PERFECTION COOK STOVE WEEK STARTS ON MONDAY

This is Red Cross week and next week will be Cook Stove Week—one as important as the other. When the hot weather is on as it will be for the next three months, it is an awful task for a woman to be compelled to stand over a hot cook stove that seems to fill the whole house with heat after the meal is off. With the oil stove there is no dust, dirt, ashes and when the flame is off, the room is cool in a few minutes. It is a positive joy to the housewife and the cost is so little that everyone is entitled to its enjoyment! With an oil stove and a fireless cooker anything can be cooked properly and the cook need not sweater with the heat like a man at a smelting furnace. The stove is just as useful in cold weather. Lots of times the good wife does not feel like going out in a cold room and build a fire. With an oil stove she can move it into the parlor alongside of the heater and prepare her meal speedily and with comfort. They are worth their weight in gold in such cases.

DR. PERRY BANQUETED

On Monday evening 60 guests attended the banquet given at the M. E. church in honor of Dr. Perry, who for the past 6 years has been superintendent of The Dalles district, which includes all of eastern and central Oregon and a part of Washington and Idaho.

GRAIN GRADING SCHOOL

The first grain grading school ever held in the United States has been concluded at the Oregon Agricultural College with such success that the work will be continued in a series of extension courses held in various parts of the state by the Extension Service. The school was designed to enable farmers, millers and grain dealers to determine the classes and grades of all northwest wheats, so that the milling and marketing values can be ascertained before the grain is sent to market.

The school just concluded showed that wheat men can readily learn the classes into which any local grown samples fall, and that after classification the placing into grades is a simple matter. It also developed that most of the important wheats grown in the Pacific northwest is cared for in the federal grain standardization rules, and all samples thus covered are given ratings according to the Federal standards. A few classes fall outside the Federal classes, and these will be taken up at the joint hearings before the public service commissions of Oregon and Washington, at which equitable classifications will be made.

A DWARF DESERT BEAR

What is said to be a desert bear, weighing 25 pounds but full grown, and in appearance the same as a regular brown bear, except for a smaller neck and a larger stomach, was killed Monday on the road between Klamath Falls and the O. T. McKendree ranch in the Paulina mountains. The dwarf bear was scared up a juniper tree and shot by Dan Driscoll, an employee of Mr. McKendree. The bear, which is 20 inches long, was believed to be a cub until after it had been shot and found to have hard paws and teeth, proving it to be several years old. Mr. Driscoll shot the bear with a pistol, and not knowing just what kind of an animal he had bagged, carried it home in a pocket on his pack horse.

The only bear of this known to have been killed in Central Oregon was shot about 5 years ago in about the neighborhood as the one found Monday. Mr. McKendree, although having heard of the dwarf bear, had never seen one before. He is in Bend and will send the skin to a taxidermist.—Bulletin.
