"CURFEW SHALL NOT RING TO-NIGHT"

There will be weeping and wailing among some of the younger people of Stayton if the marshal carries out the orders of the city council and enforces the curfew ordinance passed Tuesday evening.

According to instructions, the first curfew bell was rung last night at 9 o'clock, and required that all children under 17 years of age, unaccompanied by some older person and not on errands, shall be well sent home in a hurry to say the least. This is supposed to accelerate the duties of the "Sandman" and send the little shavers to bed pronto. Stayton now has a curfew law, but one imagines that the best curfew law would be a stout apple twig in the hands of a determined parent.

ALASKA WANDERER RETURNS TO STAYTON

To the surprise of everyone, G. C. Eksman, at one time owner of the Stayton Housefurnishing Co. got off the stage in Stayton last night. Gus is just as genial as ever, and declares that he has spent the finest summer of his life (He's no spring chicken either) in Alaska. He stated that he would probably be here for a couple of weeks.

Mr. Eksman brought a copy of the Anchorage Daily Times with him dated Aug. 14, and in looking it over it was discovered that Guy Kearns had blossomed out into a regular league ball player, holding down the first sack in the Matanuska nine.

In the game of the 18th of August the Times gives Kearns quite a recommendation for his stick work and predicts great things.

Glen Porter and Guy Kearns like the county fine and both boys have good jobs.

STAYTON WOMEN WILL RUN A FOOT RACE

A woman's race between Mrs. Lonsway and Mrs. Lockhart is one of the contests booked for the Methodist Sunday School and Junior League picnic on Friday at the Hewitt grove, according to Mr. Lockhart, the minister, who stated yesterday that the event, regardless of rain or shine, would take place according to schedule, the program to begin at 10 o'clock in the morning. A fine basket dinner will be the order at noon and after that comes the ball game, the war game and other selected fun making features.

A couple of swings have been put up for those who like that kind of recreation, and a very enjoyable time is looked forward to. The place is half a mile east of town out through the Masonic grove. A flag placed on the gate will signify where to turn in.

GERVAIS TO HAVE NEXT I. O. O. F. CONVENTION

The next Marion County I. O. O. F. District Convention will be held in Gervais on Saturday, Oct. 14. The afternoon session will commence at 2:00 o'clock and will be held in the Masonic Hall. The evening session will be held at 7:30. At 3 o'clock there will be a public meeting in the City Hall. There will be speeches from several of the most prominent Odd Fellows of the state and the public will be given an opportunity to hear many good things about Odd Fellowship.

The Marion County I. O. O. F. Convention has been organized for several years and is perhaps the most prominent organization of its kind in the State. S. H. Heltzel, the present District Deputy Grand Master for Stayton Lodge, was president of the convention last year and was the moving factor in drafting a constitution and by-laws for the convention which was unanimously adopted at the last meeting.

The conventions are attended by several hundred Odd Fellows of Marion County and other parts of the state. Its influence is being felt in every lodge where it is held. It is the design of the convention to assist the lodges throughout the county in their work and organization, and also to create a more uniform and comprehensive understanding of the work.

Every Odd Fellow and Rebekah is invited to attend this convention. Its past record is sufficient proof that all will have a good time.

CIRCUS DAY

The Hamman Stage will make two trips Saturday, Circus day at Salem. First trip both stages, leaves at 7:45, returning after the show in the afternoon. Second trip will leave Stayton at 6:30 p. m. for evening show. $1.00 for round trip.

WHAT WOULD THE WORLD COME TO?

There have been volumes of matter written and published on the railroad strike situation. To an ordinary citizen on whom the burden of footing the bill for increases will fall, it looks as if the time had arrived to establish once and forever the principle of arbitration.

Why in the name of all that is sensible should employers and employees be left to fight out their labor battles by force at the expense of the public, when other questions between individuals and corporations are settled in courts of law?

The world would soon come to a pretty state of affairs if some of the rest of us decided we would refuse to abide by court decisions and settle our own difficulties by force of hand. There would be just as much sense and right in it as for the railroad brotherhoods to refuse to arbitrate. The claim that no justice can be secured by arbitration is poor argument for if we take that ground we are practically admitting that our judicial system is a farce and that there is no justice in anything. Any decision rendered by a judicial body is not likely to please both sides, but the mere fact that one side or the other is dissatisfied is no criterion that justice has not been meted out in as liberal a manner as the case warrants.

If the most powerful leaders in this country began to use force simply because the courts failed to always give them all they demanded in their pleadings, what would we come to? Yet this is exactly the situation in the present strike the brotherhoods refuse to arbitrate because they claim they didn't get sufficient results in arbitration meetings held a few months ago. Such action as this is forcing the day when there will be a court or arbitration and these matters will be settled on their merits just the same as any other case between individuals or corporations.

PUBLIC MARKET OPENS SATURDAY

Albany's first public market will open at the corner of Second and Ellsworth streets next Saturday with everything new and according to the latest public market system.

The booths for the market are almost complete and have been built partly over the sidewalk and partly on the street, providing ample walk in front of them and not extending into the street far enough to interfere with free and open passage.

The market will be under the supervision of Archie C. Miller, market master, who was selected by the grangers committee that made the arrangements for opening the market.

The market includes four meat stalls and seven vegetable booths where farmers will sell their own produce direct to the consumer.

The market was authorized by an ordinance passed by the city council and the council made an appropriation of $75 for the construction of the booths. —Albany Herald.

FAILURE TO SUPPORT STONE INDUSTRY

Portland has put up a feeble fight for the development of the languishing stone industry of Oregon.

The new million dollar postoffice will be built of Bedford, Indiana, limestone as matters stand at present. Portland might at least have been loyal to Pacific Coast stone industries and have made a stand for coast states, California, Washington, Idaho, Utah and Montana have enormous resources in this line and could have supplied the stone. Utah and Idaho and Washington do not let state and federal buildings go up without a red hot fight for the home building materials. They have many beautiful public buildings erected of the domestic granites, sandstones and tuffs and they are as prosperous as Oregon.

Most of the architects at Portland say the coast building stones are better than the eastern stone and give the reasons for it. Portland has of late years used the Bedford, Indiana stone and seems to like it. The transcontinental railroads like it. But the sounder judgment of the railroads is that the development of the home industries would be better for the west. Hauling coals to Newcastle is not a circumstance to hauling stone across the continent to states rich in building stones.

T. B. Riggs, who fell from a telephone pole some time ago, and was considered out of danger, is somewhat worse on account of secondary conditions arising, and for the past few days has been quite dangerously sick.

John, the seven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Creech fell from a wood chute Tuesday evening, breaking a bone in his left arm. Dr. Brewer set the fracture and the little fellow is doing nicely.
