Geese Flying North—
For the past few nights flocks of wild geese flying north have passed over the city. Whether this is an indication of an early spring no one seems to know. Anyway, the geese are flying north earlier this year than in former years.

Councilmen Sworn In—
At the city council meeting Tuesday night Councilmen R. C. Immele and Robt. McSherry, W. G. Phoenix and C. N. Ehret, newly elected, took the oath of office.

Sunday Sermons—
Sunday school at the Presbyterian church at 4 1/2 a. m. Preaching and communion at 11 a. m. Topic: "The Sublime Constraint." Evening topic "The Master's Call."

Lights to be Better—
As soon as a new pole line is strung in the alley between 5th and 6th streets the electric lights in that immediate vicinity will be served from that line and be much better than they are now.

Poultry Show Draws—
The Redmond Poultry Show the in session but two days so far, is drawing good sized crowds from all parts of the county.

Fine Weather Again—
For the past ten days the weather in this section has been all that could be desired—but the winter is not near over yet.

His Knee Is Better—
W. J. Buckley of Cloverdale, who recently injured his knee while pulling stumps on his ranch, was in the city Sunday. His knee is much better, though troublesome at times.

Light Poles Arrive—
A consignment of electric light poles arrived Monday for the light and power company, and soon will be placed in position and wires strung to take care of the increased business the company is getting.

Visit His Old Home—
M. A. Lynch left last Friday morning for his old home in Washington, D. C. He will go via San Francisco, Los Angeles, New Orleans, Nashville, Tenn., and New York, expecting to be gone about six weeks.

Brightest Place in City—
W. E. Young's Redmond Grill, since the installation of electric lights from the new lighting system, is ablaze with light at night, and an attractive place. The place shows up as bright as a New York City lobster palace.

Looking for Location—
P. J. Gallagher, an attorney of Phillip, S. D., was here last week on a business trip. He liked the looks of the Redmond country and stated he might locate here. Before finally deciding he said he would make a trip south into the Lakeview section.

Many People Here—
Many people from Sisters, Terrebonne, Crooked River, Deschutes, Powell Butte and other places contiguous to Redmond, attended the dedication of the Farmers' Union Warehouse here last Friday.

Newspaper Man Here—
C. W. Myers, representing the Oregonian, was here Friday and Saturday to "write up" the dedication exercises of the Farmers' Union Warehouse. He was also gathering other material about this section of the county for publication in the Oregonian. Mr. Myers is a brother of O. A. Myers, vice president of the Farmers' Union Warehouse Co.

Attended the Exercises—
Lee Zumwalt was over from Sisters Friday and attended the exercises of the dedication of the big potato warehouse.

Was a Good Old Time—
Those who attended the big ball at the potato warehouse last Friday night said they had the best time of their lives. There were waltzes, two steps, old fashioned quadrilles, and other dances, and no one had cause to complain that they could not get the kind of a dance to suit them.

Appointed Deputy Sheriff—
W. E. Van Allen, who has a ranch near the city, has been appointed a deputy sheriff by Sheriff Elkins.

Went to Spokane—
J. W. Brewer of this city, who attended the Irrigation Congress at Portland last week, left after the congress closed for Spokane to attend to some business matters. He is expected home today.

New Industry Started—
G. W. Davies, the old veteran blacksmith of this city, has opened a general blacksmithing shop and iron and wood working factory on west E street near the corner of 8th street. He has the machinery necessary to do all kinds of iron and wood work—large lathe for turning out porch columns, etc., band saws, mortising machines, and in fact everything complete for the speedy and economical handling of the above work. He is also engaged in the second hand business, buying and selling.

May Locate at Walla Walla—
A letter received recently from G. M. Slocum, former cashier of the Redmond Bank of Commerce, says he may go into the banking business at Walla Walla, Wn.

A GET TOGETHER MEETING
Terrebonne Citizens Working in Harmony for Their Town

The people of Terrebonne are going to do something for their town, and put more life and snap into it and let the outside people know they are on the map. A few nights ago a well attended meeting was held there for the purpose of discussing conditions for the betterment of the town. The women folks furnished a big supper for the meeting and took part in the proceedings, and it is expected much good will be accomplished.

PUMP BROKE, WATER SHY

Water Plant at Terrebonne Is Put Out of Commission

Terrebonne Oregonian: For the past three days the people of Terrebonne have been up against a water famine owing to the fact that Jack Frost got busy with the engine in the pump house and inserted a small piece of ice at the end of the piston rod. When Fred Taylor attempted to start the engine Tuesday morning the bit of ice objected so effectively as to cause some of the essential parts of the engine to part company, rendering it useless until new parts could be obtained. A telegram was immediately dispatched to the supply house at Portland, but the parts are slow about putting in an appearance and yesterday Messrs. Wilder and Neeley went into the blacksmith shop and repaired the broken part so as to be of service for a time.

CROOK COUNTY STATISTICS

Prineville Journal: According to the county records there were 22 deaths and 126 births in the county for the year 1912. Eighteen divorces were granted. There were 112 marriages in 1912, 27 more than for the year previous. In the birth rate there were two more males than females—62 girls and 64 boys.

PERSONAL

Mrs. Geo. C. Truesdale of Powell Butte, was here Friday as an interested spectator at the potato warehouse dedication.

J. P. Doherty of Prineville, attended the ceremonies at the warehouse dedication last Friday afternoon and in the evening "shook his foot" at the big ball.

Allen Willcoxon and wife of Powell Butte, were visitors here at the dedicatory exercises of the potato warehouse, and took in the ball in the evening.

A. M. Overturf of Sisters, was a Redmond visitor last Friday to participate in the potato warehouse dedication, and enjoyed himself at the big dance in the evening.

City Recorder I. P. Hewitt returned Monday night from a visit in Nebraska with relatives and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. East, daughter Nettie and son Stanley were up from Deschutes Tuesday.

more extensive schemes that we hear talked about if by so doing we would have to neglect some of the less extensive ones. I am opposed to the larger schemes if they hurt the small ones.

Promoters Are Rapped

"We who are on the smaller projects want help first. Our children will be gray before this work is carried out if the state doesn't step in and give us a lift."

Mr. Gerking did not close his remarks without taking a well directed fling at the real estate promoters who are flooding the country with literature falsely setting forth the resources and advantages of Oregon. He advocated a state censorship of all advertising matter bearing upon the public or private lands of the state.

"This idea of advertising Central Oregon or other parts of the state," he asserted, "with flaming literature is all wrong. The legislature ought to pass an act placing a strict censorship on all advertising matter. Money spent in this matter is worse than wasted. What are the results?"

"You get people out into the interior from the east or from other countries. They expect to see land the way it is represented to them. But they don't see anything of the kind. They are told that they will find land under cultivation, bearing orchards, shade trees, beautiful gardens and the like, but they find sage brush and juniper trees. They find hard work ahead of them."

State Receives Bad Name

"They go away disgusted. They leave the state and tell about their experiences in other states. I know of hundreds of people who have come to Oregon within the last few years, attracted here by the real estate promoters, and who have gone back with mighty poor recollections of their visit. They give the state a bad name."

"We want to make the land attractive to the settler. We have to make it cheap. It is up to you people of Portland to help. It is up to you to invest some of your money in the interior instead of spending it trying to get people to come here from other states, so that you can fatten off of them."

Mr. Gerking Is Backed Up

Mr. Gerking's sentiments regarding the impracticability of the Carey Act and the viciousness of the average advertisement of the Oregon land boomer met with a hearty response from a battery of well informed speakers who followed him.

J. W. Brewer of this city, confirmed all of Mr. Gerking's statements. He has been over the Columbia Southern project himself and knows all about the condition of the land there. The land needs water and it is hard to get private capital to furnish water. State aid is necessary, he said.
