SELLING EGGS DIRECT TO THE CONSUMER

Oregon Agricultural College, Corvallis, Ore., August 11.—By a system of marketing direct from producer to consumer, farmers and other producers may obtain five or six cents per dozen more than current prices for strictly fresh eggs, while the consumers in large cities may obtain strictly fresh eggs at five or six cents per dozen below current market prices. These facts were learned in a direct market experiment, extending through a year or more, conducted by the poultry department of the Oregon Agricultural College under the management of Professor James Dryden.

During the time covered by the experiment the eggs were gathered daily, or twice a day in very warm weather, and kept in a cool place until ready for shipment, usually three or four days. They were then packed in a neat case containing 12 dozen eggs and shipped by express to Portland customers. Express charges on the eggs were 35 cents, the distance being about 100 miles. Return charges on the empty case were five cents. Thus the entire cost of transportation was about three cents per dozen. This charge could be reduced one-half by shipping two cases at a time, as they could both be sent and returned for the price of one.

One of the main disadvantages of the present system of marketing through the middlemen is the unbusiness like method of buying from the producer at one price for all grades. Eggs are received in mixed lots, big and little, clean and dirty, fresh and stale, at the same price for all. But they have not all the same value, and when they are candied and classified by the commission men, some are found worthless and thrown out, others inferior and quoted at lower prices, while the strictly fresh eggs are made to bear the loss on the poor ones, as well as the profits of the dealers.

The direct market plan is giving excellent satisfaction to consumers in Portland. In the course of a year one customer received but two eggs in damaged condition, and they were but slightly cracked. The eggs were cheaper than the public market eggs and in such good condition that his small family used them by the case without any loss.

That the system is practicable for farmers and city consumers, Professor Dryden has no doubt. The poultry department of the O. A. C. is willing to co-operate with farmers, through the college extension division, in securing direct markets in Portland for a limited number of guaranteed eggs.

LA PINE GOOD

dred people and from a stand erected on the depot site of the Oregon Trunk right of way in the limits of La Pine, for three hours last Saturday afternoon Col. Charles W. Thatcher, Judge W. D. Worden, President M. A. Lynch of the Crook County Good Roads Association, Mayor Putnam of Bend, W. D. Barnes of Laidlaw, Rev. Mr. Poets of Klamath Falls, and G. W. Davis of Crescent, expounded good roads gospel.

Colonel Thatcher arrived there at 12 o'clock. At 11 o'clock, however, he was met by the La Pine delegation at the Crook and Klamath county line, six miles south of town, where dedication services were held over the establishment of the Lincoln National Highway movement. A speech was read by Judge Worden.

Colonel Thatcher was given an ovation. The cause of good roads received a remarkable presentation at his hands. Eugene and Portland were the colonel's announcement of proposed routes to the state of the Lincoln and Washington National Highways, an important western division of the Lincoln Highway. He said it would go over the Cody road in Wyoming to Yellowstone Park and Crater Lake National Park to Klamath Falls, Crescent, La Pine, Bend, Redmond, Laidlaw, Sisters, Eugene and Portland to connect with this main route. The branch will be extended from The Dalles via the present route, Madras, Prineville and Redmond. One branch of the Washington Highway will cross the state from Boise via Vale, Harney, Prineville, Redmond and Eugene to Portland and Seattle.

One striking fact is that A. L. Westgard, vice-president of the National Highway Association, who is now in California, will tour Central Oregon. He will follow the route recommended by Colonel Thatcher.

Judge Worden's address was a message of good cheer. He said that Klamath county would build its share of Lincoln Highway to the Crook county line. M. A. Lynch and the other speakers bore principally upon the importance of carrying the bond issue of $200,000 at a special election to occur in November.

Among the prominent railroad men present were John Scott Mills, L. M. Foss of the O.-W., and J. T. Hardy of the Oregon Trunk railroad.

FOREST NOTES

An organization of scientists who are engaged in the study of forest insects has recently been formed in Washington.

Pencil manufacturers are buying up old red cedar fence rails in Tennessee and southward, to be made into lead pencils.

The buffalo herd on the Wichita National Forest, Oklahoma, now numbers 48, 10 calves having been born this year. When the buffalo were introduced on the Wichita in 1907 there were 15 head.

A conservative movement has been started in China, said to be richer in natural resources than any other nation. The Chinese use the word "conservancy" instead of conservation. One of their plans for the Hwai river contemplates dredging and tillage together to control floods.

The steel towers that support electric power transmission lines are being increasingly used by forest rangers as fire lookout stations on national forests. With the harnessing of the mountain streams a network of these lines is gradually being woven over the forests, and in the absence of other convenient lookouts, the rangers find the steel towers helpful in their fire patrol work.
