A "Sidereal Day."

In answering a correspondent who asked the meaning of the term "sidereal time" the Irish Times explains that that is the only truly scientific manner of recording time and is that which astronomers and navigators use. A "sidereal day" is the precise time taken by the earth in revolving on its axis and is twenty-three hours, fifty-six minutes and four seconds. Our sundials, however, record a very different day.

If you set up a sundial in a garden and observe when it is noon today and again tomorrow you will find that it exceeds the "sidereal day" by three minutes and fifty-six seconds. The difference is due to the distance that the earth has traveled on its orbit while it has been revolving on its axis. The orbit motion makes it necessary for the earth to turn nearly four minutes longer in order to bring any place to the same position with regard to the sun that it had on the previous day.

The Novice's Mistake.
In "Tales of the Flying Service" C. G. Grey tells about a strange entry in the official report of an officer who had recently joined the service and was sent to pass a seaplane through its test for the English navy. He had to go up as a passenger with the constructor's pilot and to keep a log of what occurred during the test.

This is what he put down: "9:05 a. m. left slip; 9:10 a. m. altimeter shows 900 feet above sea; 9:12 a. m. curious phenomenon. Met a seagull flying backward!"
That meant that the machine, flying at the rate of about eighty miles an hour, overtook a seagull—which is not a fast flyer—going at about forty miles an hour, and that up in the air, without any background to give a proper sense of direction, the bird looked as if it were flying toward them tall first. Probably the officer knows better now.

Teach Children Thrift.

We Americans are notoriously the most thriftless of peoples. You have heard how much we throw away. We are too prone to think of thrift as stinginess. We hate to hear about saving. Dorothy Canfield Fisher in her recent book, "Self Reliance," gives parents a strong word of warning. She says: "There is nothing in the fact of being children which need cut off our sons and daughters from a great deal of accurate information and considerable practical experience with the ins and outs of wise money spending. But there is a great deal in the fact of their being Americans which will shut them off from such information and experience unless parents make a very determined effort to see that they get the proper training, for the whole spirit of our country and age is against us in the effort."

The City of the Dove.
When mighty Amru went to conquer Egypt he camped on the east bank of the Nile opposite Memphis, that great twenty mile long capital of mud bricks whose western verge was the pyramids and whose mud brick houses have all vanished. Amru crushed the Egyptians and came back to get his camp to move over and occupy Memphis. A dove had built in the folds near the top of his tent. Blood bathed Amru, the ruthless, would not let her be disturbed. A new city started about his tents. It grew northward along the Nile. It is today Cairo. Memphis is only a name.

Can You?
Here are a few things that you cannot do:
You cannot jot down the square root of two.
You cannot sneeze or yawn with your head under water.
You cannot state the number of buttons on your clothes.
You cannot draw an envelope by only looking at the paper in a mirror.
You cannot put your left foot and shoulder against a wall and then raise the other foot.
And yet you think you are clever—London Answers.

That Was Different.
Mrs. Tittle—What a beautiful world it must have been when there were only Adam and Eve in it! There was nobody to say nasty things about them. Mrs. Tattle—But, then, they had nobody to talk about. Mrs. Tittle—Well, I guess, after all, the world has improved since their time.—Exchange.

Ahead of my Times.
"The trouble with my boy Josh is that he's always ahead of the times," remarked Farmer Countessel.
"What has he done?"
"Went to town to see about a position. He found a strike in progress and joined the strike before he got the job."—Washington Star.

Our Vanishing Forests.
The ax and the saw are insanely busy, chips are flying thick as snowflakes, and every season thousands of acres of priceless forests, with their underbrush, soils, springs, climate, scenery and religion, are vanishing away in clouds of smoke.—John Muir.

Once Bitten, Etc.
"Why did that brilliant woman marry such a stupid man?"
"Because her first husband was a genius."—Boston Transcript.

Preferred Fare.
"What is the favorite fare of Wall street bulls and bears?"
"Supposed to be lamb chops."—Baltimore American.

Nature knows no pause in progress and development and attaches her curse on all inaction.—Goethe.
