DO YOU WANT A GOOD FARM HOME

I offer for sale my farm (80 acres of Carey Act land, 51 acres irrigable, and 160 acres of deeded government land) 3 1/2 miles southwest of Redmond at the northwest slope of Parked Horn butte. All fenced and cross-fenced. 32 acres cleared, on main public road and telephone line; a beautiful location with fine view of mountains. On this land are two well-built stone houses of 5 and 8 rooms, a large stone barn, a smaller frame barn, a stone root house, 100-barrel eastern, 3 1/2 acres of orchard ready to bear, 3 acres of grapes—bore a few last year. Exceptionally free from frost; for the past few years the earliest frosts were Oct. 14, Oct. 27, Oct. 25 and Oct. 17, and I successfully raise corn, beans, squash, pumpkins and melons. Will divide and sell either part for $5,500, or the whole for $12,500; half cash, balance on time.

SHEEP CORRALS LOCATED HERE

Many Thousand Sheep Will Be Driven Here for Shearing at Large Corrals Provided for them South of the City.

Work has been started on the large sheep corrals that are to be built southeast of the city in order to take care of the sheep that will be sheared here this spring. Instructions have been given to the contractor to rush the work as fast as possible in order to get the corrals completed at the earliest possible time.

An experienced man has been engaged to take charge of the corrals, and enough sheepmen have been seen who have agreed to shear their sheep here this spring to bring the total number of sheep that will pass through the corrals up to at least 70,000.

The location of the corrals here will draw sheepmen from a territory of 75 miles. There is plenty of open grazing ground, and abundance of feed in the vicinity of the corrals, and it is expected that the 70,000 sheep that have been pledged for the corrals here will be largely augmented when it becomes widely known that Redmond has exceptional facilities for handling sheep.

Local business men are interested in building the corrals and are furthering the movement of making Redmond a sheep shearing and wool shipping point.

REDMOND'S NEW DEPOT FINEST ON THE LINE

Station Force Moved Into Their Superb New Quarters Last Week.

The new stone depot of the Oregon Trunk and Deschutes railroads at this point was completed last week and the depot force took possession. The depot is, without question, the finest on the line, and is a handsome structure. The stone for the building was bought by the city of Redmond and donated to the railroads. All of the material that entered into the construction of the depot was carefully selected, and the contractors on the different kinds of work took special pains to see that nothing was slighted.

The building is 30x90 feet. At the south end is the ladies' waiting room and toilet, and at the north end is located the men's waiting room, toilet and baggage and express rooms. The ticket office and telegraph office is situated in the center of the building. The floor throughout the building is of terrazo, which is perfectly smooth and takes a high polish. All the telegraph, telephone and semaphore wires enter the depot through underground conduits, thus doing away with unsightly wires on the outside.

The freight office of the two roads is located in a separate building, thus leaving the depot free from the commotion incident upon handling freight business.

Depot Master Haukel states that it is the intention to park the ground around the depot and install a good lighting system as soon as possible. Redmond citizens and the officials of the two roads using the depot can justly feel proud of the edifice.

CROOK COUNTY FARMER

The Crook county farmer knows that quite a number of his friends are waiting for that article on "how to break a young mule," but they will have to wait until next week. In the meantime I shall have to take several doses of my wife's "notion cake" that I might get my head full enough to explode on that subject. And let me tell you that the Spokesman is making me get up and hustle. Lots of other mysteries are going to be made clear to you soon. Watch!

By the way, I was in Redmond last Saturday and had a talk with a fellow who came in from Clime Falls to do a little business. We got to talking about farm product prices on one thing and another, when he made a motion that I should consent to a trade he had under consideration—said he wanted to trade his wife's canary bird for mine. I said no-air-ree! No such deal for me. I have a bird with a record.

Phiz, as we call him, was hatched in a knothole out on the Pacific coast and came to this county with his parents five years ago. The old man bird filled up on juniper berries one night and turned up his claws, leaving Phiz boss. Being so much of a yellow color, the young bird looked so much like the real thing that he left his mother and sought a cage career. He also had his nerve with with, and crawled in my straw hat one summer night and surrendered himself. From that time on Phiz was my friend, but all this is tame when we come down to the sense he has. That's where this bird is a hummer—in education. You see my wife always has a copy of The Spokesman at the bottom of the cage, and this bird is so much of a newspaper man that he won't have any other paper for his carpet. Every time we attempt to put in some other one he kicks the birdseed on the mantelpiece and stands on his head in anger. He isn't fooling, either, for there are reasons. By being in direct communication with the paper day and night, Phiz spent all his idle time making out the A B C's, and got them down so pat that he soon commenced to read as good as his two-legged featherless friends. Phiz is a good friend of cattle and swine, and the reason he reads The Spokesman is because he wants to keep posted on my Florida cows and Canada hogs. The best feature about Phiz is that he is an awful quiet bird and never makes the racket that other canaries make. Instead of making noise he sits on his perch and reads from morn till night, never disturbing anybody. In fact, you can't tell he's in the room. When Friday morning comes, the first thing he does is to look for the paper, and he always gets it when we are through. But last year we made one mistake that I regret, and that was when I put his perch too near the floor of the cage. By looking at the paper so close to his roosting pole, Phiz became near-sighted and stoop-shouldered, and now he has to kneel down to make the letters out. I will try all the jewelry stores in Crook county to get a pair of glasses for him, but I know that Phiz can't wear pinchers 'cause his nose is hiding behind his bill, and the other kind won't fit his ears. Since last month we have been reading my articles out loud to him and he appreciates it so that he offers me birdseed every time I do it. If I can't find a pair of specs for him soon we will have to read them loud to him every week. In this case I might blunder again, for I don't know what distance to be from him when I read. Another little mistake on my part might make him near-sounded as well as near-sighted, and that would put Phiz on the bum. Goodness knows where I can sow bird seed that will bear me another canary bird as smart as Phiz.

With apologies to the editor of this paper I want to add, before dropping this bird subject, that everybody in Crook county ought to see this one important point: If The Spokesman impresses a bird so deeply as to make him forget all else in this world, what won't it do for humanity? We can't all be birds, but thank our stars that my canary's actions are not copyrighted. Do it now and watch for my mule advice next week.

The buildings formerly used as a depot and baggage room by the Oregon Trunk and Deschutes railroads at this point, were loaded on flat cars Monday and will be taken to Metolius for use there.

The Bachelors' Club gave a farewell spread and feed to Wm. Hamilton, one of their members, Monday night. Mr. Hamilton left Tuesday for Indianola, Iowa, Tuesday morning.
