MAIL ORDER HOUSES TAKING ADVANTAGE

Under the above heading the Prineville Review of last week published the following:

Few people know that many of such men as Morgan and other financiers are back of the great mail order institutions, but it is a fact, and they are the power which the country merchants must contend with goes without saying. As the new parcel post rates are now in force the mail order merchants are reading the country papers and are watching the advertisements with eagle eyes. When they find that the merchants do not use the papers to advertise their goods they immediately flood the country with their catalogues—they well know the farmers want to see the prices in black and white.

The Hillsboro Independent publishes the plan outlined by a merchant of that town to meet the condition and give the mail order houses a set back. It says:

The plan is for the business men to unite and buy space in the local papers for a year, the space to be filled with the cards of the different merchants. In effect this would be a business directory and would at least inform the readers of the paper, many of whom it must not be forgotten, are new comers, what lines of business are represented in Hillsboro.

The business man figured that there are more than 100 different concerns in the city, only a small proportion of which invite trade or let the people know they are in business through the columns of the papers.

The Independent has believed merchants have not availed themselves of this method of meeting outside competition to the extent they might. The business directory plan cannot but accomplish good and emphatically advertise the business resources of the city, but we believe in addition a strong effort to attract business should be made by detailed description of weekly offerings, and if possible, the prices asked.

Of course, there is the merchant who says advertising does not pay, but he has his answer in the statement of the catalogue house manager. Used intelligently as the catalogue house uses it, it returns a big per cent on the investment, but it should always be considered an investment, not an expense.

Governor West says he is going right ahead with his plans for the state and federal government taking over the North Canal Project irrespective of any action the Desert Land Board may take to try to hamper him in the matter. He says that with the united support of the settlers and business men in this section favoring his plan for completing the project he is sure to succeed. This sounds good to the people here and they will give the governor all the assistance in their power to help along in putting the North Canal Project in a condition for early completion.

The action of farmers in this section joining the Redmond Commercial Club is a good one and is to be commended. By all classes in the club, working together for one common end—the upbuilding of this section—unlimited results can be accomplished for all the people here, farmers and town people have the common interest at heart, the future prosperity of Redmond and the surrounding country.

Candidates for governor or springing up as thick as leaves on a tree, and nearly every locality has one—except this part of Central Oregon. But there is yet time for some ambitious man aroundabouts here to get in the "huckleberry picnic for the gubernatorial race.

The Desert Land Board is against the governor in his propositions to help out this section of the state with irrigation, but the governor says he is going to put through the North Canal Project, anyway. We are all with you, governor, on this subject.

Some of the people in the western part of the county are getting the county division idea into their heads and working out a plan to try and have the county cut up into three small counties. Why add any more taxation expense than what we now have?

Remember that water rents are now payable on or before the 10th of each month, and if not paid by the 10th a penalty will be added, and if allowed to run until the 15th of the month the water will be shut off. And there you are.

This continued moist weather is sure bringing a smile to the faces of the dry farmers in this part of Central Oregon, for it assures bumper crops of all kinds the coming fall.

The name of Lynch & Roberts in Redmond stands for good goods and better values, and when they advertise a sale the people know it is a bona fide sale—no fake about it.

The "dead" sometimes come to life for a short time. There is evidence of that in Redmond lately.

WILL DECIDE ON TUMALO DAM

The character of the dam to be built to store the waters of Tumalo Creek for the irrigation of the lands under the state's project will be decided by the consulting board of engineers at a meeting to be held in a few days. The board has already gone over the project and the data secured, but is awaiting additional information before reaching a final decision. Members of the board are State Engineer J. H. Lewis, Project Engineer O. Lauegaard, Engineer C. M. Redfield of the Central Oregon Irrigation Co. and D. E. Heney, a Portland engineer.
