be when they are trying to "hold their job." Where heretofore these people thought they occupied a position in the world about a thousand feet higher than any one else, and had nothing but slurs and insults for patrons, now they are getting down to the ground and trying to be good fellows with the "Common Peepul" in order to "hold their job."

Last week The Spokesman published an editorial advising people to keep their back yards clean. Among other things it was advised that slops should not be thrown on the ground in the back yard. This week a letter was received by the editor saying that the clean up article would not apply to the writer as she threw all her slops in the front yard. The letter was unsigned.

A man who is not a subscriber to The Spokesman, wanted the paper to boost a pet hobby of his. It was suggested that he come across with a year's subscription to the paper, but he wouldn't pry himself loose from the price, $1.50.

"Putting on dog" is the western phrase for trying to be better than the common run of people. This condition is to be found in every city and hamlet in the world.
