A crowd gathers at the "Ladies, Legacies and Landmarks" event on April 30 at Centennial Park in downtown Redmond.

Historic women's tour raises $4,200 in funds

In spite of poor weather, the "Ladies, Legacies and Landmarks" event raised more than $4,200, not including additional funds raised by teams who competed in a citywide quest on April 30.

The funds will be donated to Saving Grace, a domestic violence and sexual assault service provider in Central Oregon, and the GFWC of Central Oregon, which led the event.

According to organizers, wind gusts over 20 mph, chilly temps and rain dampened some of the turnout. But donors contributed to an online auction and a number of teams completed the quest, which led them around Redmond.

Ridgeview names new assistant principal

Randi Viggiano has been named the next assistant principal and athletic director of Ridgeview High School.

Viggiano currently serves as school counselor for Ridgeview, a position she has held since 2017. Viggiano has also served as the school's head volleyball coach since 2018.

Viggiano began her career as school counselor at Culver Elementary in 2010 and then moved to Culver High School, before joining Ridgeview.

"I am so excited for this next journey to continue supporting our amazing students and staff as we prepare our students for life after high school," said Viggiano in a press release provided by the Redmond School District. "I look forward to strengthening our commu-nity partnerships, developing strong young leaders through athletics, and working with our staff to facilitate student success."

Viggiano will take over as assistant principal/athletic director on July 1, replacing Sam Platt, who has served in that position since 2020. Platt will take over as principal at the Tumalo Community School that same day. "We are excited to have Randi Viggiano join the leadership team at Ridgeview High School," said Dr. Charan Cline. "She has been a widely respected member of the high school staff and we are looking forward to the energy she brings to the position."
