Free Fruit Land at Paisley

Don't be afraid of U. S. Government Carey Act Irrigation projects in Oregon. The day of irresponsible irrigation companies in this state is past. When the Northwest Townsite Co. of Philadelphia took over the Paisley Project, in Lake county, it gave the largest bond ever given in the state-$50,000guaranteeing completion of the project. Every three months it makes an itemized statement of expenses to the Desert Land Board. All of its advertising books, maps, contracts, subscription agreements and literature is submitted to the Desert Land Board for inspection before being issued.

The land is level, free from rock, and is a rich volcanic ash soil. The climate is perfect for fruit, which now grows to perfection at Paisley—apples, peaches, plums, pears, prunes.

Construction work upon the dam and reservoir has now been in progress for three months, with Thomas Hawthorn, state inspector, on the ground. He was formerly with the U. S. Govt. Reclamation Service on the Umatilla Project.

Send for 32-page illustrated book. Go to Paisley by automobile stage from Bend and see the land. Our agent at Paisley, Hugh K. Gilmour, will show you the land. It is free to those who pay the cost of putting water on it.

Northwest Townsite Co. are among the largest taxpayers in Oregon, owning townsite sub-divisions at Prineville, Madras, Redmond, Bend, Burns, Vale and also the 840-acre Conn Ranch at Paisley, including a 50-barrel-a-day capacity flour mill, and a general store.

The White Ship.

No. of Acres

The age of chivalry is supposed to that age when young men dressed uselves up in armor and pounded another with lances and swords. is perhaps well to recall the story the White Ship, which in the year 120 carried to England the grandson the Norman conqueror. This ship ras captained by the son of the man who had steered across the conqueror uself. The ship sank. There was only one lifeboat. The young prince was put in that, to be rowed away. His sister screamed. He put back to save her also. So many leaped into the boat from the sinking ship that all were drowned except one butcher. who clung to the mast. The passengers on this ship were 140 picked and no-ble knights, guarding the person of their future king.—Collier's Weekly.

"Such a small thing as a telephone number has some significance in the standing of a firm," remarked a man who had little else to do but talk and

"How so?" asked the other.

"Take the low numbers-'Broad 1." for instance-and, as a rule, it will be the number belonging to an old established firm, provided, of course, that firm has remained in one location. The firm now bearing the above number was in existence before telephones were in use at all, and in like manner it is possible to ascertain the old established business bouses. If a firm moves, but remains in the same exchange, it has the privilege of retaining its original telephone number sale. Apply to X, The Spokesman Americans don't care much for age and long established anything, as a class, but there are many firms in this city that are proud of their telephone numbers in a system where the numbers run high up in the thousands."-New York Press.

Reversed His Decision.

"We once had a customer," said an undertaker, "who had lost his wife and who came to us to bury her, which we did. After the funeral he came back to us He had selected the casket in which his wife was buried, and now he bought one just like it for himself. He was a man in health, with no prospect of death, so far as that was concerned, but he was greatly grieved and cast down over the death of his wife, and when he should die he wanted to be buried in a casket just like that in which we had buried her. So he bought this casket, and we held it

"Something more than a year after he met another woman with whom he fell in love and whom he married, and after that we got a letter from him saying:

"'Sell my casket. I've no use for it now.' "-New York Sun.

Women's Love of Ugly Men. The illustrious men in history who were distinguished as much for the fascination which they exercised over the fair sex as for their talents and ability were, as a rule, plain and insignificant in appearance. Julius Caesar was a very ill favored man, and yet when a mere stripling, before his fame in Rome, girls of his own age sighed for him and mature women longed for his love. Among the men of later times who were renowned in like manner were Sir Philip Sidney, plain almost to ugliness; Paul Scarron, the comic poet, a cripple; Voltaire, unmistakably ugly, and Rousseau, whose manners were awkward as his face

Low Telephone Numbers in New York. Was plain, while John Wilkes, who had ed, before I. P. Hewitt, U. S. Comwho spoke to him for even five minutes, was admitted by his own showing to be the ugliest man in England in his time.

The Lure of Opiates,

"It is human nature to wish to ease pain and to stimulate ebbing vitality. There is no normal adult who, experiencing severe pain or sorrow or fa tigue and thoroughly appreciating the immediate action of an easily accessible opiate, is not likely in a moment of least resistance to take it," says Charles B. Towns in the Century. "Every one who has become addicted to a drug has started out with small occasional doses, and no one has expected to fall a victim to the habit. Indeed, many have been totally unaware that the medicine they were taking contained any drug whatever. Thus, the danger being one that threatens us all, it is every man's business to insist that the entire handling and sale of the drug be under as careful supervision as possible."

One Divided by a Half. If you ask the man in the street the simple question, What is one divided by a half? he will either reply that the operation is an impossible one or that the answer is a half. When you point out that one divided by two is a half he will see that there is something wrong somewhere, but will still be quite unable to give the right answer. When you tell him that the answer is two he will either accept the assertion without understanding it or will dispute it tooth and nail. If you attempt to convince him of his error you will find it is not at all an easy task. His mistake arises through the confounding of two distinct ideas-namely, one divided into two and one divided by two. One divided into two is one divided into two parts, each part con taining a half. One divided by two is of times two is contained in one. To any one who has thought the matter out this seems clear enough, but to the man in the street it is sheer ransense. and he will tell you so .- Exchange.
