PEPPERMINT AT WEST STAYTON

One of the newest and most interesting crops raised in Oregon is the mint from which peppermint oil is extracted. In other sections of the country where this oil is an established product, the oil sells at $3 to $4 per pound. Experiments conducted in the vicinity of West Stayton, Marion County, indicates that this crop, when grown under irrigation, will yield at the rate of $120 per acre. It is expected that a plant for distilling the oil will be erected at West Stayton and a profitable business in the shipping of plants to other sections built up.

Mrs. C. A. Beauchamp is on the sick list.

BOY SHOOTS SELF WITH SHOT GUN

Alva Myers, the sixteen-year-old son of O. V. Myers who lives one and one-half miles northwest of this city, accidentally shot part of his right shoulder away on Monday of this week.

The lad had been out hunting and had placed the gun over a rail fence and when he picked it up again, by some means the weapon was discharged, taking quite a sized chunk of flesh out of his shoulder. A number of shot also went through his hat brim, which shows how near fatal the accident was. Dr. Brewer dressed the wound as soon as possible.
