

Free Fruit Land at Paisley

Don't be afraid of U. S. Government Carey Act Irrigation projects in Oregon. The day of irresponsible irrigation companies in this state is past. When the Northwest Townsite Co. of Philadelphia took over the Paisley Project, in Lake county, it gave the largest bond ever given in the state—$50,000—guaranteeing completion of the project. Every three months it makes an itemized statement of expenses to the Desert Land Board. All of its advertising books, maps, contracts, subscription agreements and literature is submitted to the Desert Land Board for inspection before being issued.

The land is level, free from rock, and is a rich volcanic ash soil. The climate is perfect for fruit, which now grows to perfection at Paisley—apples, peaches, plums, pears, prunes.

Construction work upon the dam and reservoir has now been in progress for three months, with Thomas Hawthorn, state inspector, on the ground. He was formerly with the U. S. Govt. Reclamation Service on the Umatilla Project.

Send for 32-page illustrated book. Go to Paisley by automobile stage from Bend and see the land. Our agent at Paisley, Hugh K. Gilmour, will show you the land. It is free to those who pay the cost of putting water on it.

Northwest Townsite Co. are among the largest taxpayers in Oregon, owning townsite sub-divisions at Prineville, Madras, Redmond, Bend, Burns, Vale and also the 840-acre Conn Ranch at Paisley, including a 50-barrel-a-day capacity flour mill, and a general store.

SUMMONS

In the Circuit Court of the State of Oregon, for the County of Crook. Central Oregon Irrigation Company, a corporation, plaintiff, vs. R. B. McAshland, defendant.

To R. B. McAshland:

In the name of the State of Oregon: You are hereby required to appear and answer the complaint filed against you in the above entitled suit within six weeks from the day of the first publication of this summons and if you fail to so appear and answer, for want thereof, the plaintiff will apply to the Court for the relief prayed for in the complaint, to-wit: for the cancellation and setting aside of a certain contract, dated June 6th, 1908, made between you and the Deschutes Irrigation and Power Company and assigned to said plaintiff, relating to the settlement of certain lands, and the purchase of water rights appurtenant thereto, situate in Crook County, Oregon, and for such other and further relief as may seem to the Court just and equitable.

This summons is served upon you by publication by authority of an order of the Hon. W. L. Bradshaw, Judge of the Circuit Court of the State of Oregon for the County of Crook, and said order is dated the 16th day of November, 1912, and is duly recorded and entered in said Court and suit.

Date of first publication, November 21, 1912.

flal house of his bank smiled sadly at the mob in front of its huge pillars, ordered its bronze doors closed, walked around the corner to his home, locked himself in his room and blew his brains out.

For a week the panic held the financial world in the grip of death. A dozen banks had closed their doors and a score of men who had long boasted their courage among men had died the death of cowards when put to the test.

One of the most curious results of the panic was the revulsion of popular feeling against the daring and honest young officer of the law who had rendered the greatest service to the people wrought by any public servant in a generation. He was hailed as the arch traitor of the people, the man who had used his high office to produce a panic and carve a fortune out of the ruin of millions whose deposits were tied up in banks that might never again open their doors.

Stuart, stung to desperation by their infamous charges, attempted at first to repel them. He stopped at last in disgust and maintained afterward a dignified silence.

From the first day of the run Bivens had laughed in the face of the crowd that besieged the door of his big Broadway bank. He stood on top of the granite steps and shouted in their faces:

"Come on, you dirty cowards! I've got your money inside waiting for you, every dollar of it—100 cents on the dollar!"

The crowd made no reply. They merely moved up in line in stolid silence a little closer to the door. Each day this line had grown longer. Bivens was not worrying. The king had spoken. The folly of these people in their insane efforts to wreck Bivens' bank was making impossible a return to normal business.

Stuart determined to face this crowd and have it out with them. He believed that a bold appeal to their reason would silence his critics and allay their insane fears. He told Bivens of his purpose over the telephone, and the banker protested vigorously:

"Don't do it, Jim, I beg of you," he pleaded. "It will be a waste of breath. Besides, you risk your life."

"I'll be there when the bank opens at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning," was the firm answer.

When Stuart appeared the next morning a roar of rage swept the crowd. Howls, curses, catcalls, hisses, hoots and yells were hurled into his face. It was a new experience in Stuart's life. He flushed red, stood for a moment surveying the mob with growing anger and lifted his hand for silence.

The answer was a storm of hisses. Apparently he hadn't a friend in all the firm.
