

Turkish Prisoners of War Under Guard of Bulgarians

Copyright, 1912, by American Press Association.

DEFEATED, disarmed and closely guarded, hundreds of Turkish soldiers were taken from the Macedonian battlefields to Stara Zagora by the Bulgarian victors, as shown in this photograph. Humiliated and cowed by their capture, the prisoners of war were further subjected to the taunts and jeers of the victorious guards. The ignominy of defeat was bad enough, but the added brand of capture must have fanned to pitch heat the fires of hatred in the breasts of these hostages of war.

WELCOMED A KICKING.

Odd Incident That Proved the Popularity of Dumas.

In "My Autobiography" Mme. Judith, the great French actress, writes of Alexander Dumas the elder:

"This giant of a mulatto, with his big, black, mocking eyes, his wide nostrils, thick lips, heavy chin, his crisply curling hair and his forehead with its strange bumps, like that of some un-eruly child who is always fighting with his comrades, was truly a representative personage, a type reflecting all the passion of the romanticists. There would have been something wanting to his time if this grandson of a negress had not been seen striding along the Parisian boulevards, if his laugh had not been heard on the terraces of the cafes or if he had not appeared playing his part with naive self satisfaction in official ceremonies and at the Tuilleries ball, or walking about behind the scenes at the theater with his arm around the waist of some actress, or eating and drinking enough for four in the merry suppers at which authors and artists used to meet.

"His popularity was simply unequalled. There was a story current in my time of a singular wager made by Mery of Marseilles. Walking one day in some public garden with a friend, he suddenly said to him: 'Do you see that big, ridiculous looking fellow? I bet you 100 sous that if I kick him, no matter where, instead of flying into a rage he will make me a polite bow.'

"The bet was taken, and Mery, creeping stealthily up behind M. Prudhomme, gave him a tremendous kick in the small of his back. The man turned red with indignation, but Mery cried: 'Oh, I beg your pardon, sir; I took you for Alexander Dumas, with whom I have an account to settle.'

"His victim, only too proud to be taken for such a great man, at once re-ented and, taking off his hat in the most amiable manner, he said, with a bow, 'There is no harm done, monsieur.' The hundred sous were won."

ANSON SCORED LAST.

The Old Chicago Captain Made Two Plays to Dahlen's One.

Tim Hurst, the veteran umpire, told this one on Bill Dahlen when Bill was a youth toiling under Cap Anson in Chicago. Said he:

"Anson called Dahlen good and hard in a game I was umpiring in Chicago. Dahlen took it without saying a word, but a few minutes later Bill remarked to me, 'Watch me bark that old fellow's shins.' 'Ans' was not as agile then as he was in his younger days, and he stooped with much effort. All through that game Bill made great stops, only to throw the ball a few feet in front of the bag, and it was up to Anson to stop it with his shins.

"However, that was not the end of it. A few days later the White Stockings had to make a trip to St. Louis, and Anson told Dahlen he would not be taken on the trip. Bill had been told that several times and he thought 'Ans' was fooling. The train left Chicago about midnight and Dahlen was with the rest of the team.

"When the train was about twenty-five miles out of Chicago the conductor told Anson there were sixteen men in the party and he had received only fifteen tickets. Anson said there were only fifteen men and named the berths they occupied.

"The man in berth No. 17 says he is a member of the Chicago team," said the conductor, who was referring to Dahlen. 'He's stringing you,' replied Anson. 'Poor Bill was asked to cough up and couldn't. The train was stopped, and Dahlen was put off the train about thirty miles from Chicago. How he got back to Chicago only Bill himself knows, but he would not talk to anybody for a week.'

Nothing to Worry Over.

"I heard something the other day that greatly surprised me, and I have been worried about it ever since."

"What was it?"

"I don't know whether I ought to mention it to you or not, but I was told that your daughter's husband was a free thinker. She's such a lovely girl! I hope it isn't true."

"Of course it isn't, or if it is it won't make any difference. Laura takes after me, and my husband was a free thinker, too, when I married him. Now he never thinks."—Chicago Record-Herald

Inspiration and Sitting Tight.

George Eliot believed that her novels were the product of inspiration or genius. Anthony Trollope thought his was the result of "cobbling wax, madam," or the faculty of sitting tight in his chair and turning out 250 words every fifteen minutes for two or three hours before breakfast. The method succeeded so far as to bring him a return of $350,000 and the reading public a set of novels which are being more appreciated every day.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Not So Very Much.

"You've got nothing on me," said the cook.

The mistress looked her over carefully.

"Only one hat, one skirt and two bunches of puffs," she retorted, "and you'll take 'em all off before you leave too."—Pittsburgh Post.

A Tale of Two Cities.

"I thought your minister was to have a call to Minneapolis."

"He did expect it, but he went up there to preach a trial sermon and took his text from St. Paul, so it's all off."—Chicago Record-Herald.

FISHER & RICHARDSON

With The Same Make of Gun

one nation destroys another. It is how to manage the gun that secures success: therefore, it is not the gun alone but the knowing how to manipulate it.

No man succeeds in business with his back towards his business. He must face the problem with determination and tact. He must select the goods people want. He must determine first that values are the objects sought, and prices must be in unison with such merchandise.

Under these conditions and considerations

Gardner & Hobson

have selected their spring stock of merchandise, which is now arriving daily.

The stock consists of DRY GOODS, LADIES' WEAR, GROCERIES, and in fact everything kept in a FIRST CLASS MERCHANDISE STORE.

Hammering a Board into Place won't keep it there if the lumber is not thoroughly seasoned. For when it dries out, it will surely warp out of place again. Get our perfectly seasoned and the boards will stay where you put them without warping or buckling. Such lumber is easier to work up too. Try it this time and you'll know it forever.
