For Thin, Poor Blood

You can trust a medicine tested 60 years! Sixty years of experience, think of that! Experience with Ayer's Sarsaparilla; the original Sarsaparilla; the strongest Sarsaparilla; the Sarsaparilla the doctors endorse for thin blood, weak nerves, general debility.

But even this grand old medicine cannot do its best work if the liver is inactive and the bowels constipated. For the best possible re-sults, you should take laxative doses of Ayer's Pills while taking the Sarsaparitle. The liver will quickly respond, and so will the bowels.

The Origin of Salmon.

The name salmon is given in England and all western states to a large trout-like fish which lives in the sea, chiefly about the mouths of rivers, and which enters the streams to spawn, running for a considerable distance up the stream and returning to the sea after the act of spawning is accomplished, says a writer in the Pacific Monthly. The old males become some what distorted, especially through the lengthening of the jaws, but the changes with age and season are not much greater than in any large trout. The true salmon, like the true trout, is black spotted. It is called in science Salmo salar, and along with the true trout it belongs to the genus Salmo. There is only one species of Atlantic salmon; it is found on both sides of the ocean, and on both sides it becomes sometimes land-locked and dwarfish when it is shut up in a lake and when it cannot or does not go

Little Leggong in Patriotiem

James Jackson, a native of Devonshire, England, came to the American colonies in 1772 and engaged in the study of law in Savannah. When the war of the revolution began, instead of espousing the English cause, as so many of the colonists did, Jackson took sides with the patriots who were fighting for liberty and freedom from unjust oppression. He was active in repelling the British JAMES JACKSON, from the city of Savannah in March, 1776, and commanded a company until the Florida expendition of Gen. Howe.

Jackson was made brigade general of the Georgia militia in 1778 and was severely wounded in the skirmish at Midway, Ga. His part in the defense of Savannah was a noble one, and when the city was captured he fled to South Carolina, where he joined Gen. Moultrie. His appearance was so wretched while in his flight that he was arrested by a party of whigs and condemned to be shot as a spy. He was about to be executed when a reputable citizen of Georgia identified him and saved his life.

Jackson was brigade general to Gen. Pickens, and at the battle of Cowpens shared in the glorious deeds of bravery. After the slege of Augusta he commanded a legionary corps which did splendid service for the Georgians. The State of Georgia so well appreclated his services that it presented him with a house and property in Savannah.

HOMAGE PAID TO A BIRD.

Sparrow Given a Military Funeral

by Spaniards in Cuba Remarkable was the funeral of a sparrow in Cuba which was attended by no fewer than 6,000 soldiers. The story of this singular event is both curious and dramatic. At the commencement of the ten years' war the Spaniards chose the sparrow as their emblem, typifying the courage and pertinacity with which they intended to prosecute the war, while they contemptuously spoke of the enemy—the natives—as "cats." One day in March, 1869, so runs the story, a Spanish soldier saw a cat pounce phonograph.

upon a sparrow; he rushed to the rescue, disabled the cat with a blow from his rifle and took the dying bird from its mouth.

The tragic event was reported to the general commanding the Spanish forces, who promptly gave orders that the cat should be court martialed and that the sparrow should be interred with milltary honors. All the principal officials and residents of Cuba were invited to the funeral, which the bishop of Solanz was ordered to conduct. A bler was prepared and the dead bird was placed on a bed of lilles and roses, the sorrowful tribute of the officers' wives, and to the sound of muffled drums and the tramp of 6,000 following soldiers the long procession wound its way to the outskirts of Havana, where the sparrow was laid to rest with full military

To find a parallel to this singular homage paid to a bird one has to go back nearly 2,000 years to the days of Claudius I., fourth Roman emperor, when the death of a crow plunged all Rome into mourning. For n my a year the bird had been a great favorite of the citizens and its talents and tricks were a constant topic of conversation. One day, to the anger and grief of thousands, the bird was killed-a crime which cost the culprit his life-and it was decided to give the crow a "state" funeral. The dead bird was borne to its grave by a couple of slaves, preceded by a military band playing mournful music, and behind the corpse followed thousands of mourners, including the most highly placed and the wealthlest of Roman citizens.-New York Tribune.

PRINCE SAVED THE GOAT.

Wales Rescued the Little Animal from Three Lion Cubs.

characteristic story is being told stay in India, says the London World. It happened during his second visit to Gwallor and after the unfortunate abandonment of the Nepaul shikar.

The maharajah of Gwallor had established some lion cubs in an inclosure with the idea of perpetuating the breed and one morning the prince strolled out with some members of his staff to see them fed. He found them baiting an unfortunate live goat, which they were playing with as cats with a mouse, and it was not at all a pleasant sight for an English sportsman's eyes. By the way, live animals are given to them with the object of teaching them to fend for themselves in their destined future lives of freedom.

After watching the performance for a while the prince suddenly exclaimed: "I can't stand this any longer. He's a jolly plucky goat and we must get him out somehow." The question was how to manage the rescue, for it was not at all an easy task to get the goat out of an inclosure in which some three-quarter grown lions were at large. However, the fertile brain of Gen. Stuart Beatson thought of a lassoo and the work of salvage was commenced.

They had just got the noose over the goat and were about to hoist him up. when a lioness went for him in earnest and it looked to be all up with him. With the courage of despair he charged her and sent her flying and before she could pick berself up and return to the attack the rope was over him and he was hoisted up to safety.

On examination he was found to have escaped without injury, barring a slight cut on one leg, and he now roams about, a pensioner for life, adorned with a massive silver collar with an inscription explaining how the prince saved his life.

Gen. Sumner's Promotion.

A story is being told among the friends of General Samuel S. Sumner, U. S. A., retired, who was until recently the commanding officer of the Pacific division. General Sumner, who was in Oakland for a stay, left the city after the earthquake and went to San Rafael. There he was informed by one of the guiding spirits of the village that he must aid in patrolling and guarding against fire and unruly refugees. Something in General Sumner's bearing evidently impressed the man, for after a moment's thought he said: "I think I'll Season 1906 and 1907 Opens Sept. 15 make you a second lieutenant."

"Thank you," answered General Sumner, "I don't think any rank ever conferred upon me ever pleased me more unless it was when I was made a major general in the regular army."-Kansas City Star.

The Faith of the Boy. The four-year-old son of a certain western senator had a very high opinion of the importance of his father. The latter tells how, on one occasion In their western home, the lad came across a magazine in which, by some chance, there were engraved side by side portraits of the President and the Senator mentioned.

When the lad caught sight of his father's features he broke into a broad smile. "That's a good picture of you, daddy," said he. "Very good, my son."

"Who's the man next to you, daddy?" asked the youngster. "Why, my son!" exclaimed the Sea-ator, "don't you know? That is one of the greatest men of the world, a man more admirable and more powerful than any king. That, my son, is President Roosevelt."

The lad again looked at the picture of the President. Then, after a thoughtful pause, he observed:

"Say, daddy, the people in the east will be awful proud when they see the President's picture next to yours, won't they?"-American Spectator.
