However, it was an interception returned 48 yards for a touchdown by Triplet — his third pick of the second half — that provided the Storm just enough cushion to hold on as the Horsemen went on a late rally.

Triplet's touchdown gave the Storm the commanding 44-24 lead with five minutes left, but Idaho scored 16 unanswered points to make it 44-40.

"There is not a better feeling than a pick six," Triplet said.

"When I get a pick six, I feel like I am on top of the world. We adjusted to the offense. At first we were playing their game. Then I told our team to just let the game come to us and not force anything."

The Storm improved to 2-1 in the AWFC standings with the victory, while the Horsemen — the reigning AWFC champions — fell to 3-1.

Three games into the season, Evans said he likes where his team stands after Saturday's win. Next week, the Storm travel to face the Tri-City Rush in Pasco, Washington, before returning home where three of their next four games — including a third meeting with Idaho — will be played in Redmond. Their next home game is June 19 against the Wenatchee Valley Skyhawks at the First Interstate Bank Center.

"We got to roll, that is all there is to it," said Evans. "It is as simple as that right now for us. We have to be ready for when Idaho comes back here. We really control our own destiny right now."

Parade

Individuals interested in volunteering or wanting to be involved in some other way should contact the chamber.

The Fourth of July parade has already been subject to quite a bit of speculation, said Roatch, and the chamber was receiving phone calls from people upset about the parade's rumored cancellation after announcing that they will again be sponsoring a community-wide porch parade and shoebox "floats" presented in a livestream on the chamber's Facebook page starting at 10 a.m. July 4.

"It's been confusing," she said, but "we're doing all three."

The porch parade and shoebox floats were a hit last year, Roach noted, because they provided an opportunity for the community really get involved. People can add their addresses to the self-guided map on the chamber's website through 5 p.m. July 2.

Some guidelines for the parades include keeping it "apolitical" and only flying flags that are either "the official American flag" or something universally uplifting. The theme for this year is "Sea to Shining Sea," and participants do not have to strictly follow the theme unless they would like to compete for a ribbon in the Sixth Street parade judging.

The parade themes are chosen about five years in advance, said Roatch, and this one seems to her "perfect for the year we're coming out of."

Also coming back this year is the fireworks display at the Deschutes County Fair and Expo Center. The fireworks will be set off at about 10 p.m. July 4, with the gates opening "two or three hours beforehand," said Roatch.

The city approval for the fireworks display was contingent on limited entry numbers, said Roatch, so people wanting to attend will need to pick up a parking pass. The free parking passes (one per vehicle) will be available at local businesses throughout Redmond by June 15 and locations will be posted on social media, she said.
