

SUBLIMITY FARMER IS INJURED IN BAD FALL

John Zimmerman, a Sublimity farmer, was seriously injured this week while assisting his neighbor, Chas. Hottinger, in getting in his hay crop. Mr. Zimmerman was in the loft of the Hottinger barn, which is an unusually lofty one, and in some manner slipped on the hay, falling about forty feet to the floor of the barn. The fall rendered him unconscious. Dr. Brewer was hastily summoned, and on his arrival the physician found the farmer to be suffering from concussion of the brain, two broken ribs, severe injury to his spinal cord, and other injuries. Mr. Zimmerman's condition is critical, but it is believed by the doctor that he will ultimately recover.

FRED ROCK CLAIMS TO BE CHAMPION GARDENER

Fred Rock claims that he is the champion gardener, and that his garden outshines any other in Stayton in productivity and the size of the vegetables grown. To tell the truth, Fred displayed a collection of large, juicy onions, turnips, rutabagas, etc. the other day that are hard to beat, and simply proves to a gnat's eye-winker that Stayton and vicinity can grow anything possible in the temperate zone and grow it well too. Just put a little fertilizer, a little water, and a little elbow grease on even a gravel patch here and the results are amazing.

Geo. Keech backs up the above statement by declaring that he has the best garden that he has ever raised since he came over from the "ould country," and George is no spring chicken either. We asked Steve Polreis and J. T. Kearns their opinion on the subject, but they were very reticent about the matter, declaring that they really had had no time to devote to gardening this year, being too busy at other things.

Geo. Warford says that he is going to raise a little "ge-ar-den" of his own next year and see if he can't beat Rock all hollow. We are not going to bet that he will by any means, because Fred has a certain square-jawed appearance that will be hard to overcome. Anyhow Stayton has the record for the best gardens in the Willamette Valley.

IS SEVERELY INJURED BY A KICKING HORSE

Fred Frank, a prosperous farmer living two miles northeast of Sublimity was nearly killed Sunday morning by the kick of a horse. Mr. Frank was caring for the animals in the barn, when one of the horses kicked without warning, striking the farmer in the pit of the stomach and on the arm. Besides breaking one of the bones in his arm, the blow caused internal injuries. Although the accident was a serious one, Dr. Brewer who is in attendance, is sanguine about Mr. Frank's speedy recovery.

His Rare Old Painting. Speaking of fake antiques and forged paintings an art amateur said:

"There is an American who bought a Raphael in Rome some years ago. The Italian law prohibits the exportation of masterpieces, and the American had the happy idea of getting the Raphael painted over. This was accordingly done. The rare old painting reached New York in the guise of a modern snow scene.

"Then the restorer, under the watchful owner's eye, set to work on it. With a sponge dipped in turpentine he proceeded to rub the snow scene off. He sponged it off readily, but he sponged a bit of the Raphael off, too—and, behold, underneath the Raphael a portrait of Marconi was revealed."

The Dutch at Church. Men still wear their hats in church in many parts of Holland. Moreover, smoking in church is not considered irreverent by the Dutch when service is not in progress, and the ministers themselves indulge in this practice. Altogether, according to a recent visitor, "the Dutchman has a very comfortable form of religion. You keep your hat on in church and that saves you many a chill; you talk freely and in your natural voice, not in a whisper; you have a neat housemaid in a white cap and apron (and nothing is more cleanly and charming than a Dutch servant maid) to show you to your seat or to offer you a chair; you have nice drab pews of painted deal all around you and a cheerful two decker pulpit above."

Slow Development in the Child. Remembering that Balzac, Walter Scott, Daniel Webster and the great educator, Froebel, were counted as dullards in their youth, the importance of allowing certain minds a slow development is manifest. A child who at fourteen is learning numbers may at forty compose a great epic or discover a new element. Through kindergarten methods, manual training, physical and industrial exercise, dancing and military drill, the attention is arrested, the slumbering mind is roused, the wandering will be recalled.—Rheta Childs Dorr in the Century.

Some Are So by Nature. A certain young man, who prided himself on a brusqueness that he mistook for wit, met an eminent, but touchy, sculptor at a studio supper. "So you're the chap," he said, on being introduced, "that makes mud heads?" "Not all of them," the sculptor replied, quietly.—Youth's Companion.

Speculating and Gambling. "Congratulations, old man. I hear you have been speculating successfully." "No; I lost money." "That so? Well, you ought to know better than to gamble."—Kansas City Journal.

A Preference. Footlights—So you've seen my Hamlet. Well, what do you think of it? Critical Friend—I prefer Shakespeare's. Boston Transcript.

Still in the Future. Cashier (coughing)—Pardon me, I did not catch your last name. Ethel (blushing)—I haven't caught it yet myself.—Cleveland Leader.

Repentance is second innocence.—De Honald.
