Projections in 1997 show Redmond booming

Nov. 9, 1922 — Redmond firm is wrapping its bread
 Nichol & Son have been making a great many changes in their business methods since taking over the store from W.H. Hobbs, latest among which is the wonderful improvement of their bread.
 This article has been raised to a standard which surpasses the bread from Portland, and places it in even competition with outside bakeries.
 The firm is now enclosing each loaf in a beautiful paraffine wrapper, which adds greatly to its keeping qualities and is a decided step forward in the matter of cleanliness.
 Now that we have a firm right here at home which is turning out wrapped bread, there should be no excuse for the sale of outside bread by the merchants of Redmond.

Nov. 13, 1947 — National weeks being observed by grad pupils
 Attention is being focused on two national weeks by students of Redmond grade school, who are now observing national education week and are slated to visit the city library next week in connection with national book week, announced Principal Hugh Hartman.
 During national education week, parents are being encouraged to visit the school classrooms, Hartman pointed out, however, that the invitation is not limited to any specific period since visitations from parents are welcome at any time.

 For book week, Mrs. H. T. Ward librarian, and Hartman are arranging a convenient schedule to be followed by grade students, who will visit the library by classes. This program is being conducted to familiarize the grade youngsters with libraries and to encourage reading of the better books.
 Hartman pointed out that a large number of grade students already make use of the city library since the school does not have space for an organized library of its own.
 Mrs. Ward is also making plans to conduct pupils from the Seventh Day Adventist school through the library during mid-week. Everyone visiting the library will be given a bookmark commemorating the national week, she said.

Nov. 15, 1972 — Ponderosa Mouldings burglarized
 Burglars netted a cache of tools during a break-in sometime Saturday night or Sunday morning at Ponderosa Mouldings, Inc. Although city police have released no estimate of the value of the stolen property, missing items include a heavy duty skill saw, portable grinder, electric drill, two boxes full of tools, including one complete socket wrench set, a box of electrical fittings, two extension cords and a torque wrench.
 The burglary was reported by Jim Whitehead at 12:01 p.m. Sunday. Entry to the grinding room of the saw mill had been gained through a window, and entry to the locked tool cabinets by prying open the locks with a bar and file handle. Redmond police report that the previous week the Union Oil service station at 1302 S. Highway 97 had been entered by forcing the south door. Reported taken from the lube room were two tires, a gallon of antifreeze and two gallons of oil, valued at $45.

Nov. 12, 1997 — Population estimates show Redmond booming
 How's that elbow room?
 Redmond clocks in as the fastest-growing city in the second-fastest growing county in Oregon, according to preliminary estimates from Portland State University's Center for Population Research and Census.
 But the state's growth during the 12 months ending July 1 was the lowest since 1987, researcher Howard Wineberg found.
 "It's also the first time in 11 years that Oregon's population has not grown at a rate faster than the national average," he said.
 Redmond saw a 7.3 percent jump in its population from 1996 to 1997. PSU estimates the city grew from 11,175 to 11,990, or 815 residents. Redmond broke the 10,000 mark in 1995 with an estimate of 10,585. The 1990 Census showed it had 7,165 people. The city's population has more than doubled in the past 20 years.
 Bend's population increased 4.7 percent, to 33,740, over the past year. Prineville rose 5.6 percent, to 6,560; Madras had a 3.6 percent increase for a population of 4,940; and Sisters grew 3.9 percent, with 805 residents.

Deschutes County has an estimated 101,200 residents, an increase of 3.3 percent or 3,200 residents, since July 1, 1996.
 Oregon grew 1.1 percent, adding 36,000 residents for a total of 3,217,000.
