WOMAN BURNED TO DEATH NEAR BEND

(Bend Bulletin, Nov. 12)

Burned in a terrible manner while alone at her home six miles east of town yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Ella N. Bragg, wife of C. M. Bragg, a rancher, died this morning. The agony she bore before death relieved her was awful. The Bragg home was also destroyed by the fire, the origin of which will never be definitely known as the burned woman was in too great pain to talk of the accident. Mr. Bragg, who had come to Bend yesterday for supplies, supposes that in starting a fire in the cook stove with old shingles and kerosene an explosion resulted and her clothing became ignited. He saw the smoke from the burning house when he was about two miles from home, and as it appeared to be his place he whipped up the horses. In the meantime a neighbor who was on horseback went on ahead as fast as he could and reached the house before Mr. Bragg did. Had it not been for the arrival of this man the barn would have burned also, as Mrs. Bragg, in her excitement, had gone into the barn and torn off part of her burning clothing there.

The first person to reach her was the little girl of C. L. Smith who had gotten on a pony and ridden over to the Bragg home when the smoke of the fire was seen. When Mr. Bragg arrived his wife had started along the road toward the Smith home and had gone about 100 yards, the little Smith girl in the meantime having returned home to tell her aunt of the tragedy. Mr. Bragg hastened on to his home and got a rig to put his wife in to take her to the nearest neighbor's. When he got back to her she had walked on another hundred yards or so. She was taken to the Smith place and was in such pain that she walked the floor until Dr. Ferrell arrived and ministered to her wants. Her body was terribly burned, from head to foot. Death relieved her of her agony this morning about 5:30 o'clock.

"Yes," said the fugitive, "I understand. You have two kinds of law that apply to my case."
 "True," they told him. "And we have ten ways of evading them."
 "Good," said the fugitive. "Give me about seven of them at the usual market price."

"But listen a moment, Matilda. Don't you think a good husband ought to tell his wife of her faults?"
 "Lysander, a good husband does not think his wife has any faults."

SUMMONS

In the Circuit Court of the State of Oregon, for Crook County.
 Louise C. Davenport, plaintiff, vs.
 Moses A. Gulick, Bertha M. Gulick, O. G. Adams, S. W. Yancy, defendants.

To Moses A. Gulick and Bertha M. Gulick, the above named defendants:

In the name of the State of Oregon you are hereby required to appear and answer the complaint filed against you in the above entitled suit on or before the 26th day of December, 1913, said day being more than 42 days from the date of the first publication of this Summons and Notice; and if you fail to so appear and answer, for want thereof the plaintiff will apply to the Court for the relief prayed for in the Complaint herein, to-wit: that judgment be entered against you for the sum of Nine Hundred Dollars with interest thereon at the rate of ten per cent per annum from September 18, 1912; for Ninety Dollars attorney's fees and for the costs and disbursements of this suit. That the usual decree be entered by this Court that the Northeast quarter of the Northwest quarter, the North half of the Northeast quarter and the Southeast quarter of the northeast quarter of Section thirty in Township fourteen, South, of Range seventeen East of the Willamette Meridian be sold by the sheriff of this county according to law and that the proceeds of said sale be applied to the satisfaction of the costs of said sale, the costs of this suit and the satisfaction of the claim of the plaintiff.

That all of the above named defendants and each of you and all persons claiming or to claim under you be barred and foreclosed of any right or equity of redemption therein except as provided by statute and that the plaintiff have such other and further relief as to the Court may seem equitable in the premises.

This Summons is served upon you by publication by order of the Honorable G. Springer, Judge of the County Court of Crook County, Oregon, made November 10, 1913. By said order it was directed that this Summons be published in the Redmond Spokesman, a weekly newspaper published at Redmond, Oregon, once each successive week for six consecutive weeks and the date of the first publication thereof is November 13, 1913, the date named in said order for the first publication.

SUMMONS

In the Circuit Court of the State of Oregon, for Crook County.
 Oma Locke, plaintiff,
 vs.
 Earl Locke, defendant.

This summons is served upon you by publication by order of the Honorable G. Springer, Judge of the County Court of Crook County, Oregon, made November 10, 1913. By said order it was directed that this Summons be published in the Redmond Spokesman, a weekly newspaper published at Redmond, Oregon, once each successive week for six consecutive weeks and the date of the first publication thereof is November 13, 1913, the date named in said order for the first publication.

HIS RISE TO POWER

sympathy with it."
 "I am not." The judge laid his book on the desk and sat stiffly erect. John was immediately enabled to sympathize with those unfortunates who were arraigned before his father.

"Now that the case is ended, I may speak frankly. As a judge I, of course, approve of the punishment of crime. But I don't approve your going out of your way to attack your party and Senator Murchell, a fine, clean living gentleman, who has always showed the warmest friendship for your family." Judge Dunmeade spoke with restrained emphasis.

"And has created a pernicious machine," John added incautiously.
 "Which elected you to the office you now hold."

"Your memory isn't good, Judge. The machine nominated me. The people of Benton county elected me, you may remember."

"You couldn't have been nominated without Murchell's indorsement."
 "That, I'm sorry to say, is probably true," John said, wishing that he had not ventured into the room. "I'm sorry you feel so about it. Good night, father."

Judge Dunmeade resumed his book. Now, the judicial temperament is not given to impulse. But as John went slowly out of the room Judge Dunmeade experienced a novel sensation which in the brief moment allowed for reflection he was at loss to define. Later he decided that it was his generous nature asserting itself to give his son another chance. He may have been mistaken.

Be that as it may, before John had passed quite out of the room he was recalled by an unexpected "Wait!"

He returned. "Yes, father?"
 "I suppose," said the judge gruffly, "your father's interest can have no weight with you. It ought to be clear to you without suggestion from me that if you persist in attacking Senator Murchell you make my lifelong ambition impossible."

"Are you still taking that seriously?" The senator has been teasing you along with the promise of a justiceship for ten years. Don't you know by this time that he has no intention of giving it to you?"

"He gave you a nomination."

"Yes, he happened to believe he could make use of me. It seems to be solely a question of the senator's political necessities. I—I doubt that he needs you, father."

"That means, I presume," the judge said bitterly, "that I count for nothing against your notions? But I might have known it. Good night!" he repeated.

Out in the clear night John walked slowly about. More than ever he realized the price which they must pay who would be voices.

(To be continued)

"What is your attitude on the tariff?"
 "Something," replied Senator Sorghum, "like that of a man who is walking a tight rope."

Artist (angrily)—No, I tell you, I don't want a model—I only paint flowers and fruit.

Model (sweetly)—That's all right. Everyone says I'm a peach.
