River Names.
Nansmond, the name of a river in Virginia, is from the Indian word Nanschimdum, "the place from which we were driven away." The Flint, in Michigan, was called by the Indians Perwongio, "the river of the flint," from the abundance of this stone on its banks. Humboldt river, in Nevada, was named by Fremont in honor of Baron Humboldt.

SAVE LIVES AT SEA

Lighthouse Keepers Worthy of the Highest Praise.

Arduous Duty, Demanding Extreme Self-Sacrifice, Cheerfully Performed—Examples of Bravery That Are Without Equal.

Although the pay is small and the life often lonely, the lighthouse service attracts as a rule an excellent class of faithful men, willing to take large risks in doing their duty and also in helping those in distress. There are many cases of faithful service and bravery.

There are a number of woman lighthouse keepers. One of these, the keeper of Angel Island light in San Francisco bay, reported that after the machinery of the fog signal was disabled on July 2, 1906, she "had struck the bell by hand for 20 hours and 35 minutes until the fog lifted," and that on July 4, when the machinery was further disabled, she stood all night on the platform outside and "struck the bell with a nail hammer with all my might. The fog was dense."

A widely known woman lighthouse keeper was Ida Lewis, who died about three years ago. She lived at Lime Rock lighthouse, on a ledge in Newport harbor, for 57 years, her father having been appointed keeper when she was twelve years old. She was keeper of the light for 32 years. There are reports of her having rescued 13 persons from drowning. On one occasion it is said, she saved three men who were swamped in attempting to pick up a sheep, and then she rescued the sheep also.

Because of the difficult life, keepers at isolated stations are granted shore liberty and leave 72 days a year, and crews of light vessels 90 days a year. The first lighthouse on this continent was built by Massachusetts, in 1715-1716, on an island in the entrance to Boston harbor. The first class light and fog signal stations are located at the more prominent and dangerous points along the seaboard, and on a well-lighted coast such stations should be sufficiently close that a coasting vessel may always be in sight of a light. The smaller lights are placed to mark harbors, inside channels and dangers. Along the navigable rivers numerous post lights are maintained to indicate the channels.

For New York harbor and immediate approaches alone 268 aids to navigation are required, including 46 shore lights, two light vessels and 36 lighted buoys; there are 192 buoys of all classes and 37 fog signals, including sounding buoys.

Among the lighthouses of the country may be found examples of great engineering skill and of dignified and simple design. Some of the tall light-house structures are of beautiful architecture, suited to the purpose, and set off by picturesque location on headland or rock overlooking the sea. The tower must be built to give the light a suitable height above the water, and hence tall lighthouses are required on low-lying coasts. A light must be 200 feet above the sea level to be seen from the deck of a vessel 20 nautical miles distant. Beyond that distance the curvature of the earth would prevent a light at this elevation being seen.

Hitting a Brother Barrister.
In the Stokes trial A. B. Boardman, Stokes' attorney, said, "My client is tired of lawyers. They have cheated him enough, and now he prefers to put the matter before a jury."
"I hope," said Joseph H. Choate, the opposing attorney, with that everyday smile and suave tone so well known, "that my brother has done nothing to forfeit his client's confidence," and even the grave justices had to smile, while Boardman bit his lip.

Calculation.
"She said she would be content with love in a cottage," said the young man with a calculating mind.
"That's a fine sentiment."
"Perhaps. But I can't help wondering whether a cottage is the best her father intends to do for us."

WHERE SHE GOT BOUQUET

Madeline Careful to Obey Instructions Forbidding the Picking of Flowers.

Her name was Madeline. She was colored dusty black, as lean, flat, angular as a lath, and she was about seventeen years old. The distinguishing feature about her face was her eyes; they were large and round and white, and they invariably expressed the last degree of startled innocence. Madeline worked days for Mrs. Judge Gentry. She went home nights. One morning she appeared with a large bouquet, which she presented to Mrs. Gentry before she began work on the breakfast dishes.

To Mrs. Gentry the flowers seemed somehow familiar. "I'm very much pleased to think that you should bring me such nice flowers, Madeline," said the white woman. "Does your mother grow them at your home?"
Madeline became, if possible, more innocent. "No'm, my mammy washes; don't grow nuthin'. I jes' picked dat bouquet outen a white lady's yard."

With a few questions Mrs. Gentry established the fact that the flowers came from the yard of her friend Mrs. Gordon in the next block.
"Did Mrs. Gordon give them to you for me, Madeline?" she persisted.
"No'm," countered Madeline, "but she ain't said I couldn't pick 'em."
"Well, what did she say?" went on Mrs. Gentry.

Madeline gave close attention to her work. "I dunno close what she say. She wasn't there."
Mrs. Gentry spent a busy 15 minutes in an effort to impress upon Madeline the difference between mine and thine. Madeline agreed to everything, and professed her complete understanding and appreciation. And the next Thursday morning she appeared with another, larger bouquet, which she presented with an air of guileless nonchalance.

"You didn't take these beautiful flowers from Mrs. Gordon's yard, did you, Madeline?" Mrs. Gentry asked, striving to mask her suspicion with kindness.
"No'm," returned Madeline. "Yo' told me not to take flowers from white ladies' yards."
"Did some one give you these?" continued Mrs. Gentry.

"No'm," answered Madeline, "no-body didn't give 'em to me."
"Then how did you come by them?" Madeline's eyes expressed the last degree of innocence. "I jes' seed 'em, and I jes' picked 'em."
Mrs. Gentry was determined. "Did you go grain into some white lady's yard and take her flowers?"
"I done said yo' told me not to take flowers from white ladies' yards," replied Madeline, conclusively, "and I ain't never no mo'. I jes' picked dis hyah bouquet outen a cullud lady's yard. Yessum."

Details Can Wait.
A patriotic Welshman was asked what emblems and distinctions he thought the new Welsh battalion of the British army ought to wear. The traditional emblem of Wales is the leek, but he thought this probably would be inappropriate. Mr. Lloyd-George has recently put forward the claims of the daffodil as the Welsh national flower, but that seems to lack historic confirmation, so it was agreed that it was most likely that the Welsh guard would wear a distinguishing badge of the Prince of Wales' feathers. But Wales has other emblems; the red dragon of her flag, for instance. That might be used, and as for cap band, the national color of Wales is a dark green. But probably these nice little details of parade and ceremony will not worry the new guards very much. They will be born into the all-leveling uniform of khaki, and there will be plenty of time to arrange the other little details of scarlet and buttons.

Investive Carried Too Far.
An unusual suit for slander, brought by a clergyman against members of his church, is reported by the Michigan Law Review as follows:
"Plaintiff, a minister of the Gospel, and defendants were members of the Colored Baptist church. During a campaign for state prohibition plaintiff opposed the adoption of the constitutional amendment to that effect. Defendants, at various conventions of said church, made statements to the effect that plaintiff was a rascal, a whiskey agent, a disgraceful saloon puller, etc., and introduced resolutions expelling him from membership. Held, that the occasion was qualifiedly privileged, and that in the absence of malice being shown no action could be maintained; but that the statements made were so intemperate and the epithets applied so vile as to be alone sufficient to carry the question of malice to the jury."

Holds Wife Is Kitchen Boss.
The wife holds full sway in the kitchen and the husband has no right to invade these premises and interfere with her work. This point was settled in a divorce suit decided by Judge Morrow at Portland, Ore.
On the grounds that he "butted in" and criticized her kitchen work, Mrs. Sarah V. Reese received a divorce and $300 alimony from William B. Reese. These were the main contentions for the charge of cruel and inhuman treatment made by Mrs. Reese.

HOW DID HE KNOW THE SIZE?

Happy Thought Comes to Assistance of Young Man Who Wished to Purchase Jeweled Belt.

A man who had recently become engaged to a charming young girl chanced to be in a fashionable shop when his eye caught a glimpse of a jeweled belt that seemed to him an acceptable gift for his fiancée. He asked a clerk to place an assortment of the belts on the counter.

"Ladies' belt?" queried the polite salesman. "Certainly, sir; what size?"
The young man blushed. "Really," he stammered. "I don't know." And he gazed about him helplessly for a moment or so. Finally a happy thought appeared to strike him. "Can't you let me have a yardstick for a moment?" he asked. The yardstick being forthcoming, he placed it along the inside of his arm from shoulder to wrist. Then, looking up at the clerk, he exclaimed triumphantly, "Twenty inches,"—Philadelphia Ledger.

Not in His Line.
Manager (of intelligence office)—What kind of a place would you like?
Cook Lady—Oh, a place where I can have anything I want, with but little to do and no one to boss me.
Manager—You have strayed into the wrong place. This is an employment office, not a matrimonial agency.

Knew Her.
"Can I see the manager?" asked the caller.
"Why, he's just been called to the telephone," replied the assistant.
"Will he be long?"
"His wife said she just wanted to speak to him for a minute. I guess he'll be back in an hour."

Rankin—Beauregard has bought himself a $5,000 racing car.
Phyle—But he couldn't afford one worth half that amount.
Rankin—That's why he bought it. He wants something that can go fast enough to keep away from the collectors.—Puck.

Hadn't Noticed.
First Gurgle—Did you notice that good-looking fellow who sat right back of us at the Orpheum?
Second Gurgle—Oh, the handsome chap with the red necktie and tan suit, who wore his hair pompadour? No. Why?—Nebraska Awgwan.

To the Point.
Her Father—Young man, I must ask your object in coming here so often?
Young Man—I love your daughter, sir. She is adorable, a queen.
Her Father—Then, I take it, your object is to become her subject. Very well, she's yours.

MORE IMPORTANT.

Wangs—What are Brown's chances in the coming election?
Bangs—Very slight. He hasn't anything back of him.
Wangs—He's got a family tree.
Bangs—Yes, but his opposition has the plum tree.

College Life.
"Yes, some of us fellows keep house at the fraternity home."
"Don't you hate to wash dishes?"
"We don't have to. We have plenty of candidates for the fraternity, and dishwashing is great as an initiation stunt."

Too Risky.
"Why didn't you employ that beautiful stenographer?"
"Didn't care to take the risk. She was sure to break a lot of hearts in the office, and then I s'pose I'd be held under the employers' liability law"

Nervous Women
Are troubled with the "blues"—anxiety—sleeplessness—and warnings of pain and distress are sent by the nerves like flying messengers throughout body and limbs. Such feeling may or may not be accompanied by headache or headache or bearing down. The local disorders and inflammation, if there is any, should be treated with Dr. Pierce's Lotion Tablets. Then the nervous system and the entire womanly make-up feels the tonic effect of
DR. PIERCE'S Favorite Prescription
Take this in liquid or tablet form and be a well woman!
Mrs. Eva Tyler of So. Geneva St., Ithaca, N. Y., says, "I have been in a run-down condition for several years. Suffered from nervousness and a great deal of pain at certain periods. Have taken several different medicines but found your 'Favorite Prescription' has given me the most relief of anything I have ever tried. Am very much better than I have been in some time. All Blood Disorders Quickly Driven Away
Astonishing Results With the Greatest Blood Purifier Ever Discovered.

Strength, Power, Accomplishment are all Typified in S. S. S.
Some blood disorders become deeply rooted in the glands and tissues, and the mistake is made of resorting to drastic drugs. These only aggravate by causing other and worse troubles. A host of people know this to be true. They know from painful experience.
To get right down into where the blood is vitiated requires S. S. S. the greatest blood purifier ever discovered.
This remarkable remedy contains one ingredient, the active purpose of which is to stimulate the tissues to the healthy selection of its own essential nutriment and the medicinal elements of this matchless blood purifier are just as essential to well balanced health as the nutritious elements of the meats, grains, fats and sugars of our daily food.
Not only this, but if from the presence of some disturbing poison there is a local or general interference of nutrition to cause boils, carbuncles, abscesses and kindred troubles, S. S. S. so directs the local cells that this poison is rejected and eliminated from their presence.
Then, too, S. S. S. has such specific stimulation on these local cells as to preserve their mutual welfare and a proper relative assistance to each other.
In a very brief time S. S. S. has the reconstructive process so under control that remarkable changes are observed. All eruptive places heal, mysterious pains and aches have disappeared, and from head to foot there is a conscious sensation of renewed health.
From the fact that S. S. S. is purely a botanical preparation, it is accepted by the weakest stomach and has great tonic influence. Not one drop of drug or minerals is used in its preparation. Ask for S. S. S. and insist upon having it. And if you desire skillful advice upon any matter concerning the blood and skin write to The Swift Specific Co., 205 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga. Do not allow some zealous clerk to larrup the atmosphere in eloquence over something "just as good" as S. S. S. Beware of all counterfeits.
