

PET OF THE WEEK

Meet Betty!

This lovely little seal looking girl was found and brought to BrightSide. Sadly, after not getting claimed by a previous owner, she is here and available for adoption.

Betty is a super sweet and snuggly pup who loves to play run and explore. Still being young, Betty has a general understanding of basic obedience, but an owner to help her keep working on that would be beneficial.

With staff and volunteers she has been sweet, affectionate, and playful, and we can't wait to see her full personality shine. We don't know much about Betty's history so we require a meet and greet between her and other dogs in the home to ensure the best fit. We are also not sure at this time how Betty does with cats.

We will make updates about Betty as she spends time here, but we know she will find her forever home soon.

TRUCK OF THE WEEK

Name of truck: Cascade Alchemy Bowls

Location: Near intersection of Fourth Street and Evergreen Ave. in downtown Redmond

Hours: 11 a.m. to 7 p.m.; closed Mondays

Owners: Jaimie Edwards and Curtis Christiansen

Opened: August 2022

Type of food: Menu is gluten-free, low FODMAP (sugars that can cause intestinal distress)

About the cart: Redmond residents Jaimie Edwards and Curtis Christiansen opened their cart just last month. Christiansen has been in food service much of his life, working his way up from dishwasher to line cook. Edwards' son has Celiac disease, and that pushed her come up with gluten-free recipes with lots of flavor. A few months ago, the duo came up with a cuisine idea and worked to meld their different styles, eventually coalescing around a food truck now called Cascade Alchemy Bowl.

Your first order should be: Christiansen recommends the Mt. Shasta, which includes barbacoa-style shredded beef on your choice of base, topped with elote sauce, avocado, jalapeno, black beans, pickled onion and cotija cheese. Edwards says the Mt. Hood is the way to go, with its Thai-inspired flavors infusing marinated chicken, carrot slaw and sautéed bok choy.

Fun fact: Alchemy Bowls offers are numerous dairy-free options and diners can go vegan as well by substituting a mix of chickpeas and sweet potatoes. Low FODMAP foods are gaining in popularity, especially for people who suffer from irritable bowel syndrome. Most dishes avoid complicated starches, carbohydrates and fibers.

Debate for state House races overshadowed by rowdy crowd

BY ANNA KAMINSKI

CO Media Group

A forum Wednesday for Oregon House candidates representing Bend and Redmond was overshadowed by partisan politics when a rowdy crowd of supporters of Republican candidate Michael Sipe heckled his Democratic opponent, Emerson Levy.

The forum, sponsored by the Bend Chamber of Commerce, was meant to give candidates for House districts 53 and 54 a platform to discuss their policy goals. Instead, audience members carrying Sipe-branded campaign paraphernalia interrupted and mocked Levy.

Immediately after the forum, Democrats went on social media to call out forum organizers for allowing what Levy's supporters said was an audience of mostly Sipe supporters who came to boo and heckle instead of listen.

Sipe and Levy are running for House District 53, which represents the north part of Bend, south part of Redmond and Tumalo area.

"Tonight I was excited to talk to the business community at the Bend Chamber event, instead my opponent got all of the tickets, every time I spoke grown women heckled me when I stood to speak and while I spoke. My opponent mocked me, my

Campaign finances — 2022

Emerson Levy

Raised: $53,034

Spent: $35,653

Cash on hand: $42,173

Levy rolled over funds from her 2020 campaign and contributions in 2021 to have the current cash-on-hand balance.

The largest donation to Levy's campaign is $10,000 from Local 48 Electricians PAC of Portland. Future PAC House Builders, the PAC backing Democrats running for the Oregon House, has given $8,600. She's received $2,500 each from the Oregon Firefighters Councils and from the Citizens Action for Political Education, a PAC of the SIEU public workers labor union.

Levy has spent $7,380 with Bend-based Run for Oregon, for management services. She paid Alexandria, Virginia-based Pivot Group $3,691 for 10,000 pieces of literature for door-to-door campaigning.

Michael Sipe

Raised: $280,742

Spent: $194,131

On hand: $89,578

Sipe's largest amount of incoming funds was a $50,000 loan from Cross Pointe.

Contributions include $15,000 from Sunriver property company owner Robert Bennington, $10,000 each from Bright Wood Corp. of Madras, Lake Oswego investor Dale Stockamp, Norkote Branch Manager Dana Gillet of Bend, Jon Tompkins of Bend.

Pahlisch Homes co-owner Joanna Palisch of Bend has given $10,000, while co-owner Dennis Pahlisch has contributed $5,250.

Sipe also received $17,000 in in-kind contributions for polling from Evergreen Oregon PAC, the Prineville-based PAC backing GOP legislative candidates.

Sipe's largest expenditure has been $34,000 with Max Marketing of Bend for radio and television advertising buys. His largest single expenditure was $25,000 to be a title sponsor of the Deschutes County Fair.

Jason Kropf

Raised: $41,965

Spent: $48,190

On hand: $6,334

Kropf rolled over funds from his 2020 campaign and 2021 contributions to have the cash on hand total listed.

The largest contribution is $2,500 each from the Oregon Soft Drink PAC, and the Oregon Hospital Political Action Committee.

The largest expenditure was $30,716 to Future PAC House Builders, the fund for Democratic candidates for the Oregon House. No expenditure for his 2022 campaign is over $2,000.

Judy Trego

Raised: $33,643

Spent: $14,841

On hand: $13,152

The largest contributions to Trego are $5,150 from Lake Oswego investor Dale Stockamp, $5,000 from Eugene Family Flying manager Kathleen Jones McCann of Springfield, and $2,350 each from Greg and Sharree Strausbaugh of Sunriver.

Trego's largest expenditures are $4,700 to Carlson Sign Co. of Bend for billboard advertising, and $1,552 with Minute-man Press of Bend for campaign literature printing.

profession and my age," Levy tweeted after the event.

Almost an hour into the event, as Levy was in the midst of answering a question about how to support small businesses in Central Oregon, a member of the crowd shouted an indistinguishable comment at her.

She stopped her answer in her tracks. "I just want to acknowledge that our campaign was not allowed to invite a single person because all the tickets were taken, and this is a rather uncomfortable forum for us," Levy said.

The crowd responded with a chorus of "Aww," and "That's so sad."

Levy said the crowd had been making faces at her, jeering and heckling as she answered Chamber questions. Some audience members held Sipe-branded flying discs in front of their faces as she spoke.

Allen Martin, the moderator of the event and an anchor for Central Oregon Daily news, didn't say anything to discourage the crowd after Levy was interrupted. Only at the beginning of the forum during the candidates' opening statements did Martin ask the audience to refrain from speaking or cheering while candidates were answering their questions.
