SHORT COURSE AT PRINEVILLE

Expected Large Attendance Will Be There, Commencing on Monday, February 23

COLLEGE EXPERTS TO TAKE UP MANY TOPICS

Professors Potter, Scudder and Fitts to Lecture on Agriculture and Dean Calvin and Mrs. Donman on Domestic Science

Prineville, February 18—Arrangements for the short course are fast nearing completion. Classes, which will begin at 8 o'clock on the morning of February 23, will be held in the Commercial Club Hall at the Court House, and in some of the classrooms at the High School, in order to accommodate all who wish to attend. Professor Pratt is receiving letters by every mail requesting further information about the short course. For the benefit of our readers we give a brief outline of the nature and extent of the course.

The work in agriculture will deal with all the phases of the subject of interest to the farmers of Crook county. The lectures and demonstrations in domestic science will all be of a practical nature.

Under agronomy will be studied such subjects as "Crook county soils, their fertility and management, the crops adapted to each type of soil, the production and disposal of these crops," as well as other phases of this interesting branch of scientific agriculture, which deals with soils and crops. This work will be given by Professor Scudder, the head of the agronomy department at the Oregon Agricultural College. Professor Scudder is well known in Crook county as a popular and interesting lecturer.

Lectures on the various breeds of beef and dairy cattle, light and heavy horses, sheep and swine will be given by Professor Potter. He will also give lectures on the breeding, feeding and management of the various classes of live stock. Practice in scoring and judging will be given. Each part of the animal will be studied so that you will learn to look at the animal as a collection of parts, each of which should conform to a certain standard. Farmers having animals they wish judged should write to Professor Pratt at Prineville and arrange for it at once.

E. B. Fitts, Professor of Dairying at the O. A. C., will deliver the lectures on dairying. Such topics as the establishment, care and feeding of a dairy herd; milk and cream testing, co-operative testing, the making of butter and cheese, etc. The students will be given practice in testing milk and cream. Those wishing to take this work should bring a sample of one of his cow's milk, or samples of the milk of several of his cows as well as two or three cream samples.

The work in domestic science will be conducted by Dean Calvin, assisted by Mrs. Dolman of Corvallis, and Mrs. Walker of the Crook County High School. The work will cover plain, fancy and special cookery; home nursing, house sanitation, etc.

The list of instructors is certainly a strong one. Professors Potter, Scudder and Dean Calvin are the head of their departments at the Agricultural College. Mrs. Dolman and Professor Fitts stand at the head of the teaching profession. Mrs. Walker and Mr. Pratt, from the County High School, are well and favorably known for the work they are doing in the county.

SOME SIDELIGHTS ON THE COUNTY COURT MUDDLE

"At the December term of the county court Mr. Springer was instructed by the commissioners to see about an expert to go over the county books. He was not ordered to hire one, but he did so, and A. E. McBall was the accountant hired and he came to Prineville sometime during December to expert the books. At the adjourned term of the January court, held on the 3rd day of February, this report was considered by the county court. It was decided that he had not made an accounting of the books at all, but had just filed his opinion on the way the offices had been run, with a bill of $412 for his work. At that time his bill and the report were both rejected and the accountant ordered back to make an experting of the books. On Wednesday, February 11, Mr. McBall returned to Prineville. In the absence of the sheriff he went into the sheriff's office and took every tax book in the office, making it so that the sheriff could not accept tax money. Upon the return of the sheriff to the Court House he found where the books were placed and took them back to his office. The next morning Mr. McBall tried to make the sheriff return the rolls, which the sheriff refused to do, but the sheriff did offer to clear up his own private office and allow the expert the use of the same uninterrupted, or he offered to allow one book at a time to leave his office. The accountant refused to accept this offer and Judge Springer attempted to mandamus to return the books. He could not find a lawyer in Prineville who would mandamus the sheriff, with the exception of County Attorney Wirtz, but Mr. Wirtz refused to mandamus the sheriff except on an order of the county court; thereupon Mr. Springer called up Commissioner W. W. Brown and he refused to order Wirtz to bring the mandamus proceedings, and Wirtz refused to bring them on the judge's order alone. After that the judge called upon Circuit Judge Bradshaw of The Dalles, and upon Judge Bradshaw's refusal to interfere, he called on the governor, who, according to newspaper reports, also refused to do anything. The judge then sent for an attorney in Portland and called a meeting of the county court for Monday of this week. He also notified his friends around Culver and Madras and asked them to be present. The meeting was held on Monday in the Circuit Court room of the Court House, with about 100 people present. It was found that Mr. Elkins' refusal to turn over the tax rolls was legal, and that he could not be compelled to do so. It was the opinion of those present and also of the different county officers, including the county court, that the old rejected report should be read and published. It was thereupon read and approved and court adjourned."

Commissioner Bayley indorsed the above statement by Mr. Brewster.

It is understood from Commissioner Bayley that this expert investigation instituted by Judge Springer has already cost the county $512 and is costing $24 a day for the expert's services.
