FREEBERG BROS.

"WHERE A DOLLAR DOES ITS DUTY"

Redmond and Vicinity

The bridge on C street that crosses the main canal is being put in condition for travel, and will be built according to specifications from the city engineer's office.

A poor store is quickly "found out" when it commences to advertise—and so is a good one.

E. L. Rapp, who has been engaged in the clothing business here for the past sixteen months, expects to leave for Tonopah, Nevada, about the 15th of the month. He is closing out his business here.

We still have some storage room left. Would you like to keep some potatoes for planting next year? Store them in our frost proof rooms. Redmond Lumber & Produce Co. 22tf

"No longer used—no longer wanted." A classified ad SELLS the still-useful article.

Mrs. Z. T. McClay left Monday morning for Tilamook to visit her son Robert. She expects to remain several weeks.

"A merchant who advertises only as much as he can AFFORD, soon finds himself unable to afford to advertise at all!"

Mr. and Mrs. James Green have moved onto their ranch at Powell Buttes.

The average person knows and notices good advertising—and assumes that the merchant who advertises well does all else well.

Tenants who pay promptly, and who take almost as good care of your property as though it were their own, are to be found. It sounds like fiction—but it's "classified advertising fact."

Owing to sickness in the city there will be no preaching service, Sunday school or Epworth League at the M. E. church Sunday, Dec. 10th.

A prosperous store makes the most of its advertising material—its service, its price-concessions, its exclusive stocks. A store that does not have plenty of advertising material will, of course, not do much advertising—nor much prospering.

The smallest store may spend as much for newspaper advertising as it does for store-rent. The store that spends less for advertising than it does for rent, whether it is as small or a large store will find the rent money harder and harder to raise each month.

Using "good money" to pay for "advertising," intended to reach people who do not read newspaper advertising, is a poor use to which to put good money—for the person who does not read newspaper advertising does not read any other kind, either. He does not know how to read.

The Spokesman has been informed that a new meat market will be started in Redmond about the first of the year by practical and experienced men who state they will give the people an up-to-date market and sell meats at reasonable prices.

G. W. Davies has moved his fish market and oyster house to the building in the Redmond Hotel Annex formerly occupied by W. G. Phoenix as an office. The place has been fixed up to accommodate the needs of the business.

Bells in China.
The natives of China use large bells of their own make in many of their temples and monasteries. I have noticed all through Japan and China that the tone of the monastery and temple bells is very soft and smooth, due to the superior quality of the material used in their manufacture and to the absence of iron clappers, the result being a marvelous softness of tone. The bells are never swung, being always suspended in a fixed frame, and the sound is produced by striking them on the outer edge with a wooden mallet. This makes the soft tones which are so delightfully melodious. —Consular Reports.

Brought Him Back to Earth.
He—What name shall I invent for thee, dearest—what appellation that in a single word can express all my soul's desire, all my heart, all my passion, all— She (exceedingly unromantic—)Well, John, what's the matter with Jane? As a name it's always been good enough for me, and I thought it ought to be good enough for you.
