The Jailer's Daughter.

(Original.)

"What y' in for?" asked the jailer's daughter, peering through the bars.
She was a gangling girl of sixteen, with blue-eyes and light wavy hair hanging loose over her back. The prisoner was a stalwart young fellow of twenty.

"Horse stealing."
"Couldn't y' find nothing better t' do than that?"

"I didn't steal any horses. A man with a grudge against me put up a job on me."

"Is that so? Y' ortn't t' swing if y' didn't do it?"

The prisoner went on reading a paper that had been given him.

"I'd let y' out," she added in a low tone, "only pop keeps too sharp a watch on the keys, and there ain't much time."

The young man turned from his paper. "You can help me to get out if you wish," he said.

"How?"

"Can you get a saw?"

"Nothing but a buck saw."

"That won't do. Bring me a file and a case knife."

"Pop's got a file among his tools. I can get the case knife easy enough."

She went away, returning with the articles asked for. The prisoner, covering his hands with the bedclothing that the filing should not be heard, proceeded to make a saw of the knife.

With one or both he proposed to cut away the bars to his window. This he did while the jailer's daughter strummed on a piano directly over his head so that the noise of cutting could not be heard.

When he had finished, the girl came again, and he said to her: "Goodby. If I get out safely, some day I may come back to reward you."

"I've been thinking I'd go with you," she said, her eyes glistening.

He looked at her earnestly for some time without speaking. What he was thinking she didn't know. At last he said:

"All right. Meet me soon after 2 o'clock tomorrow morning outside the wall."

When the prisoner heard the jailer's clock wheeze out 2 in the morning, he removed the bars, got out of the window, climbed a wall and stole away.

He was joined by the girl, and together they ran for a time, then when they could run no longer walked and consulted.

"It's only five miles t' the railroad this way," said the girl. "Reckon we better get on a train."

"Haven't got any money. Besides, we couldn't likely get a train till morning, and they'd get us sure."

"What'll we do?"

"Hide some place near by till the excitement has died out. There's a thicket. We'll go in there and see what we can find."

They went into the thicket just as a rancher near by was going into his stable to feed his stock. He saw them and wondered who they were and what they were doing there. When several hours later a posse headed by the jailer, frantic at the loss of his daughter, came along and asked the rancher if he had seen a man and a girl go by, he told them that he had seen them go into the thicket.

Now, the thicket was large, and there were places in it hard to get through. It was ransacked, but the fugitives were not found. The sheriff, who was with the party, sent the jailer on with a couple of men, while the rest completed the search. He intended to burn the couple out and expected the jailer if present would raise an objection, fearing for his daughter's life.

The couple had wormed themselves into a tangled place where they had not been followed. Presently they smelled smoke. The man paled.

"We must get out of this," he said.
And they dragged themselves from their hiding place and moved on, coming to an open space. The man paused and looked about him. Then he began to scrape away the dead leaves and everything that could burn. The girl, seeing his object, joined her efforts to his. The fire came on, crackling and roaring, and when it reached them it found them in the open space covered by what loose earth they had been able to scrape together. The posse followed closely in the wake of the flames. Passing some fifty yards from the couple covered with dirt and ashes, they saw nothing more than a couple of earth heaps. The prisoner and the girl lay still till they could no longer hear sounds from the hunting party, then arose and threw off the dirt and ashes.

They stayed that day in the burned wood and when the night came on, guided by the north star, walked till morning, when they again rested in a wood. In this way, traveling nights and sleeping days, feeding on berries and what else they could find, they put miles between them and the jail.

Finally they brought up at a large ranch, and the young man led the way to the house as though familiar with the premises. A man came riding toward them on horseback. When he saw them, he reined in his horse.

"Father," said the young man, "I've come home. I don't want any more independence. But for this girl I would have swung at the end of a rope, falsely accused by an enemy of horse stealing."

The father put out his hand to the returned prodigal.

Five years later after the jailer's daughter had returned from an eastern college she married the man she had saved from a felon's death.

ARNOLD ATHERTON.

Predetermining the Sex.

Last year we mated our pullets and cocks together with the result that about half the young were cockerels and half pullets, says H. P. Wightman of Evanston, Ill. Many claim that the parent with the strongest germ had the most effect. This year we mated cockerels to hens, with the result that about 80 per cent are pullets. This may not be so always, but it was this year with a pen of White and Barred Rocks and a pen of White Wyandottes.

Strategy.

"How did pa act when you asked him for my hand?"

"Very gentle and courteous. It quite took me by surprise."

"I told him you used to be a puglist."—Houston Post.

Too Late.

Everybody says he has reformed.
Maud—Yes, but he reformed too late.

DO NOT CROWD THE SEASON.

The first warm days of spring bring with them a desire to get out and enjoy the exhilarating air and sunshine.
Children that have been housed up all winter are brought out and you wonder where they all came from. The heavy winter clothing is thrown aside and many shed their flannels. Then a cold wave comes and people say that grip is epidemic. Colds at this season are even more dangerous than in midwinter, as there is much more danger of pneumonia. Take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, however, and you will have nothing to fear. It always cures, and we have never known a cold to result in pneumonia when it was used.
It is pleasant and safe to take. Children like it. For sale by all druggists.

It is said that the lion and the lamb lay down together because the lamb was too blinded scared to stand up.

This is what Hon. Jake Moore, State Warden of Georgia, says of Kodol for Dyspepsia: "E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago, Ill.—Dear Sirs—I have suffered more than twenty years from indigestion. About eighteen months ago I had grown so much worse that I could not digest a crust oorn bread and could not retain anything on my stomach. I lost 25 lb; in fact I made up my mind that I could not live but a short time, when a friend of mine recommended Kodol. I consented to try it to please him and I was better in one day. I now weigh more than I ever did in my life and am in better health than for many years. Kodol did it. I keep a bottle constantly, and write this hoping that humanity will be benefitted. Yours very truly, Jake C. Moore, Atlanta, Aug. 10, 1904." Sold

NO USE TO DIE.

"I have found out that there is no use to die of lung trouble as long as you can get Dr. Kings New Discovery," says Mrs. J. P. White, of Rushboro, Pa.
"I would not be alive today only for that wonderful medicine. It loosens up a cough quicker than tanthing else, and cures lung disease even after the case is pronounced hopeless." This most reliable remedy for coughs and colds, lagrippe, asthma, bronchitis and hoarseness, is sold and guaranteed at Brewers drug store. 50c. and $1. Trial bottle free.

Only a foolish legislature would try to smash the rubber and egg trusts.

RHEUMATIC PAINS RELIEVED.

B. F. Crocker, Esq., now 84 years of age, and for twenty years Justice of the Peace at Martinsburg, Iowa, says:
"I am terribly afflicted with sciatic rheumatism in my left arm and right hip. I have used three bottles of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and it did me lots of good." For sale by all druggists.

GOOD FOR EVERYBODY.

Mr. Norman R. Couffer, a prominent architect, in the Delbert Bldg., San Francisco, says: "I fully endorse all that has been said of Electric Bitters as a tonic medicine. It is good for everybody. It corrects stomach, liver and kidney disorders in a prompt and efficient manner and build up the system." Electric Bitters is the best sdring medicine ever sold over a druggists counter; as a blood purifier it is unequaled. 50c at Brewers drug store.

CHAMBERLAIN'S COUGH REMEDY

IS BOTH AGREEABLE
AND EFFECTIVE.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has no superior for coughs, colds and croup and the fact that it is pleasant to take and contains nothing in any way injurious has made it a favorite with mothers. Mr. W. S. Pelham, a merchant of Kirksville, Iowa, says: "For more than twenty years Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has been my leading remedy for all throat troubles. It is especially successful in cases of croup.
Children like it and my customers who have used it will not take any other."
For sale by all druggists.
