In the November 25th number will be the first of the new

Special Fireside Magazine Features

144 pages of them during the next six months. Think of it! Every issue will be brimful of the best Short Stories Brilliantly Illustrated Articles, unusually attractive Household Pages which are unexcelled by any paper in the land—in fact, everything that will delight you as well as help you. And the Thanksgiving Number is the best of them all. The famous Lady Troubridge has written the greatest novel of the year—and Farm and Fireside is going to print the first chapters of it in the Thanksgiving Number.

“The Soul of Honour” is the name of it. Of course, we had to pay a big price for it—the HIGHEST PRICE EVER PAID by a FARM PAPER, but “Only the Best” is the motto we are following. Farm and Fireside bought the exclusive American rights. It is all about a girl and two men—but you’ll find several long chapters in the Thanksgiving number. It is a beautiful, wholesome story, and thrills with love and adventure. It is just the kind of a novel you never want to miss a single chapter of. Then there are the

Three Colored Pictures

by America's foremost artists—and the largest and most beautiful one of all will be sent to every paid-in-advance subscription--no others--with the big Thanksgiving number. This picture is twice as large and ten times as beautiful as any we have ever before given our readers. It is 14 by 20½ inches and superbly lithographed in six colors especially for Farm and Fireside. These pictures are not printed--they are lithographed art proofs. Besides the one in the Nov. 25th number you will get two more, but not unless you pay up in advance by November 25th. There are lots of too, among them non-partisan discussions by Alfred Henry Lewis, the well known magazine writer; an unusually helpful series on the conservative investment of your money--not only in your own farm but in other property as well; special articles by some of the nation's greatest public men. Then there will be all the former helpful departments, too--only more helpful than ever. Farm and Fireside is spending thousands of dollars more on its editorial matter for next year than has ever been spent by any farm paper in America. We haven't room to tell you much about it here, only enough to show how much better the new Farm and Fireside for next year is going to be than it has ever been before.

Other New Features
