Oct. 14, 1921 — Firefighters commended to state marshal

“There is perhaps no city in Oregon that has a more capable and enthusiastic fire department than Redmond.”

This commendation is contained in an official fire survey of the city made two weeks ago for State Fire Marshall A.C. Barber.

“The equipment consists of one American-LaFrance double 35-gallon chemical engine, two hand hoses — each carrying 500 feet of 2 1/2-inch hose, and one hook-and-ladder truck equipped with two 35-foot extension ladders and one roof ladder.

The organization consists of 30 members, all volunteers. The fire alarm system consists of a town bell.

Oct. 20, 1971 — Hi-Q team victorious

Redmond High School's Hi-Q team made it three in a row by debating Seaside 275-90 Thursday evening, after traveling through rain and snow to reach the Portland students of KGW. The match was telecast Sunday evening over Channel 8.

The Panthers became the first school this year to earn the right to compete in the tourna-

Oct. 16, 1996 — State eyes Redmond for prison

Like it or not, Redmond is in the running for a state prison.

On Monday, one week after the city council rescinded its resolution expressing an interest in one of two minimum-security work camps to be built in the state, a panel for the Oregon Department of Corrections nominated Redmond and a site near Mitchell for the facilities.

Redmond, which had proposed a 30-acre site near the airport, still could be passed over.

The Corrections Department next week plant to nominate two to four more sites for the two minimum-security jails, meaning the city will be one of as many as six communities considered.

The city held a town hall meeting earlier this month to gauge how residents feel about the jail, which could house as many as 400 inmates who would be assigned to community service details during the day.

The city had scheduled a second public meeting for Tuesday night but canceled it after learning the state intended to announce the first round of nominations Monday. The city, which was told nominations would be made at month's end, asked to be removed from consideration over concern that citizens would not have enough time to comment.

Lisa Strader, facilities administrator for the Corrections Department, said the schedule was moved up two weeks several months ago.

Besides, she added, the state has the authority to nominate any community for a jail, even if the community opposes it. Gov. John Kitzhaber is exercising that authority now with respect to Salem, Eugene and Wilsonville.

The state plans to build eight prisons in the next 10 years to house more than 10,000 inmates.

In addition to Redmond, two sites near Madras were nominated Monday for medium-security men's prisons.

A five-member citizens panel will hold hearings over the next two months, then recommend sites to the governor, who plans to make the final decision Dec. 17.

Museum at Warm Springs kicks off fundraiser

From a press release

The Museum at Warm Springs has kicked off its 2021 year-end fundraising campaign.

The museum's 2021 successes included:

- Hosting two exhibitions: “Sacred Reflections: The Art of Umatilla Artist Ellen Taylor” and “Into the Fray: Native American Wild-Land Firefighters of Warm Springs and Beyond.”

- The Museum partnered with AdPro, a Native American woman-owned graphic design and advertising firm in Huntington Beach, Calif., to rebrand the Museum with a new logo.

- In 2021, the Museum has received $633,760 in foundation and other grants.

On Nov. 2, the Museum will open a new exhibition, the “28th Annual Tribal Member Art Exhibit.”

[HOW DO WE BUILD A BETTER OREGON?]

After a year of tremendous hardship, how do we rebuild a more interconnected, equitable, resilient Oregon? How do we help each other recover, rebuild, and restart our lives and businesses? How do we start listening to and considering each others' point-of-view? How do we inject opportunity, across the state so everyone has a chance to add to the greater good? The answer — Together. Join us as we learn and share how to rebuild a better Oregon, for all Oregonians.
