State Bank of Redmond

Without the element of chance, no progress could be made in any calling. The farmer would not put in crops for fear the elements and many other enemies of vegetation would destroy them. He would raise no stock because they might die. No one would travel by rail or water for fear of death or maiming by accident, and no one would enter business or manufacture, because loss often occurs; and yet all these chances are taken daily. Yet in the face of these facts thousands of people hoard their money and keep it out of use for fear the bank might "bust".

Those who pursue this policy are enemies of progress, of their neighbors and their country. They are not good citizens in the best sense of the word. Therefore be a gentleman, a good citizen, a progressive man and a public benefactor by coming to the STATE BANK OF REDMOND for all kinds of banking business and the best of treatment.

A REPORTED GOLD STRIKE

Gold Said to Have Been Found in Paying Quantities

NUMEROUS CLAIMS BEEN STAKED OUT

Bend People Excited Over Prospect of Finding the Mineral

A Bend dispatch to the Oregonian dated the 6th says:

What is characterized as the most remarkable gold rush experienced in Oregon for many years burst into full swing at Bend last week. As a result of the discovery of quartz, which assays have shown to contain a commercially valuable amount of gold, today the town is all but deserted. The gold-bearing quartz was discovered 12 miles west of here on the edge of the forest reserve among the foothills of the Cascade mountains. Several merchants Saturday deserted their stores and joined the army of gold seekers. In the van of the prospectors are several ex-miners recently come from Alaska, whose enthusiasm concerning the discoveries has had much to do with the general excitement.

As far as can be ascertained, the first discovery, upon which work was actually done, was made by Carl Ladewig, a Bend man who has spent much of his time prospecting in the adjacent country. Ladewig let a number of local men of means into his secret, and a group of claims was taken. It was not until several weeks after the inauguration of this secret work that its nature became generally known. Then the rush started.

Assays from the original group of claims, which have been christened the Golden Raes, have run from $5 to $10 a ton, free milling ore. However, the rock assayed thus far has been taken entirely from the surface. Several tunnels are being driven, and, according to the miners working them, the appearance of the rock encountered is becoming more promising. Already over 50 claims have been staked.

Bring in Mail With Auto

The contractor who has the contract for carrying the mail between here, Cline Falls, Sisters and Prineville has intimated that he would soon put on an auto and deliver the mail two to three hours earlier to points on his route. It is understood that the Cline Falls postmaster objects to an auto mail delivery and stated he would complain to the postal department if the improved mail service is attempted. Postmaster Norwood of this city, has looked up the postal regulations but failed to find any provision that prohibits mail from being carried by autos.

BEND PEOPLE DRAW HOUSES

Good Shows Given Here Last Week by Talent From There

The two plays presented here last week by the Bend Dramatic Co. drew good houses and were well received by the people.

Friday evening "Among the Breakers" was played and won such favorable comment that the company decided to remain over and give another production Saturday night. All the characters in the above play were well sustained and to particularize and elaborate any individual in the cast would be an injustice.

"Down in Dixie" was presented Saturday night and was as ably handled as the play of the previous evening, and the audience was well satisfied. A dance was given after the play.

The Bend people are well pleased with the treatment accorded them by the citizens here, and state that they will endeavor to reciprocate should the Redmond Dramatic club visit their town.

It now looks as if the settlers and water users were going to get their long waited for just deserts.

TEA, CHINESE FASHION.

Try It Some Time When There is No One Watching You.

The American or the Englishman sacrifices his tea to his table manners. He sips it with a spoon when it is hot and its flavor is at the best, or he lets it cool till the aroma is dissipated and makes a confection with cream and sugar that would be just as good without the tea except for the color.

The best thing in tea is the odor, which is only to be had while the leaves are freshly wet and the water very near the boiling point, at least scalding hot. This odor escapes entirely when tea is taken with a spoon, and it isn't there when the tea becomes cool enough to sip in a manner that would be permissible at an American table.

The Russian is frankly fond of strong odors and high flavors, so he boils his tea and heightens its pungency with lemon and sugar. Really he doesn't drink tea at all. But the Chinese or the Japanese drinks tea for the unalloyed tea flavor, and he gets it. It is hardly accurate, either, to say that he drinks tea; he inhales it.

Each cup is freshly brewed, a pinch of leaves in the bottom of the cup, a gill of water within a few degrees of boiling, five minutes for the drawing and it is ready for him to drink; there's that word drink again---ready for him to take. He puts the cup to his lips, opens his mouth just a little, draws in his breath violently with a noise that would be unpardonable at an American table, and the tiniest bit of the hot liquid spreads in spray upon his palate and throat. While he is sucking tea into his mouth the fresh, true tea aroma is being drawn into the nostrils and the combined play upon the senses of taste and smell produces an effect that your American or English tea drinker never gets.

The Chinese uses lots of tea to a little water and if he lets it stand it would be strong and bitter, but he takes it weak because he doesn't wait for the acid and color to be freed into the water.

If you really like tea take it the Chinese way some time when there's no one about to call your manners boorish.---New York Sun.
