Mrs Wood B.
Highbrow
& on Thanksgiving

YES, yes, indeed! We would have had a perfectly lovely time at our house on Thanksgiving if it hadn't been for an accident that happened at the dinner table. At the time I felt terribly misanthropic about it and really had a very bad movy quart dour for a minute, but I soon consoled myself by recalling dear Robert Burns' precious words, "The best laid plans of mice and men gang awoe."

We only had a small dinner party.
Just the Bollivards and Wood's sister and her husband and their little boy, Harold. Did you ever meet Wood's sister? My dear, between you and I—remember this is strictly sotto voce—she is very ignorant and snobbish, and such a talker! Wood himself acknowledges that she would surely explode if she ever got tetanus, and ever since she went abroad she holds her head as high as Marie Antoinette going to the Moulin Rouge and talks nothing but Paris—a perfect particide, I call her!

And ignorant! Why, do you know, she brought me back a little statuette of Venus from Italy and apologized for its broken arms, by telling me it was that way the diagonal was found! Ha, ha, ha! I could scarcely retain my specific gravity, I was so amused. She didn't know that Mickey Angelo had carved it that way on purpose to make it look old and debilitated because the Romans dearly loved antique things. I don't blame them either, I do myself, don't you?
I have a colonial monogamy antimacassar 500 years old with all the knobs broken off.

I had a high noon dinner at one o'clock—"when founjd day stands lily on the misty mountain top,"
you know, as dear old Will would say. It was a strict New England dinner, of course, in honor of the day and Wood's ancestors
—I am an F. F. V., myself—and before it was served we each agreed to tell the one thing we were most thankful for.

Wood was first. He said words couldn't express his gratefulness because he didn't have to pay an income tax. Poor Wood! He staid up all the night before, figuring out what he would have to pay at the source.
He was terribly puzzled at first and wanted me to help him, but I was too busy assisting Nora to make the stuffing.

He didn't know whether to multiply the least common multiple by the fourth dimension and add 1 per cent of the remainder, or extricate the cuberoot of the net proceeds and square the result. One thing, he said, was certain. He'd just like to get square once with the Democrats! My, but he was tickled when he came upstairs the next morning to tell me he had escaped after all, but, he said, it was a very close shave.

I don't know whether to tell I was thankful because I had been elected president of my suffrage club, or because I had such a wonderful child as Gwendolyn, but I finally decided to intimate Cordelia, the mother of the Gratchy, and display my jewel child.

Besides, I am far too modest to boast of myself.

So I had Gwendolyn read a composition on "The First Thanksgiving," in which she told all about the hard ships of the poor Pilgrims who came over in the Maybell with Lord Baltimore to Plymouth, and how they sat down to their first Thanksgiving dinner of hominy and codfish balls, and gave thanks because they hadn't been scalped or burned as witches.

Then Wood had her bind every state in the Union and tell what time it is in the Scandalous peninsula when it is six o'clock here. Then she showed all of her beautiful sketches and played several duets on the piano. She is Mr. Boguslatkey's favorite pupil, and he often tells me that she will be a perfect tyro when she grows up.
Just then, the "tocain-of the soul, the dinner bell," rang and we had to evade the rest of the program. I was glad, too, because the Bollivards looked awfully bored when Wood's sister asked Harold to recite—my, how she does love to show him off!

We had a lovely meal. Nora certainly is a fine cook, even if she is Irish. I had her mix the mince-meat with strong tea and cane pepper in stead of wicked things like cider and brandy, and the pies were delicious.
Everything was, Nora hasn't quit talking about her fine cooking that day yet. That's one trouble with the Irish, they are so boastful! I firmly believe it is the reason that Julius Caesar, when he conquered Ireland christened it "Erin-go-Brag," don't you?

Beg pardon? Well, the dinner had passed off beautifully. Wood had kept the table in a roar—you know what a delightful bon mot he is!—and had carved the turkey just like a surgeon.
But first I must tell you about Harold.
The little wretch, instead of peeling his banana into strips and laying them carefully on the table like Gwendolyn, turned his skin back and, after eating the fruit out of it in two bites, threw it under the table. He said afterwards it slipped off his plate. At any rate it fell right at Wood's feet.

Poor Wood! He had on some new shoes without any heels—he didn't want to buy them in the first place, but I begged him to, because I love him to be the observed of all observers and have a moldy form, as my beloved Shakespeare would say—and he wasn't used to them, so that when he got up to leave the table he slipped on the peel.

Ours is an extension table with gearing rollers, and when he grasped the edge of it to save himself from falling, alas, alas, it parted in the middle and all the combustibles of the dinner were participated onto the floor and Wood fell backwards on top of his chair with the most violent emphasis.

Poor boy! He had been telling a baseball story and had been using such shocking paraphrases as "jammed the cushion," "swatted the sphere," "clattered across the pan" and "dented the platter." Don't you think it was a dreadful coincidence that just as he said "platter," down went the turkey?
Oh, dear! I just can't help but feel some way that perhaps the whole thing was a nemesis on him for using such dreadful, undefiled slang.

Well, he paid dearly for it, poor fellow! I'm afraid it will be weeks before his solar system will be entirely renovated. When we disinterred him that day we found that his paralysis was dreadfully bruised, and that he had a severe attack of nostalgia—I declare I thought his dear nose would never, never stop bleeding!

Yes, we all partook of some injury —Mrs. Bollivard hasn't spoken to me since because her new scrape-de-shin skirt was ruined; that is, all but Harold and his mother. It seems like the very ironing of fate that they were the only ones present who escaped from damage, don't you think so?

Real Cause for Thanksgiving.
On every side there is cause for thanksgiving. We are at peace with all, even our enemies, if there be such.
Our past achievements stimulate to further efforts, and our present difficulties breed fresh determination to overcome them.

NORTHWEST MARKET
REPORTS.

Portland—There is a firm market for all kinds of livestock at the North Portland yards, particularly for hogs.
The run in one day was heavy, amounting to 61 cars, all sold, and buying was brisk.

Cattle were traded in within the former range of quotations. Full loads of steers sold at prices running from $6.10 to $7.15, and the bulk of the cow sales were at $5.50 to $6.25.

Forty loads of hogs were handled during one day. A full dozen of these sold at $7.15, about 20 loads at $7.10, and the remainder at $7.05 and $7.
Heavy hogs went at the usual difference in price.

The tendency of the sheep market is upward. The quotation on choice lambs advanced to $6.35, and one brought $6.40. Wethers sold up to $5.60 and the best ewes were disposed of at $4.60.

Livestock men here are beginning to show uneasiness over the spread of foot and mouth disease, as there are unconfirmed reports that it had been found in Montana, from whence Portland has been bringing cattle. Speculation, therefore, has been checked.
The stoppage of cattle from that section, however, would probably not affect prices here, as there would be no shortage in the supply.

The demand for hops at recent prices continues limited, most of the dealers have offers, but the majority of these are said to be at a lower scale of prices. The Cosgrove lot of 158 bales, at Champoog, was sold to the Uhlmanns at 10 cents.

Official government returns of the 1914 German hop crop are 464,732 cwt., grown on 27,685 hectares, as against 212,358 cwts. from 27,048 hectares under cultivation in 1913 and 411,270 cwts. from 26,966 hectares in 1912.

Seattle—The spud market as regards first class stock free of blight, cutouts and sprouts, is firm, although the general run of receipts is weak. It would be difficult at this time to say as to how far the damage will extend, but many sacks of the Yakima Gems now coming into this market appear to develop blight ends. It is claimed that this blight does not show when the stock is shipped, but it is so plain here that considerable shrinkage has been the rule. The tracks are well loaded with carloads of spuds, but in all this there is comparatively little fancy stock.

The onion market is steady. Some excellent Western Washington offerings at 75¢ @85¢ are selling. There are a few Yakimas on the curb, but there is little interest.

Jonathan apples, so far as good quality is concerned, are cleaned up, and

How They Bathe in Vienna.
Previous to the outbreak of the war Vienna was building a municipal bath which will be the largest in the world, being 820 feet long by 197 feet wide.
Yet it is only quite recently that Vienna has abandoned what was the most primitive and curious bathing custom. Instead of going to your bath, the bath was brought to you by agreement with one of the purveyors of private baths.

Their huge wagons with tanks of hot and cold water and heavy wooden tubs used to be a familiar sight in the streets of the Austrian capital down to little more than a decade ago.

They went the round of their customers, delivering baths and hot water at private residences and calling for them again after the ablutions had been performed.

The First Transatlantic Liner.
The first transatlantic liner to be operated by steam power was launched at New York ninety-six years ago, and was formally christened the Savannah. The vessel bore little resemblance to the ocean leviathans of the present, for she was a tiny wooden craft of 350 tons. The "crazy crank" who thought it possible for a ship to cross the Atlantic by steam power was William Scarborough, of Savannah, and the boat, although built in New York, was named after the owner's home city. By the April following her launching the Savannah was ready for the sea, and on April 10, 1819, she left New York for Savannah, which was to be her American terminus. On May 24th the little liner steamed away from Savannah on her maiden voyage, and on June 20th she reached Liverpool, where she was given a rousing welcome as the first steam vessel to cross the ocean. From Liverpool the Savannah proceeded to St. Petersburg, Russia, and in December, 1819, the Savannah was again anchored in the harbor of the Georgian city, fifty days out from the Russian capital. Thus Scarborough—"crazy crank"—achieved for Georgia the honor of revolutionizing the commerce of the world. Savannah will celebrate the centenary of the sailing of the Savannah five years hence.

YEAR'S DIGGING OF COAL

Greater Than Total Excavation for Panama Canal.

It has been estimated that the amount of coal which will be dug out of the ground in the United States during the present year will be greater by far than the total excavation for the Panama Canal.

Experts for the United States geological survey have estimated that originally there was enough coal in this country to make a solid block 10 miles long, 10 miles wide and 10 miles high. A block of this size would weigh more than 5,000,000,000,000 tons, and up to the present time the coal that has been removed amounts only to something like 15,000,000,000 tons.
The coal mined during 1914 will amount to about 600,000,000 tons, compared with 300,000,000 cubic yards.
The total excavation for the Panama Canal from start to finish is computed at some 262,500,000 cubic yards.

The comparison indicates in a striking way the extent of the coal mining industry in the United States. The output of coal is enormous, but it is increasing year by year. The amount of coal so far taken out is only a fraction of what remains, according to the estimates of the geologists. The people of this country, however, are using more coal every year, and with the exhaustion of some of the European coal fields already in sight, the foreign demand for American coal will increase enormously.

The history of coal mining in the United States covers only a period of about a century. There was some mining of anthracite in Pennsylvania as far back as 1790, but the records of the anthracite coal trade usually begin with the year 1820. The first actual mining is believed to have been in Virginia, though the records of production in that state date from 1822.
The presence of coal in Ohio was discovered as far back as 1755, but the record of output begins with 1837. The history of coal mining in Kentucky begins in 1827, but in 1840 the production had reached only 23,527 tons.

Kentucky's coal industry suffered greatly during the Civil War. In 1860 the production had reached 285,760 tons, but in 1864 it was under 2000 tons, and in 1870 it was only 150,582 tons. Since that time progress has been continuous until last year a maximum output of about 20,000,000 tons was reached.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Rheumatic Throat
Is Common Trouble
Should Be Treated in Blood To Prevent Recurrence.

There are successful gargles that stop soreness in the throat, but to prevent their inevitable return, the blood must be put in order. The best remedy is S. S. S., as it influences all the functions of the body to neutralize the irritants or waste products and to stimulate their excretion through the proper channels.

Rheumatic sore throat is a dangerous indication, as it means that the blood is loaded with more uric acid than the kidneys can excrete and may thus lead to serious general disturbance.

The action of S. S. S. stimulates cellular activity. It prevents the accumulation of criticisms in local spots. It enables the arteries to supply quickly the new red blood to replace worn-out tissue.

For this reason uric acid that finds the throat an easy prey to its breaking-down influence, is scattered and eliminated.
In other words, S. S. S. prevents chronic conditions by enabling all the mucous linings of the body to secrete healthy mucus. His influence is shown in a marked improvement of the bronchial tubes, whereby the weakness of voice with thick, grayish ex-cretions is overcome. S. S. S. well diluted with water, means a blood bath, since it is welcome to any stomach and at once gets into the blood.

S. S. S. is free of all minerals and contains ingredients wonderfully conducive to well-balanced health.

You can get it at any drug store, but do not accept anything else. There is danger in substitutes. S. S. S. is prepared only by
