Questions Answered

Portland, Ore., Dec. 31—Is an alien enemy of draft age (not an alien enemy) subject to draft? Is a man of draft age who has taken out only his first papers subject to draft?

These questions have been asked of local exemption boards time and again since the sending out of the questionnaires began. The answer to the first question is "No." The answer to the second question is "Yes."

An alien of draft age who has not declared his intention to become a citizen of the United States may waive exemption on the ground of alienage, but if he does not want to waive his exemption, the local board has no choice but to put him in Class V. However, he must answer his questionnaire and return it within the seven-day limit to his local exemption board, just as a citizen must do, or he will endanger his right to be placed in Class V.

On the other hand, an alien of draft age who has taken out his first papers declaring his intention to become a citizen of the United States, is subject to draft. It makes no difference how long or how short a time ago he may have out his first papers.
