

STATE TO GET FIFTEEN ELK

Donated By United States
From the Wyoming
Forest Reserves

STATE TO PROVIDE
ELK PARK RESERVE

The Elk Are Magnificent Specimens and Will Thrive Here

Through the efforts of State Game Warden William L. Finley, on his recent visit at Washington, D. C., the government has been persuaded to donate fifteen elk to the state of Oregon. These animals will be taken from the forest reserves of Wyoming, crated and transported to Oregon as soon as the people of this state provide an adequate pasture for them. They will become the sole property of Oregon and serve to perpetuate a race of noble animals that is rapidly becoming extinct.

In the northwestern part of the state there is a 2500 acre pasture that has been set aside by the national government for testing the utility of a coyote proof fence. It is said to have proven effective for that purpose and the forestry service, according to Warden Finley, is willing to give this big park to the state as an elk reserve. The matter of location, however, has not been settled, as this is a question that will be left largely to the state at large, as it is distinctly a matter of public interest.

The Wyoming elk are magnificent specimens and it is believed that they will thrive in this state. Fortunately, the Biological Survey of the Department of Agriculture will meet part of the expenses of crating and transporting the antlered herd from Wyoming to this state. The food for the winter will have to be provided by the people of Oregon. It is expected they will be moved by February and some definite action as to location must be taken before that time.

Several other states have tried to secure these elk in the past, and Oregon ought to feel proud at having been successful in interesting the government in its decision to honor Oregon in this way. Our own elk will soon be extinct. With a starter of 15 animals, there ought soon to be quite a respectable herd. It is absolutely necessary that public sentiment be aroused in this behalf, as it is a matter that can only be brought about by this method. It is believed that the people will stand behind Warden Finley in this effort, as he has given his word that Oregon will find a place to house these animals if the government would give them.

Bend Bulletin Now Set on a Machine

The Bend Bulletin recently installed a linotype typesetting machine that sets type on a solid slug—one of the latest model machines. The issue of the Bulletin this week is set by the new machine. The Spokesman will have their new linotype installed by the latter part of the month so as to be in operation and ready to set the first issue of the paper in January. These two machines are the only ones in the central part of the state.

City Charter Was Expensive

A Bend dispatch to the Spokesman says: The taxpayers of Bend are just awakening to the fact that the city charter which they adopted November 22 was a very expensive instrument. A ready $600 has been paid in drafting and submitting it to the people under the initiative. A tentative draft which was made use of cost the city $200.

The Redmond Steam Laundry has recently been putting a complete steam plant for the plant. A number of the improvements have been made and the laundry will again be in operation for business the coming week after having been down for several days to make the above alterations.

on their drug store was taken up by the recorder, who he wished to have the city take action as to whether the & Roberts should pay the rate tax or not. The matter finally left to the city attorney to ascertain if a drug store constituted a part of a general business according to the law defining the term.

The question of Lynch & Wells paying a license of $100 having an outside party here with a millinery stock selling same from their store, also taken up by the recorder referred to the council. The council decided that it was of the regular business of a store and no license tax necessary.
