would be sure of receiving favorable consideration at the hands of the Congress.

J. W. Brewer talked along the same lines as Mr. Phoenix, and suggested that all the irrigation organizations in the county be asked to consent to hold a meeting in Portland a day before the Irrigation Congress convened and work out some definite plan to present to the Congress.

President Rodman said he would write to all the delegates to the Congress from Central Oregon suggesting that they meet in Portland one day before the meeting of the Congress, February 13, which met with favor by the club.

The question of a Monday noon luncheon was taken up and discussed. The club was in favor of the proposition, and on motion of W. B. Daggett it was decided to have the first luncheon at the Hotel Redmond and each week have the luncheons at a different place.

The president appointed L. E. Smith, W. B. Daggett and H. Palmer

as a standing committee to attend to the luncheon proposition.

J. B. Roe suggested that it be the sense of this club that all the people here patronize home industries, which met with favor.

J. R. Roberts, chairman of the Committee on Badges, made a report and submitted samples of buttons and pins. On motion the question of the club securing badges was laid over.

J. A. Wilcox moved that the club incorporate, which motion prevailed. The president stated that all members should think seriously in the matter of securing a club room, and be ready at the next meeting to express their views on the subject.

J. W. Brewer urged upon the farmers in this section the importance of attending the Agricultural Short Course to be held in Prineville February 23. Wanted all to join together and boost for Prineville.

B. H. McMickle was elected a member of the club.

tem differing in its form as to its uses, and its laterals correspond to the usual type of street main extensions. There should be much stronger and closely perfected control of these improvements. And what we particularly object to is to be hampered by a long distance government guardianship as is now exercised.

"Why can't Uncle Sam let each one of us enjoy our own troubles in working out these problems? We are here on the ground and ought to know more or less about what is good for us."

When asked about his views on the North Canal project Mr. Hanley said he favored the stand Attorney General Crawford had taken regarding the state and federal government taking over the project and completing it.

Prosperity for One Is Prosperity for All

By HOLLAND

If you are a farmer the value of your farm depends on the value of the adjoining farm, and the value of both depends on the value of property in the nearest village or town. Farms near prosperous towns are always more valuable than those near dead or dying settlements. And this is true without regard to the fertility of the soil.

The farmer depends on the town just as the town depends for prosperity on the farmer. Their destinies are interlinked; their interests are common. What hurts one hurts the other. Poor crops will affect the city resident who does not even raise radishes, and depressed business affairs affect the farmer who depends on soil, weather and muscle for his living.

Money sent to mail order houses helps to turn thriving towns into dead hamlets. It thereby depreciates the value of farm land. It decreases the population of the towns that most directly use the products of the farm. It lowers the price for butter and eggs, for chickens and for fruits and vegetables.

So, Mr. Farmer, if you deal with a mail order house in a distant city you are taking a course that takes from the value of your farm, that renders it less desirable as a place of residence and less productive of profit. You can't follow a system that injures your neighbors without being compelled to shoulder some of the expense yourself. Take the safer course and
