Too Great a Risk.
A Chicago lawyer found a new sort of therapeutic treatment. His instructor told him that if he retired into the silence, breathed rhythmically and said certain words he would be able to cast off all his bodily ailments. He tried it, and it worked. Then his three-year-old child got measles, and he worked it on him. He was all puffed up. Later his prize setter contracted the mange. He summoned a veterinary. Then a friend expostulated. "Your system worked with yourself, and it worked with your child," he said. "Why don't you try it on the dog?" "That dog cost me $100 when he was a mere pup," was the answer, "and I can't afford to take any chances."—Argonaut.

Late Trial For Witchcraft.
A trial for witchcraft and sorcery occurred in England in 1881. This was the trial of the Fletchers, who were famous clairvoyants, crystal gazers and mesmerists, who gave seances to which the whole fashionable world flocked. They induced a Mrs. Hart Davis to give them jewelry and lace to the value of £10,000 and when proceedings were taken against them fled to America. The husband managed to escape arrest, but Mrs. Fletcher was brought back to England, indicted under the old statute of witchcraft and sorcery and sentenced to twelve months' imprisonment with hard labor.—London Spectator.

"Rastus, what's an alibi?"
"Dat's provin' dat yoh was at a prayer meetin' whar yoh wasn't, in order to show dat yoh wasn't at de crap game whar yoh was."

Every man likes to say that when he was younger he was quite handy with his mitts. Also, that he was a devil among the girls.

Missionary—And you found no happiness in leading a double life?
Sinner—I felt as if I were leading the lives of two dogs.

Saphedde—It costs me $25,000 a year to live.
Miss Caustique—How foolishly some people spend their money.

SUMMONS

In the Circuit Court of the State of Oregon, for Crook County.
Louise C. Davenport, plaintiff, vs.
Moses A. Gulick, Bertha M. Gulick, O. G. Adams, S. W. Yancy, defendants.
To Moses A. Gulick and Bertha M. Gulick, the above named defendants:

In the name of the State of Oregon you are hereby required to appear and answer the complaint filed against you in the above entitled suit on or before the 26th day of December, 1913, said day being more than 42 days from the date of the first publication of this Summons and Notice; and if you fail to so appear and answer, for want thereof the plaintiff will apply to the Court for the relief prayed for in the Complaint herein, to-wit: that judgment be entered against you for the sum of Nine Hundred Dollars with interest thereon at the rate of ten per cent per annum from September 18, 1912; for Ninety Dollars attorney's fees and for the costs and disbursements of this suit. That the usual decree be entered by this Court that the Northeast quarter of the Northwest quarter, the North half of the Northeast quarter and the Southeast quarter of the Northeast quarter of Section thirty in Township fourteen, south, of Range seventeen East of the Willamette Meridian be sold by the sheriff of this county according to law and that the proceeds of said sale be applied to the satisfaction of the costs of said sale, the costs of this suit and the satisfaction of the claim of the plaintiff.

That all of the above named defendants and each of you and all persons claiming or to claim under you be barred and foreclosed of any right or equity of redemption therein, in except as provided by statute and that the plaintiff have such other and further relief as to the Court may seem equitable in the premises. This Summons is served upon you by publication by order of the Honorable G. Springer, Judge of the County Court of Crook County, Oregon, made November 10, 1913. By said order it was directed that this Summons be published in the Redmond Spokesman, a weekly newspaper published at Redmond, Oregon, once each successive week for six consecutive weeks and the date of the first publication thereof is November 13, 1913, the date named in said order for the first publication.

HIS RISE TO POWER

even, devoid of emotion, as he began to instruct the jury. Critical listeners observed that his charge favored the defendant rather more strongly than the evidence seemed to require. They attributed it to his anxiety not to be biased by the fact that the district attorney was his son. Judge Dunmunde was said to possess an admirably judicial temperament. The jury, impatiently led by the fat bailli, fled out of the courtroom. There were no other cases on the day's list, and the judge stalked down from the bench to await the verdict in his chambers. John went to his office. Senator Murchell and Whitledge conducted the drooping Sheehan to the witness room away from the curious eyes of the crowd. Most of the spectators waited to see the end of the drama.

A half hour later the buzz of conversation suddenly ceased. The judge was returning to the bench. Sheehan, with Whitledge and Murchell, took his seat by the table. They were followed by John. Then the jury filed back into the box.

"Gentlemen of the jury, hearken to your verdict as the court hath recorded it. You find the defendant guilty as indicted. And so say you all!" said the clerk.

The jurors nodded. Sheehan fell back in his chair with an audible groan. Two big tears coursed ludicrously down his fat cheeks. But nobody laughed. He plucked anxiously at Murchell's sleeve.

"Have I got to go to jail?" he whimpered.

Murchell drew away from the touch. "Not unless our friend Whitledge has forgotten how to delay justice."

The jury was discharged. Whitledge informed the court that the defense would move for a new trial, bail was renewed, and the court was adjourned. The audience slowly made its way out into the square, where it knots of noisy, excited men gathered.

John saw Sheehan standing forlornly by the table. The big, ponderous figure with the misery shining out of its eyes seemed very pathetic. And, after all, Sheehan was the worst victim of the system. Impulsively John went over to him. Sheehan suddenly seized one of John's hands in both his own

"Johnny, can't you get me out of this—let me off? I'll get out of here—never go into politics again, so help me!"

John's heart gave him a wrench as he shook his head. "I wish I could, Sheehan," he replied honestly. "But you're out of my hands now."

He turned away sadly, no sense of triumph in his victory.

When he appeared at the door of the courthouse some one raised a cheer. It passed along from group to group, until all in the square had joined in a short, sharp salute. It was not an hysterical demonstration but unusual for calm, self-contained New Chelsea. It lasted only a few seconds.

"Young man," said Senator Murchell, "enjoy this moment. It won't last long. You are at your apex—you are a hero among your neighbors. But they are cheering you, not what you said."

"Not me, but what I said. They see a principle."
"You're not the first man who has held that delusion—to his sorrow."
