Verdi's Verdict.

At his home in Genoa, one evening in 1890, Verdi sat down to his piano and played some of the music from the score of "Cavalleria Rusticana." Bolto and Tebaldini were present at the time. When the "grand old man" of music came to the end of the duet between Alfredo and Santuzza he cried out, "Enough of this sort of thing," and rose from the piano. Quite a long time afterward Mascagni heard the sequel to the incident. On the morning after it occurred Tebaldini met Verdi and remarked that the latter looked tired. Verdi explained that he had sat up to a very late hour of the night. "After you left," he went on, "I went back to the piano and once more tried over 'Cavalleria,' and it gradually conquered my prejudice and made a great impression on me. There is so much sincerity in its melodies that, in spite of myself, I could not help going on with it, and now I must admit that the work pleases me vastly." And he added, "Here is a young man who will make a name for himself."

Reason For Waiting.

A certain young woman, although she is a trained stenographer, typewriter and bookkeeper, had very bad luck in trying to obtain a position at even a fair salary. Though there was no joke in the continual disappointments, she found a funny side to one experience. The manager of a place whose advertisement she answered told her that the salary paid at first would be $8 a week, that by the end of the year it would be increased to $9, while by the third year she would receive the magnificent sum of $10. Mechanically she agreed to let him know and went out. Apparently she had made a good impression, for when a couple of days had gone by she received a note asking whether she wanted the position or not. She sat down and wrote: "Dear Sir—Of course I intended to accept the position. I am simply waiting for the two years to pass, so that I can begin at $10 per. Yours truly."
