STAYTON, OR., AUGUST 18, 1910

The way to build up Stayton is to patronize Stayton merchants.

A FAITHLESS woman, two fools, a gun, a funeral, two families ruined, a wretch dangling at the end of a rope—this epitomizes the tragedy that occurred in Portland on Tuesday, when A. M. Richardson, a barber, shot and killed J. C. Hale, a member of the fire department. The old, old story. Will men never learn that the wages of sin is death?

SALEM has made a wise move in voting to acquire the plant of the Salem Water company as a preliminary to building a mountain water system. Salem has too many state institutions and too bright a future to remain forever in the mossback class. However, if there were no consideration other than the protection of the lives of her own residents, the Capital City would be amply justified in spending a million or more to get decent water.

WITH another story added to the Stayton State Bank building this will be the most imposing business block in the city. This is an excellent corner and the bank people are making no mistake in thus branching out, particularly in view of the fact that the prospects for the rapid development of the city were never so bright as at the present time. If the town had more boosters who were willing to prove their faith by their works Stayton would have had a railroad and various other good things before this time.

"I FEEL that it would be proper to call an assembly, both in the several counties and in the state, to adopt a declaration of principles and to suggest to voters capable and trustworthy men to be nominated at the direct primary nominating election and to be voted for at the general election." So wrote Governor George E. Chamberlain to the Democratic chairman of Umatilla County in 1906. It was a sensible suggestion, and one in no way in violation of the spirit of the primary law. It is reprinted here for the benefit of those Democratic and Bourne Republican editors who are just now so hysterically denouncing the assembly plan.—Polk County Observer.

STATEWIDE prohibition is finding opposition from a number of sources. The latest is the Greater Oregon Home Rule Association, composed of a number of well known Portland business men who are fathering a "Home Rule Bill" to be voted on at the coming November election, and which reads as follows:

For constitutional amendment giving to cities and towns exclusive power to license, regulate, control, suppress, or prohibit the sale of intoxicating liquors within the municipality.

A prominent official writes us regarding the matter as follows:

Statewide prohibition is being agitated at this time, and whilst we are firmly convinced that it is necessary to regulate the liquor traffic within the state, we do not believe that satisfactory results could be obtained under a statewide prohibitory law. In consequence we are working zealously for the "Home Rule" bill, feeling that each town and city should be allowed to say whether liquor shall or shall not be sold within its limits.

Small Tracts Sell Well.

Gen. Byars of Salem has been here for a week past surveying and platting the Funk farm, recently purchased by R. M. Cramer of Portland. This fine farm of 130 acres is being cut up into small tracts of from one acre up and will be sold on easy terms. Mr. Cramer states that about $7,000 worth of the land has already been sold, notwithstanding the fact that the work of subdividing it has hardly been completed. Mr. Cramer has an announcement in this week's advertising columns of The Mail.

Dr. Beauchamp reports a son born on Tuesday to Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Robards, at Macleay, and a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Henderson, near Aumsville, Wednesday.

THRESHER IN DITCH

Chas. Staiger's Machine Goes into Ditch.—Jos. Etzel Dead—Other Sublimity News Notes.

Sublimity, Aug. 16.

As Chas. Staiger was moving his threshing outfit across Beaver creek on Friday last the driver evidently lost his bearings and steered the whole business off the grade at that place. A temporary bridge had to be constructed before the heavy machine could be got back to terra firma again, and this was nearly an all night's job. It is a peculiar coincidence that these accidents always happen when going out of Sublimity and never when coming this way. Will some scientist kindly come to our assistance and give us some data on this matter?

This town and community were cast into gloom on Sunday, the 14th, by the death of Jos. Etzel, who succumbed on that date after a protracted illness. Mr. Etzel was a native of Russia and emigrated to the United States about 30 years ago, settling first at Topeka, Kas., and moving about 20 years ago to Sublimity, where he has since resided. He has had stomach trouble since last fall. He is survived by a widow and 12 children and a large circle of friends gained by his honesty and neighborly spirit. The funeral was held at the St. Boniface Catholic church at Sublimity on Tuesday last at 10 a. m. a requiem high mass being celebrated by Father Frowin O. S. B., in the absence of Father Lainek. Father Frowin paid a glowing tribute to the deceased. The large gathering of friends spoke volumes for the high esteem in which the esteemed was held. In Mr. Etzel the poor have lost a friend, the parish a devout Christian and the town a loyal supporter. May he rest in peace.

John Boedigheimer lost a valuable mare last week. She had been ailing for some time and Mr. Boedigheimer took her to Stayton and left her with a local veterinary for treatment, but in spite of all he could do she died on his hands. Mr. Boedigheimer always takes great pride in his horses and feels his loss very keenly.

The little daughter of I. J. Boedig-heimer was taken suddenly sick one night last week. A doctor was summoned who at first took it to be a case of appendicitis but after a careful examination found it to be more of a summer complaint and at last reports the little one was doing nicely.

Several of our local people attended the annual exercises at St. Mary's, near Beaverton, Ore., on Monday, where several candidates were admitted to the order, among them being Miss Spenner and Miss Hendricks of this place. Among those attending from our town were Rev. Father Lainek, Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Spenner, Mrs. A. Hendricks, Miss Angelina Hermens and Miss Lizzie Heuberger.

L. J. Schott is reported on the sick list but at last reports was somewhat improved.

Lou Doerfler, who is assisting I. J. Boedigheimer in building a new house and barn for M. E. Smith north of town, was taken suddenly sick one day last week with cholera morbus, and while still under the doctor's care is improving slowly and his ultimate recovery is expected.

Six or eight cattle belonging to Geo. Zimmerman and L. D. Kelly, which have been summering in the hills above Kelly's place, disappeared one day last week and it finally became known that the stock was in the pound at Salem and about to be sold. Mr. Kelly went down Monday and paid the charges and took the stock out. It is thought certain the cattle were driven away by some one as the animals would not

Some few years ago when a creamery man or agent traveled over the country soliciting business he was compelled to stop at every house and inquire if the owner was in the dairy business or not, but there has been a great change of late for the milker of cows can now be picked out conclusively by the looks of his house and barns and the general appearance of everything around the premises. Among the many new barns made possible by this remunerative business is the one just completed by Lou Haberly north of Sublimity, which is certainly a credit not only to Mr. Haberly but to the whole community as well. The dimensions of this up-to-date structure are as follows: The main building is 50 by 70 feet and 24 feet high besides a shed of 14 feet running the whole length of the building. The capacity of the building is 75 tons of hay, 7,000 bushels of grain, 12 head of horses and 20 head of cows, besides a large carriage room. The barn is equipped with all modern conveniences in the way of stalls, etc., the Schulermick cow stall being used, which is the most convenient and up-to-date stall to be had.
