MARRIED LIFE NOT A FAILURE

The Benedicts Show the Bachelors They Can "Come Back"

AND BEAT THEM BY A SCORE 9 TO 7

Sunday's Ball Game Hotly Contested by Both the Teams

The ball game played here Sunday afternoon between the married men and bachelors, was pretty close to the real article, and the fans in the grand stand and on the bleachers were kept guessing until the end of the last inning as to which side would win out.

All of the players played their positions well, and considering the time that most of the players had been out of the game some classy plays were pulled off. The final score showed the bachelors on the small end of a 9 to 7 score.

Hamilton, pitching for the bachelors, was hindered in his work by a badly lacerated finger, but pluckily stuck out the nine innings. Zumwalt on the mound for the married men, had good control of the ball and kept the hits well scattered.

Foote and McSherry, catchers, did good work behind the bat.

The game was played in the fast time of one hour and forty minutes.

At the close of the game the bachelors challenged the married men to a game next Sunday, which was accepted. This promises to be a fight worth seeing as the bachelors are determined to win back their lost honors and demonstrate that married life is a failure as far as base ball is concerned. The proceeds of this game will also go into the general fund of the Commercial Club.

ROSES GROW WELL IN THIS SECTION

Redmond People Making a Decided Success of Rose Culture

The person who thinks that roses will not do well and grow to profusion in this section should disabuse their mind of that idea, for it has been demonstrated that all kinds of roses thrive exceedingly well in the soil here.

Mrs. Guy E. Dobson has a number of different kinds of roses in bloom in her garden across the canyon, and Mrs. J. A. Norwood has also had good success with roses. In several places in the city roses that were set out last year are doing nicely.

SETTLERS TO GET RIGHTS

Secretary of State Olcott Will Use Efforts for That Purpose

IRRIGATION CO'S. MUST COME THRU

J. Rufus Wallingford Methods Will Be No Longer Tolerated

Ben W. Olcott, Secretary of State

The above is a picture of Ben W. Olcott, secretary of State and one of the members of the State Desert Land Board.

As an official and as a citizen Mr. Olcott has interested himself in existing conditions between the irrigation companies and water users in the state, and has emphatically declared that he will use his utmost efforts to see that the water users are protected in their contracts and the irrigation companies be compelled to deliver the water they have taken the settlers' money for.

In a recent letter to a Redmond citizen Mr. Olcott says:

"The present Desert Land Board hopes to be of considerable benefit to the settlers in Oregon under the Carey Act projects. I own a little irrigated land myself in the project in your vicinity, my interests lying 5 miles east of Bend. Four or five of us joined our interests and formed what is known as the Pilot Butte Ranch Co. We have 920 acres and have spent a whole lot of money trying to make something of it, and thus contribute our little share to the proposition of making two blades of grass where one had grown before.

"It is hard, uphill work, and though we have given it the best management at our command, it has, at times, been most discouraging. I have grubbed sage brush and junipers, and bucked lava rock until I thought my back never would be right again, and I know exactly what those settlers are up against.

"I think it high time that some of the J. Rufus Wallingfords of the mesas of Central Oregon be brought to account, and it is in the cards that they will be".

An attachment was put on J. W. Baker's bowling alley this week by several of his creditors, and the place been closed up.

PULL FOR THE NEW COMERS

Try to Induce Fall Colonists to Locate in This Section

WE CAN DELIVER THEM THE GOODS

Let Them See the Redmond District and They'll Be Satisfied

Railroad officials of the trans-continental lines centering in Portland are making extensive preparations to carry and take care of the immense fall colonist rush that will begin Sept. 15th, when the cheap railroad rates go into effect, and continue for a month.

From present indications this will be the greatest colonist movement ever headed toward Oregon, and nearly every city, town and commercial body on a railroad's laying plans to secure some of these new comers to locate in their section.

The Redmond Commercial Club and others here interested in securing new settlers should begin now to devise ways and means to induce some of these colonists to locate in the Redmond District.

From advance information it is learned that a large percentage of the colonists have their eyes on Central Oregon as their goal, and it seems reasonably certain that if the right efforts are put forth this section can secure its share of new settlers.

The colonists coming this fall are a different class of people to those who came to Oregon last spring, generally speaking. They are people who have money to invest, and they want to settle down in a country that has a future to it.

We have the country, and we need these new comers to settle here, and the only way to get them is to go after them, the same as other localities will.
